Isolation Is Urged For Highlands Area

Reports Urge Attempts To Shut Out Marin City

By PAUL LIBERATORE

The planned Richardson Highlands apartment and townhouse project above Marin City should be isolated as much as possible from the predominantly-black community, according to two studies prepared by the project developer.

A report by Questor Associates, a Menlo Park real estate consulting firm, also urged that ways be found to make prospective residents of the Highlands less aware they will be living near black people.

"If prospective residents feel that the Richardson Highlands project is merely an extension of Marin City, it will meet market resistance," the report declares. "Every effort should be made to minimize awareness of Marin City in future residents' minds."

The Questor report and a second study by Walker and Lee, Orange County consultants, were done at the request of Mid-City Developers, the firm chosen to carry out government-sponsored redevelopment in the low-income community.

"We found that there are certain locational disadvantages to the subject property," the Walker and Lee report says. "As one approaches the property from the exit of Highway 101, the ethnic nature of the immediate area becomes apparent. This particular situation will probably become, for some people, a sales obstacle.

"This situation could be improved by establishing a buffering area and grand entrance to the subject property. A stone or brick fence on each side of Donahue Street — identifying the project, as well as liberal landscaping, would be advisable," according to Walker and Lee. "This would assist in distinguishing the proposed project as a separate residential area, connected to the low-end apartment area (Marin City proper) by geographics only."

The developer and the Marin County Redevelopment Agency currently are being sued in federal court by several Marin City residents who want some low-cost housing included in the Highlands so persons who now live in the community can afford to move to the new development. They have charged that the development as proposed amounts to government sanctioned racial segregation.

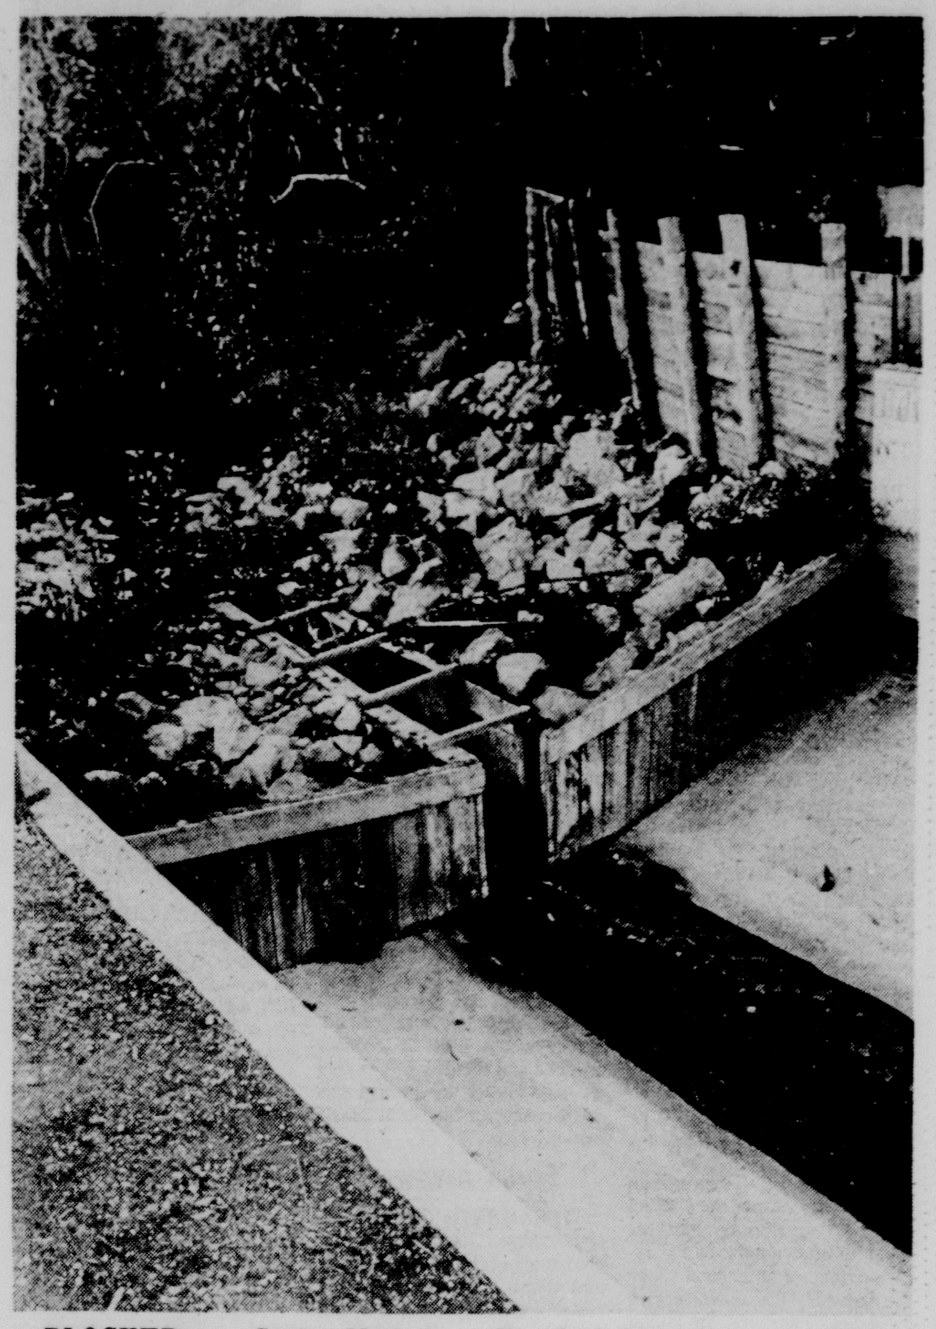

Plans by the developer call for construction of 379 "market rate" units on 30 acres of prime land on the hill above Marin City. Townhouses in the first part of the two-stage project will be priced at between $47,000 and $57,000, according to planning department estimates.

To make the housing more saleable, the Questor report urges high prices: "It is important that the selling price reflect the character to be achieved in the Richardson Highlands project. Selling prices below the current market would suggest that the quality or location was inferior to the competition ... higher prices require a greater proportion of upper income residents and these in turn will tend to set the atmosphere in the Richardson Highlands project."

Further, according to the report, "It is strongly recommended that because of the reputation of Marin City, the marketing be done by a non-Marin County organization."

In addition, it urges special

The Board of Supervisors has threatened to stall completion of the project but the county counsel warned that supervisors may be held personally liable if they do.

Marathon Summit Parley Goes 'Well'

VLADIVOSTOK (UPI) — Making his East-West summitry debut in frozen Siberia, President Ford spent almost eight hours today with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in marathon talks on nuclear arms limitations and did "very well."

It was the first meeting between Brezhnev and the new President. Both pledged to give "an irreversible character" to Soviet-American detente.

"I think it went very well," Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told reporters at a news briefing after the talks ended. "We went further down the road ... closer to achieving our goal (of a 10-year arms limitation pact) in 1975."

The initial round of talks originally was scheduled to last only about two hours — one-fourth its actual duration.

A second round was scheduled to get under way at 10 a.m. tomorrow Vladivostok time (4 p.m. PST today) and last for two hours before Ford's return trip began.

Before the initial discussions ran overtime, presidential aides issued the text of a welcome-dinner toast in which Ford planned to call for the nuclear superpowers to "get on with the business of controlling arms."

But Ford and Brezhnev struck such an instant rapport and the talks were going so well that the dinner was brushed aside in favor of hard discussions.

A presidential spokesman said Ford took two half-hour breaks during his 7 hours, 45 minutes of talks with Brezhnev at a snow-covered oceanside health spa near the secret port city of Vladivostok.

During one of the breaks, Ford strolled outside the con-

Supervisors Warned Of Suit If Flood Project Blocked

Marin County supervisors have been warned they may be personally liable for up to $12 million in damages if they continue to block the final stage of the Corte Madera creek flood control project.

County counsel Douglas J. Maloney issued the admonition in a letter to the board, which on Tuesday will reconsider its earlier threat to stall completion of the project.

At issue is phase four of the six-year-old flood control system being built by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., who is opposed to laying concrete in the creek through the Town of Ross (as called for in Phase Four) persuaded his colleagues two weeks ago to delay the final stage while alternative solutions are studied.

He suggested, for example, a pumping system to divert water from the creek during heavy winter storms.

He drew the support of Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini and the issue was delayed indefinately to give the two a chance to look for other ways to solve the problem.

The $3 million final stage would transform the creek into a concrete channel between the Ross Post Office and Winship Park Bridge and also provide drainage facilities in the Ross common.

About $12 million in state and federal funds have been pumped into the first three stages of the controversial project and both the town of Ross and the corps of engineers have protested the supervisors delaying the system's completion.

In his letter, Maloney told the supervisors they have made written agreements with the Army and the town of Ross which commit the county to "proceed diligently" with the flood control project.

"On the basis of the above," Maloney said, "it is my opinion that the (board) is irretrievably committed to the completion of Corte Madera Creek.

"If the board takes any action which impairs these legal obligations, it could become liable for damages based on all prior expenditures."

The county counsel added that any supervisors "who specifically renounce these obligations and or knowingly take actions which result in a breach of our committement could be sued personally ..."

Supervisor Giacomini said yesterday he will vote Tuesday to proceed with the county's part of the project — purchase of right-of-way — in light of the county counsel's opinion.

Arrigoni, meanwhile, said he also will vote to go ahead with the work since a brief investigation showed alternatives would be more costly or damaging.

Del Norte Man Is Bridge President

Edwin M. Fraser, 73, of Del Norte County, was elected yesterday as president of the Golden Gate Bridge District's board of directors. (Another story on page 5)

EDWIN M. FRASER
Del Norte resident

Fraser, whose home in Gasquet is some 300 miles from district toll plaza offices, said he will move to San Francisco during his one-year term. He takes office in January.

He succeeds San Francisco attorney Stephan C. Leonoudakis, who was board president for the past two years.

Fraser has represented his county's board of supervisors on the bridge board for 10 years. (Del Norte taxpayers were charged $5,282 by the district in fiscal 1929-30 and 1930-31. As their contribution to the bridge construction and the county has been in the district ever since.)

San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras was advanced from second to first vice president, and director E. J. Guidotti of Sonoma County was elected second vice president. Each of the nominations by a special committee were approved unanimously by the full bridge district board.

Fraser is a native of Ordway, Colo. He holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Oregon, where he majored in journalism and physical education. After graduation in 1924, he went to work as news editor for the Del Norte Triplicate in Crescent City. He later became its business manager and part owner.

Fraser was named athletic director of Del Norte County High School in Crescent City in 1926, and for 19 years supervised all its athletic activities and served as coach for all its teams until he retired from the post in 1945.

He went into the insurance and real estate business in 1932 in Crescent City, retiring in 1966.

Fraser has served as chairman of several county grand juries in Del Norte, as trustee of Humboldt State College and secretary of the Del Norte County Fair Association. He was a charter member of both the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs of Crescent City.

He and his wife, Elizabeth, have two grown children. Their son, John E. Fraser, is a county supervisor in Del Norte.

HORNETS ROMP OVER HOGAN IN BAY BOWL

VALLEJO — Quarterback Mike Moroski and wide receiver Steve Hoog combined for three touchdown passes last night to lead Novato High School to a 27-0 romp over Hogan in the third annual Top of the Bay Bowl.

The victory gave the Marin County Athletic League champion Hornets their first undefeated season with an overall 8-0-2 record. It also avenged a 7-6 loss to Petaluma in last year's Top of the Bay Bowl.

Petaluman Is Jailed Following Shooting

A Petaluma man was shot in the chest last night, and a second Petaluman has been booked into Sonoma County Jail on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder.

Keith Wickenhofer, 41, of 1024 Aspen Way was reported in "satisfactory but guarded" condition in the intensive care unit of Hillcrest Hospital after undergoing emergency surgery for the gunshot wounds.

The booking desk at Sonoma County Jail reported that Donald Lee Teach, 34, of 1168 Baywood Drive was booked by Petaluma police at 6:40 a.m. today. No bail has been set.

Police reported they were summoned to the Golden Fleece Bar in Washington Square shortly after 11 p.m., to find Wickenhofer with two gunshot wounds in his chest.

He apparently had been brought by his wife to the bar from another, unknown location where the shooting took place. Officers did not give her name, and withheld all other details of the case.

Teach was arrested in his home early today.

The shooting apparently resulted form a domestic quarrel, police from other jurisdictions reported.

Arab Hijackers Slay Passenger To Press Point

TUNIS (UPI) — Palestinian gunmen, angered by what they considered a double-cross, killed one of their more than 40 hostages in a hijacked airliner today. But they agreed to stay the slaying of others and resume negotiations with Tunisian authorities, government officials said.

The Tunis Afrique Presse news agency, quoting an "authoritative source," said a special plane would bring from Cairo the 13 Palestinian guerrilla prisoners whose release the hijackers are demanding but reports from Cairo said only five were being sent here initially as a compromise.

The gunmen killed and jumped out of the plane German passenger Werner G. Kehl, a 43-year-old banker, apparently in retaliation for delays in meeting their demands.

Miller Sees Progress In Coal Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller reported progress today in informal talks with coal company negotiators aimed at ending a crippling nationwide strike by 120,000 miners.

The talks were recessed shortly before noon but there were indications UMW representatives and company officials might resume discussions later in the day on changes demanded by the union in a proposed three-year contract.

The strike, which began Nov. 12 and has already showed crippling effects on steel and dependent industries, is now almost sure to last well into December.

Miller told reporters progress was made at today's session, but added: "I can't really define how much."

Miller refused to specify the areas under discussion although he did acknowledge that money was involved.

Booby Trap Victim Was Son Of Tiburon Couple

I-J Special Report

SEOUL, Korea — The body of a Navy officer, the son of a Tiburon couple, was found today, killed by a booby trap in a mysterious Communist-dug tunnel in the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea.

United Nations Command spokesmen said the dead man is Cmdr. Robert M. Ballinger, 41, son of retired Adm. and Mrs. Richard B. Ballinger of Tiburon. Ballinger is also survived by his wife in Korea.

Ballinger was killed Nov. 15, when several American and South Korean military men were caught in the explosion. His body was not located until today. A South Korean army major also died. Five Americans were injured.

The U.N. Command called the tunnel and blast incident the most serious episode involving U.S. personnel in the past five years.

(Admiral Ballinger said he is flying to Korea tonight to learn details of the blast. His son was never a resident of Marin, but lived in San Francisco several years during his Navy career.)

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Flournoy Interested In UC Post

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Houston I. Flournoy, the defeated Republican nominee for governor, says he is interested in becoming president of the University of California. Flournoy said he has been asked by a number of people if he is interested in succeeding UC President Charles Hitch, who is resigning effective June 30. A committee is searching for a successor.

Flournoy

"It certainly would be a job in an area that I would be terribly interested in," Flournoy said.

Flournoy was an associate professor at Pomona College before he entered politics. He has a doctorate in government from Princeton.

4,300 Laid Off

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — U.S. Steel Corp. disclosed yesterday it was laying off 4,300 more employees and banking several additional blast furnaces this weekend because of the coal strike. This brought to 18,000 the number of U.S. Steel employees furloughed since the start of the strike.

In Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eleven years ago to the day, John B. Connally Jr. was wounded while riding in the Kennedy motorcade in Dallas. Yesterday, he sat in U.S. District Courthouse here, losing a preliminary battle against bribery-perjury charges. The tanned, silver-haired Connally, dressed impeccably in a light blue pinstripe suit, was in the courtroom for pre-trial oral arguments in the so-called milk fund case.

Few Remember

DALLAS (UPI) — Fewer than 100 persons attended a brief ceremony yesterday marking the 11th anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. The quiet service consisted of prayers, the laying of a wreath, a eulogy by Mayor Wes Wise and sacred music at the Kennedy Memorial.

Kennedy was slain Nov. 22, 1963, while leading a parade to the Dallas Trade Mart where he was to speak.

Layoffs Soar

DETROIT (UPI) — The number of U.S. and Canadian auto workers handed pink slips in advance of Christmas soared to 200,000 yesterday.

Ford Motor Co. and American Motors announced a total of 40,000 additional layoffs because of slumping sales.

22 Indicted

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — A federal grand jury has indicted 22 persons on charges of defrauding Bethlehem Steel Corp. stockholders by siphoning off at least $10 million earmarked for plant construction. Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Kieser said yesterday indictments on mail fraud and conspiracy charges were returned against employees of the steel firm and Walsh Construction Corp., of New York City, the general contractor for a long-range building program at the firm's Burns Harbor, Ind. plant. Kieser said at least $10 to $12 million allegedly was siphoned off from funds appropriated for plant construction.

Bombings

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — Bombers struck at Irish-owned businesses in England today in bitter revenge against an Irish Republican Army attack killing 19 persons and injuring 184 in two tavern explosions. In Northern Ireland, three people died of gunshot wounds and security forces said at least one of the killings was in revenge for the fatal blasts two days ago.

Foran Arrested

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman John F. Foran, chairman of the powerful Ways and Means Committee, was arrested yesterday on a drunken driving charge. He was released on his own recognizance after he was booked in San Francisco.

Considers Running

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Former U.S. Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., said last night he will decide by the first of the year whether to seek the 1976 Democratic nomination for president. "I'm leaning like the Tower of Pisa," Harris said, but he added "I am very much encouraged so far."

PLO Enters New Phase With Recognition By U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The Palestine Liberation Organization began a new phase of its existence today, armed with U.N. recognition of its legitimacy and a vow to continue its guerrilla struggle.

The General Assembly last night concluded its 10-day debate on Palestine by overwhelmingly voting 89-8 with 37 abstentions to endorse creation of an independent nation in the Middle East for the refugees uprooted by the birth of Israel 26 years ago.

The United States and Israeli voted against the resolution that supported the right of Palestinian refugees to return to homes "from which they have been displaced and uprooted."

The assembly also voted to give the Yasser Arafat-led PLO guerrillas permanent observer status at the United Nations, a decision many diplomats said opens the way for all freedom movements to gain representation.

PLO officials said that while they welcomed the worldwide support in the General Assembly, they would not drop their armed struggle.

"Without the military struggle, we would not have achieved what we have," said delegation spokesman Nabil Shaath. "If we now stop on the resolutions, the chances are we will be allowed to sit there and be forgotten. So far we have not liberated one inch of our territory."

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah told the assembly after the vote, "The sun appears to have set on the United Nations."

He said that despite the votes, "at no time has the people of Israel felt more certain of the justice of its own cause than now. At no time has it been more steadfast and more united in warding off the assault of the forces of darkness than today."

Brown's 'Team' Is Taking Shape

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The "transition" team of Gov.-elect Edmund G. Brown Jr. is taking shape with major new appointments, including a former nun, a college roommate and a man who won the $64,000 question when he was 11 years old.

Brown announced 14 appointments yesterday drawing together a youthful group of women, ethnic minorities, business executives, educators lawyers and one labor union official.

Nearly half of the new advisers came from the Democrat's paid election staff, and the remainder were campaign volunteers.

Eight of the appointees will serve as a committee to help the 36-year-old Brown fill hundreds of patronage government jobs. Chief of the group is Gray Davis, 31, a Brown financial adviser and unsuccessful candidate for state treasurer in the June Democratic primary.

To help Brown prepare the upcoming $10 billion-plus state budget, he named two advisers — Ed Hamilton, 35, a director of the 1970-71 New York City budget and former federal budget specialist; and Leonard Ross, 29, co-author of the top-selling book "The Best" and childhood winner of the $64,000 Question television quiz show.

Brown selected his campaign coordinator, Mary Jane Pew, as his adviser on educational affairs. She is a one-time nun and chairman of the history and government department at Immaculate Heart College.

Other members of the committee to screen appointments are J. Anthony Kline, 36, Brown's Yale Law School roommate and a San Francisco public law attorney; Leonard M. Grimes, 51, a Los Angeles vice president of the largest black-owned life insurance firm in the west, Golden State Mutual.

Also, Mario Obledo, 41, a Harvard Law School faculty member; Carlotta Herman Mellon, 28, history and women's studies professor at Pomona College.

And, Herman Sillas, 40, an attorney who ran unsuccessfully in the Democratic primary to succeed Brown as secretary of state; A. Thomas Hickey, 33, president of a life insurance company; and Rose Bird, 38, a Stanford University law professor.

Two campaign aides and an official of the Operating Engineers Union were named to assist the appointments committee.

They are Ken Erwin, 53, a staff member of the engineers union Local 3 in San Francisco; Buff McDannel, 28, a former urban planner; and Agnes Barling, 25, a former administrative assistant to Brown as secretary of state.

Wine-Making Class Crowded

DAVIS (UPI) — officials at the University of California campus here are worried that too many students are becoming interested in wine making.

The department of viticulture and enology, the only one in the nation to combine teaching of grape growing and wine making, reported today that 140 students are enrolled in upper division classes — the highest enrollment ever. "we're naturally delighted that there are so many students who want to learn more about wines and how they are made," said A. Dinsmoor Webb, department chairman.

"But right now we're getting a little overcrowded in the department. I also worry because there may not be enough jobs available for the ones who graduate," he added.

Reagan Set To Stump For System

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan says he will "preach the gospel" of the free enterprise system when he leaves office at the end of the year.

"I feel strongly that we have proved the system works but the free enterprise system is in greater danger than ever before, at least during my lifetime," Reagan said yesterday.

"So I'm going to hit the sawdust trail. I'm going to write, employ radio and television and preach the gospel."

Reagan told the Bay Area Republican Alliance that in order to beat inflation "a cooling of the economy and some rise of unemployment" would be necessary.

The governor said former President Nixon had beaten inflation but did not hold out long enough.

"Very few people realized President Nixon had won the battle in 1970-71. Inflation had dropped from 6.1 to 2.8 and if he had just held out a little while longer, inflation would have been defeated."

VA, FHA Interest Rates Drop Monday

The reduction was announced yesterday by Department of Housing and Urban Development Secretary James T. Lynn.

FIRSTHAND AID — John Duff is Veteran's Administration representative on campus at Indian Valley Colleges, Novato.

Vet Administrator Aids At Indian Valley

Dressed in denim pants, an open shirt and cowboy boots, John Duff appears to be a student as he sits at his desk in the corner of an office at Indian Valley Colleges in Novato.

The 31-year-old Air Force veteran, however, is an employee of the Veterans' Administration and is on the campus to help students who are veterans straighten out the wrinkles in the red tape that delays GI Bill payments.

There are about 220 veterans attending the colleges full-time and about 360 in all, and the age range is from "21 to over 50," he said.

Duff, who works on the campus three days a week, said the GI payments often mean survival for students and that delays cause real hardship.

"The major difference between World War II and now is that it (the GI Bill) was subsistence thence and now it is assistance," he said. Unlike the prewar days, the payments now are "not enough to live on and go to school.

"The cost of living and the cost of books is killing people," he concluded.

"Mostly, it's human error," he said, that causes check delays, with the veterans themselves, the school and the VA each sometimes playing a part.

It was heavy criticism of delays in VA educational benefits that led to the creation of Duff's job, he said. A panel appointed by former President Nixon to study the problems recommended that the Veterans' Administration put representatives on campuses so that veterans wouldn't have to deal with a larger bureaucracy.

Since May when the program started, more than 1,400 veterans have been hired to be campus representatives, and the majority of them are Vietnam vets, according to Duff.

Duff himself has experienced the problems of student veterans as he attended the University of Nevada on the GI Bill.

In the 1970-72 period when he went to college, he had to work part-time as a bartender to supplement the $230-a-month benefits for himself, his wife and son.

A veteran with two dependents now receives $298 a month, and there is a bill pending in Congress to raise that by 23 per cent, Duff said. The bill also would provide loans up to $600.

"Now the VA has no provision for emergency loans," Duff said. In emergencies, "the school helps if it can, and then we try the Red Cross," Duff added.

Duff, who works out of the regional office in San Francisco, said he and Ray Turner, veterans' assistance clerk under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's program, are working toward a veterans' organization on the campus.

New School Director To Be Introduced

Alan Pinkerton, newly appointed director of the Valley Christian School of Marin, will be introduced to the public at a reception at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at Fellowship Hall of Valley Baptist Church, 3 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

The school, operated by Valley Baptist Church, has about 100 pupils enrolled in first through eighth grades. On recent Stanford Achievement Tests, the pupils scored above national averages in all except fourth grade, and were at the national average in that grade. Eighth graders were nine months — a full school year — above the national average.

The school emphasizes "four R's": reading, 'riting, 'rithmetic, and righteousness. Daily Bible study is part of the curriculum.

School May Return to Ballot Box

The Mill Valley School District may try again next spring to get voters to approve a higher spending limit per pupil.

School Supt. Peter Palches will recommend that action to the school board Monday at 8 p.m. at Homestead School as part of a report on districts finances for next year.

Earlier this week, Palches mailed district trustees a seven-page report on the district's financial crisis.

The district's Measure J, which this month lost by only about 140 votes, would have allowed the Mill Valley School System to spend $200 more per student per year from 1975-76 through 1977-78. With that increase, next year's district tax rate would have risen about 13 cents over this year's rate of $3.30 per $100 assessed valuation.

Palches's report notes that the district will have to plan for extensive budget slashing for next year just in case the spending limit measure fails again.

He predicts that the district will have to cut $355,000 from its 1975-76 spending in order to balance the budget and preserve reserves of about $150,000.

Even with this heavy cut in the district's $4 million — plus budget, trustees can only grant 4 per cent salary increases next year and will have to drop seven people from its present teaching staff of 167, he said.

Palches points out that direct personnel costs make up over 95 per cent of district spending. "There is no escaping the conclusion that substantial cuts will have to come from the (people) categories, and this will hurt," he said. "When we reduce people, we reduce direct educational services to students."

He then goes on to list about 40 possible ways to cut back, ranging from closing an elementary school, at an annual savings of about $70,000, to trimming paper costs by $100 by using both sides of every sheet (as does his report.)

Other economies listed include dropping: Participation in the county's college-for-kids program, to save $440; one of four custodians, $8,630; the middle school foreign language program, $50,968; field trips, $1,000; two nurses, $25,484; the music program, $50,968; outdoor education, $8,000; bus transportation, $50,00; telephone costs, $16,335; or insurance coverage, $22,940.

Palches said that March 1 is the deadline for deciding what administrators to lay off while March 15 is the deadline for laying off teachers.

He notes the two possible election dates when the district may try again for voter approval for higher spending are March 4 and May 27.

New Music Program Due At Sonoma

A program of contemporary music will be presented at 8 p.m. Dec. 2 in room 119 of Ives Hall at Sonoma State College in Rohnert Park.

Director David Sloss said the concert will include works which illustrate the various trends in 20th Century music.

A Steve Reich composition for hanging microphones will be performed, as will a John Cage piece for 12 radios.

"This concert will involve extensive use of electronics," Sloss said, "including synethsizers and prepared pianos as well as conventional instruments."

Most of the performers are members of the Sonoma County Composers Forum.

The program will include original pieces by forum members Judith Sloss, Jon Wobber, Don Walker, Will Johnson, Curt Paulson and Wayne Organ.

Session Cancelled

The Novato Planning Commission has cancelled its meeting scheduled for Monday because most of the items on the agenda are to be continued, according to secretary Juanita Gibson.

DEMOLITION JOB

California Highway Patrol officer Greg Pitcher inspects damage to the entrance wall at Bel Marin Keys and to the car driven by William Leonard Leahy, 28, of Novato. Leahy was still sitting behind the steering wheel when officers arrived shortly after 9 p.m. yesterday, but he was uninjured, investigators said. He was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of drunken driving, and posted $375 bail to appear Thursday in Marin Municipal Court.

Juvenile Commission Asks Junking Of Revamp Plan

The Marin County Juvenile Justice Commission has recommended junking an architect's plan to remodel the senior boys unit at juvenile hall.

In a report to county supervisors, the commission said the plan perpetuates the maximum security atmosphere at the facility which critics say resembles a prison.

Until a new plan is drafted, the commission said the county should postpone seeking about $130,000 in federal funds to finance the renovations.

The commission found the plan, drafted by the Tiburon firm of Crawford and Banning, "does not reflect the rehabilitation and treatment philosophy" that the group would like to see in the hall's program.

The senior boys unit is about 13 years old and features a corridor of small cells behind locked metal doors. Commissioner Jody Ann Becker said the architect's plan offers little but "cosmetic" improvements. "The locks will remain on the doors," she said.

The commission's report, prepared by its alternatives to juvenile hall subcommittee, protests that the commission was excluded from meetings where the architect was given his directions.

It repeats the groups past proposals that a major portion of the hall should be condemned and that the county should make more use of foster and group homes for troubled youths.

If remodeling is done, it continued, "most of the senior boys unit should be remodeled on a minimum security basis."

The report said federal law now mandates diversion, prevention and treatment programs for juveniles and added that facilities should match programs.

2 Motorists Booked After 3-Car Crash

Two motorists involved in a three-car collision yesterday were arrested on suspicion of drunken driving and one of them was hospitalized, according to Petaluma police.

William K. Pastryk, 48, of 515 Kuck Lane, was treated for head injuries at Hillcrest Hospital, then transferred to Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco, where he was reported in good condition today.

Officers said Pastryk's auto and one driven by Robert M. Nelson Jr., 19, of 11535 Sutton Road, Petaluma, collided headon on Western Avenue at the Liberty Street intersection. Pastryk's auto then spun into a third auto driven by Douglas B. Provincher, 30, of Petaluma, causing minor damage but no injuries. The collision occurred at 5:44 p.m.

Nelson was booked into Sonoma County Jail; Pastryk was booked in absentia.

Ex-Commander To Discuss Spanish War

A former commander of the American volunteers who fought against the Fascists in the Spanish Civil War will speak at 7 p.m. Dec. 4 in room 1002 of Stevenson Hall at Sonoma State College.

The talk, by Major Milton Woolff, former commander of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade, is sponsored by the college history department and the U.S. Committee for a Democratic Spain.

A film on the war also will be shown and a discussion is planned on whether Congress should renew an agreement between the U.S. and Spain which allows U.S. military bases there.

Admission will be $1.

ference hall with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in apparent private discussion of their next move in the summit.

Ford and Brezhnev issued a joint statement which said the talks had reviewed "the general state of relations between the U.S.S.R. and the United States.

"The two leaders consider the improvement in United States-Soviet relations, which has taken place in recent years, to be a very important development," the statement said.

"Having noted this successful development, they reaffirmed their mutual determination to make all necessary efforts to give it an irreversible character in the interests of peoples of both countries and of strengthening international peace."

The Soviet news agency Tass said discussion of new limits on the nuclear arsenals of the Soviet Union and the United States played a major part in the talks.

Contrary to speculation circulating at the conference site, a spokesman for Ford said he knew of no plans for the President to postpone his scheduled departure for Washington early tomorrow.

Cyprus May Face New Crisis

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Archbishop Makarios' decision to return to Cyprus in the next two weeks raises the threat of new attacks by the 2,000 gunmen of the EOKA-B underground who helped to drive him from the presidency of Cyprus four months ago.

Acting President Glafcos Clerides conferred with Makarios in London this week and tried to convince him that he should delay his return. But the archbishop announced that he would come home by Dec. 7 "holding an olive branch to work for the unity of the people."

Suit Set Aside

security measures for protection of Richardson Highlands residents. "Because of the proximity to Marin City, security of the individual townhouses will be a serious consideration. Doors should be provided with dead bolt type locks . . . electronic security measures . . . (which) can be connected to the Marin City sheriff's office."

Walker and Lee "strongly suggests" that the model townhouses and other units in initial construction be built on land overlooking Richardson Bay, rather than Marin City. "This area represents the most desirable portion of the property . . . and would establish the project as a known success."

Design features described as "lavish" also are urged to attract "a particular type of person," including "single swinger . . . retirees. etc."

Flu Shots Available

Free flu vaccinations are now available to persons 55 and older and those of all ages who suffer from chronic illnesses, Marin public health officials said yesterday.

Previously, only persons 65 and older were eligible.

But Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht said the expanded program is possible because not all the vaccine has been used. The vaccinations will be provided through mid-December.

The vaccine is paid for by the state, though the county clinic is accepting donations of up to $1 to help pay administrative costs.

Clinic hours for the vaccinations are Monday through Friday from 1 to 4 p.m. at the county health laboratory, 920 Grand Avenue, San Rafael.

Those who are allergic to eggs or who have had bad reactions from influenza vaccine in the past should consult their private physicians, she said.

General Plan Meeting Slated

The Belvedere City Council and planning commission will meet Monday at 9 p.m. at city hall to decide on a schedule to follow in adopting the city's new general plan.

A first draft on the plan was given to the city last week by San Francisco planner Gennette E. Sonnesyn.

The two groups also will discuss the plan's recommendation that the city make it easier to set up for residents to establish "mother-in-law" apartments in single family homes.

Before the 9 p.m. session, the planning commission will meet separately at 8 p.m. to discuss a request for permission to rebuild Vogue Cleaners and a Chevron station. Both these Tiburon Boulevard businesses were damaged in a recent fire.

Apathy Party Gets No Cheers

BERKELEY (UPI) — The Apathy Party at the University of California held its first campus rally yesterday.

Some 500 students showed up, but none cheered.

OBITUARIES

GERTRUDE VINCENT

A Mass of Christian Burial for Gertrude Vincent of San Rafael, will be celebrated Monday at 11 a.m. at Saint Raphael's Catholic Church.

Mrs. Vincent died Thursday at a local hospital after a long illness. She was 62.

A native of Brooklyn, N.Y., Mrs. Vincent lived in New York until moving to Marin eight years ago. She lived with her son Ronald E. Vincent at 215 Bayview Street.

Mrs. Vincent was an employee of Hearst Publications in New York, handling subscriptions for the firm.

She was a former volunteer for the tuberculosis association.

In addition to her son, she is survived by a sister, Agnes K. Bailey, and a brother, William J. Kraft both of New York.

Rosary will be recited tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Keaton's Mortuary.

Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

FRED TURNER

Fred D. Turner of Sausalito, retired frozen foods broker and 20-year resident of Marin, died Thursday at a local hospital following a long illness.

Turner, 77, was a native of Pocatello, Idaho, who came to California in 1912. He was a 1916 graduate of the University of California where he was a member of Pi Sigma Kappa fraternity.

Turner was a veteran of World War I.

He leaves no immediate family.

Funeral will be Tuesday at noon at Russell and Gooch Funeral Home in Mill Valley. Burial will be in Pocatello.

MARY DRAPER

Mary Draper of San Rafael died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness. She was 65.

Born in Valley Ford, Mrs. Draper moved to San Francisco as a young women. She graduated from St. Mary's Hospital School of Nursing there and worked as a nurse at St. Mary's and Notre Dame hospitals until her retirement two years ago.

The wife of Laurence Draper of San Rafael, she and her husband lived in San Francisco for some 40 years. The couple came to San Rafael two years ago.

Mrs. Draper is survived by her husband, two sons, Laurence B. Draper and Paul W. Draper, both of San Rafael; two sisters, Rena Fillman of Vallejo and Elsie Klumann of San Mateo; two brothers, Ranaldo Arbini of Healdsburg and Mervin Arbini of Truckee; and five grandsons.

Mass of Christian Burial will be at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Isabella's Church in Terra Linda. Rosary will be at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary. Burial will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

MRS. MATHEWSON

Jeanie Forrester Mathewson, 84, a 20-year resident of San Rafael, died Thursday in a local convalescent hospital after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Mathewson, who arrived in San Francisco in 1920 from her native Scotland, was a retired San Francisco school teacher.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. John Gorevan of San Anselmo and Harriet Moore of Brownsville, Yuba County; a brother, George Forrester of Devonshire, England, and a grandchild. Her husband, James S. Mathewson preceded her in death.

Private funeral was today. Burial was in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

MRS. GUERIN

Marie Caroline Guerin of San Anselmo, a 60-year resident of Marin County, died yesterday in a local hospital after a brief illness. She was 82.

Mrs. Guerin was born in Pennsylvania, was married and widowed as a young woman and never remarried.

During World War II, she worked in Bay Area shipyards, and later worked in a number of department stores and offices in Marin County. She has no immediate survivors.

She was a member of St. Rita's Church, Fairfax.

A Mass of the Christian Burial will be celebrated at St. Rita's Church at 9:30 a.m. Monday, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Rail Debris On The Agenda

The problem of debris at the Northwestern Pacific Railroad bridge over Novato Creek will be discussed by the Novato Flood Control Zone advisory board at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Lu Sutton School library, 1800 Center Road.

Lewis E. Fredrickson, assistant county flood control engineer, said the railroad may be in violation of the flood control district debris ordinance since it dumps debris from the bridge area downstream.

Illich Named Chamber President

Milo N. (Mike) Illich, Cub Scout leader and owner of the Hobby Tree in Corte Madera Shopping Center, is the new president of the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce.

The 42-year-old Illich, who was chamber secretary last year, was elected this week to head the business group. He will take over the president's duties Jan. 18, succeeding Omar E. McNally Jr.

Illich's involvement with the chamber began when he bought the hobby store. He had been personnel manager for the Western hemisphere for Santa Fe-Pomeroy International, an oil drilling, construction and concrete casting firm with an office in San Francisco. Weary of traveling for the firm and facing a transfer to Orange County, he quit.

The biggest problem facing the chamber, in Illich's words, is "communications with the town," especially Corte Madera's board of design and planning commission. "There has been too much personal opinion in their decisions," he said. "They say they don't like this color or where that door is. They should stick more closely to their function."

Another problem is that "for 15 years, we have been unable to finish development of the Corte Madera Center. It generates 15 to 20 per cent of the town's revenue, and if it were done, it could add another 10 per cent."

Illich plans to conduct an energetic membership drive for the chamber, which now has 80 businesses, about 40 per cent of the town's total.

He also plans to continue two of the chamber's most famous functions, the Fourth of July celebration and the Easter Egg Hunt. "This really is a dedicated group we have," he said. "Some chambers are not as spirited."

Illich has lived in Larkspur, for 11 years, with his wife, Karen, and three children.

Born in Chicago, he came to the West Coast as a Navy lieutenant.

Illich is adult leadership commissioner for the Cub Scouts and teaches an evening course on personnel management and communications for supervisors at City College of San Francisco.

Last year he was president of the Corte Madera Merchants Association.

Supervisors To Ask Bending Bus Funds

Purchase of 15 unusual buses which bend in the middle and carry twice as many passengers as conventional coaches, was all but assured yesterday by Golden Gate Bridge District directors. (Another bridge district on page 1).

By a unanimous vote, the board amended the district's application for more federal transit money, a first step toward purchase of the buses which cost $100,000 each.

Grants from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration will pay 80 per cent of the cost of the coaches, leaving the bridge district's share at $300,000.

However, several district directors promised to fight purchase of the buses unless they are convinced the district also can afford additional employees to man them. Their purchase would bring the district fleet to 265 buses.

Bus Transit Mgr. H. Donald White strongly recommended the action, saying federal transportaion officials were pushing for quick action by the bridge district and other transit operators around the nation, urging them to try the unusual coaches.

San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras termed the buses "a good investment," especially since the federal grant will pay most of their cost.

White has suggested the bendable coaches be used on routes to the Larkspur ferry terminal as well as for some of the popular commuter runs to San Francisco from Southern Marin.

Golden Gate Bridge District directors also:

TIRES — Accepted the low bid of Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. of Akron, Ohio, to lease bus tires for $488 a year per bus, or $107,525 a year over the next five years for the current fleet of 220 buses. The lease will be expanded to cover the 30 buses now on order.

FERRY — Approved a $125,000 lease for 66 years with the San Francisco Port Commission for a ferry terminal at the Ferry Building.

BUS STOP — Appropriated $10,000 to improve the southbound bus stop at the toll plaza. It will be relocated to an enlarged traffic island at the Merchant Road exit.

REPORT — Accepted the low bid of James H. Barry Co. of San Francisco to print 3,000 copies of the district's annual report for $3,500, and asked the rules and policy committee to consider whether the expense should be continued in future years.

INSURANCE — Accepted the low bid of Marsh & McLennan of San Francisco for comprehensive liability insurance coverage on the bus fleet for an estimated total annual cost of $157,400. The cost is $100,000 less than previously because of addition of a $50,000 deductible provision.

A Consumer Awareness Series Set At Redwood

A series of consumer awareness seminars will begin Monday at Redwood High School for senior class students and the public.

Speakers from the attorney general's office, Better Business Bureau, Marin Consumer Hot Line, Marin Human Relations Department and private firms will cover a wide range of topics in the seminars sponsored by the school's homemaking, social studies and business departments and the consumer hot line.

Monday's session will concentrate on choosing, financing and keeping a car repaired. On Tuesday the topics will be advertising fraud, door-to-door sales tactics and consumer protection. On Wednesday, the legal rights and responsibilities of 18-year-olds will be discussed.

The seminars will be held from 8 a.m. to 12:40 p.m. Rooms 200 to 203 at the school.

The seminars will be attended by students in the school's senior government, business and survival for singles classes, as well as the public, according to Sue Chelini, chairman.

1,500 Face Ax In NY

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City plans to fire 1,510 employees and impose a hiring freeze on all departments in what Mayor Beame calls "the tightest austerity program" since the Depression.

Other actions toward bridging a $330 million budget gap include the disbanding of 12 fire companies, reductions in rush hour Staten Island ferry service and increases in various fees.

The mayor said he realized his plan "is going to be unpopular and painful."

Highway 101 Project Slated

A portion of Highway 101 in Northern Marin will be resurfaced during fiscal 1975-76, the California Highway Commission announced today.

The $189,000 project will include approximately three miles between the Miller Creek overcrossing and Ignacio Boulevard.

4 Injured In Traffic Accidents

Four persons were injured, one of them critically, in two traffic accidents yesterday.

Jonathan Brendon Larsen, 20, of Novato was reported in critical condition today at Marin General Hospital with head injuries. And Robin Goslin, 24, of San Francisco was reported in good condition at the hospital with fractures of the face and knee.

Larsen was a passenger in a car driven by Michael Warren Huntley, 20, of Petaluma. The Highway Patrol said Huntley's auto was eastbound on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard near Novato about midnight when it went out of control on a curve and overturned.

Huntley and another passenger, Gary Michael Wandt, 21, of Novato were treated for minor injuries following the crash.

Goslin was hurt when his car struck a tree on Shoreline Highway at about 6 p.m.

You can save enough money at this adult community to retire on.

If the cost of living is putting a dent in your retirement plans, relax. There are still a few great home bargains, if you know where to look. Temelec Greens is one of them.

It's near Sonoma, just 40 miles north of the Golden Gate Bridge. And it has just about everything you could want in a home and in a place to live.

The 2-bedroom, 2-bath villa homes are built in the Spanish tradition, with tile roofs and private garden courtyards. The kitchens have built-in appliances and crafted hard-wood cabinets. The spacious living rooms come with custom masonry fireplaces. The master bedroom suites have elegant dressing areas. There's wall-to-wall carpeting, and sliding glass doors to the patios. Every home has a separate garage. And the Homeowners Association takes care of the landscaping and maintenance of the grounds.

At our price of $29,950 to $32,950, the homes would be great bargains anywhere. But when you consider what comes with them, you'll want to come see everything for yourself.

Because when you move into Temelec Greens, an entire, historic estate is yours to enjoy. And unlike some other adult communities that charge you stiff monthly fees for clubhouse facilities, here it's all covered by the Homeowners Association fee of $30 a month.

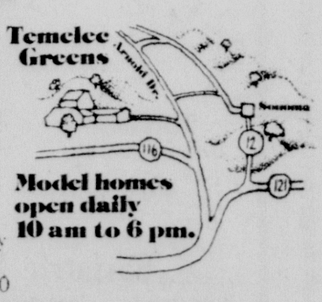

There's a swimming pool, a picnic place, colorful formal gardens, fountains, lily ponds and old stone gazebos. Inside Temelec Hall (built in 1858), you can play billiards, browse through the library, meet friends for bridge or attend a social gathering. And only five minutes up the road, you can tee off at the Sonoma National Golf Course.

So if you or your spouse are over 45 (and your children living with you are over 18), take a drive to our part of the Wine Country and stroll through our model homes. Then visit Temelec Hall.

You'll find that the good old days of reasonable prices, fine workmanship, clear air and secure surroundings are not very far away after all.

Take the El Verano exit (Arnold Drive) off Highway 121 near Sonoma, and look for our signs.

New, Natural But Adaptable Hair Look For All Seasons

By PAT BALMES

In Marin County this season, anything goes in hairstyles — short to long, rollers to blow-dry cuts. It's your choice, just as your skirt length is.

Hairdos are being updated with flippy brush-back bangs and soft waves a la Greta Garbo. Short cuts, like the duck tail, have customized napes to suit hairlines. The adventurous may sport a headful of bouncy little curls, set on tiny permanent wave rods. Teen-agers cling to their long hair, but are having it shaped into different designs and styled with brush-back bangs.

Teased, bouffant hairdos are worn out and so is the shag.

SLOWLY, the most important national fashion trend, the fluffy, smooth blow-dry look, is winning increased popularity in Marin. The wholesale conversion from rollers is overdue here; blow-drying has been popular in San Francisco for two or three years.

"The farther you get away from the city, the longer the message takes to get up there," says hairstylist John Moller, who worked in San Francisco salons for six years.

"The farther north you go in Marin, the farther back in hair styles you go. In San Francisco (and Marin) some shops do not use rollers anymore," added the manager of John's Hairstyling in Sausalito.

Besides conventional sets, Moller does blow-dry cuts, gives set-less blow-dry permanents and uses a curling iron for styling details. He teaches customers to do their own blower styling and sells them the equipment.

A BLOWER COSTS about $25 and a curling iron is $12. Also needed are the quick blow-dry permanent and a good acid balance shampoo and conditioner to prevent hair from becoming dry, Moller said. To achieve the fluffy look, hair must be washed almost every day.

The blow-dry cut is the most important change since the shag which introduced different lengths (a good cut for hair that is too thick or too thin). It's the shag with the back cut off.

Moller maintains the blow-dry cut is cheaper for his customers than once-a-week hair set appointments because they can take care of their hair at home. They need only come every four or five weeks for a cut.

THE NATURAL CUT has attracted more men to his shop; they represent 35 per cent of John's Hairstyling's business. Men want color to hide grey hair and blow-dry permanents, too, he said.

Beauty shops have stolen from barbers the patronage of men who want their hair cut special lengths for the natural look.

According to Stephen Ball of Organic Hair Care Center in Mill Valley, "Long hair for men is out. It's now short with a mustache, beard and sideburns."

At his shop for both men and women, Ball uses his original fresh herbs formulas, worked out by chemists and herbalists, to condition hair. There is nothing in his shop "that my children could not eat," he says.

Ball blends each customer's conditioner according to whether his hair is dry or oily, and to what color stain is needed for highlighting. He sells his herbal products to customers to use at home.

He uses scissors, blower and curling iron in his shop, but no rollers or chemicals.

The blow-dry cut is a uni-sex hairstyle, a basic cut appropriate for men as well as women.

MEN ARE BECOMING honest enough to admit that they are vain, according to Judy Warren at Gazebo Hair Fashions in San Rafael. Besides her women customers, Judy has male clients who come for blow-dry cuts. She has given a couple of men permanents to achieve the new curly look.

"My husband's hair was dull, so I did 'finger painting' and gave it sun streaks," said the Gazebo manager.

At her plush shop (a bit farther north than John's Hairstyling) Mrs. Warren caters to many style preferences. One of her stylists is a specialist in hair straightening and Afros.

"Blower cuts are big, but there are a lot of styles. Some shops specialize. If my customers want a higher set and style, they are still with it," she said.

The teased look is out; the natural look is in. Even the natural look takes a little teasing. Some of her customers need a hair style with a little height, she said.

WHEN A CUSTOMER, who already has a becoming style, wants a change, Mrs. Warren suggests color. Even natural-look devotees want color. Mrs. Warren paints on variations of coloring for a dimensional effect and to accentuate the hair's movement.

She uses "spiking" to vary the blow-dry cut's smooth, fluffy silhouette. She washes the hair, sprays it with hair set lotion and makes soft rolls with a comb. The hair dries in five minutes under a dryer, without rollers.

"There is no one trend. Remember when whatever the style was, you had to have it? Now we can wear a mini, midi or floor length skirt. There is a new look, but it can be adaopted to fit the person and her lifestyle. Women will never let themselves be dictated to again, nor men," says the Gazebo manager.

DRESSING UP BLOW DRY CUT — Judy Warren, manager of Gazebo Hair Fashions in San Rafael, dramatizes the simple lines of blow-dry cuts. Here, she "spikes" loops into Judy Damazio's hair with a rat tail comb for more puff and style. Hair is washed, sprayed with hair set lotion and each lock is combed into a loop without using rollers. After five minutes under a dryer, her hair is ready to be brushed into place. The quick wash and set takes 20 minutes.

FINGER PAINTING BLOW DRY CUT — With bleach and tint on her brush, Judy Warren paints three muted colors onto Guity Chow's blow-dry cut for natural-looking variations in shading and to dramatize the movement of the hair. Brunettes are painted with light colors (Moon Bronzing) and blonds are streaked with darker colors (Sun Glazing).

Financing Worthwhile Endeavors An Increasing Marin Concern

By BETTY FROST

Financing worthy endeavors to meet community needs is an increasing concern to Marin volunteers.

For some activities foundation funds may be available. Taking the mystery out of this whole subject is "The Bread Game" published by Glide publications in San Francisco, and edited by Herb Allen, director Regional Young Adult Project. The first edition came out in 1973 and has been revised and updated this year.

The key to approaching those who have resources by those who need help is "doing your homework," according to the publication. There are 26,000 foundations of various sizes and orientation in the United States. Information on the kinds of foundations and their areas of interest are available at the Business Branch of the San Francisco Public Library, 530 Kearny Street, San Francisco.

Once research has disclosed which kinds of foundations may be interested in the kind of project the organization has in mind, there are specific suggestions for contacting them.

THESE INCLUDE a concise presentation, demonstrated ability to implement the proposed program, specific information on where the original funds which started the project came from and preparation for a personal interview. Both the long range goals, such as dealing with drug crises, the problems of senior citizens, or specific medical problems of children should be detailed, and specific information as to the program, the budget, and the previous expereince of the people involved should be included.

Legal and accounting requirements are discussed. The book is constantly being revised, according to editor Allen, "to update specific information on new legislation affecting foundations and shifts in the foundation world."

Originally published as an aid for the Third World community, Allen has found that recently more foundations with conservative trustees are willing to assist with liberal projects.

The beginning School in Marin City is one Marin organization which has already benefitted from "The Bread Game." School officials were lucky

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

19th Century Mother Is Problem For Her Daughter

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I'm overprotected. My mother picks what she thinks is best for me and it usually isn't.

She made me get my long hair cut short and dumb-looking. She makes me wear dresses below my knees and ankle-high straight pants. She likes only boys who have very short hair and wear ties and look so conservative they're unreal.

I can't use any kind of make-up. Other girls wear dungarees to school, but it's always an old-lady dress for me.

If I bring home a boy (not often!) she has to check out his parents, which ends it right there.

Every time I try to put in a word about one of her "suggestions," (to ruin me, of course) I get shut up fast.

Do any other girls have mothers like mine, and if so, what did they do to change them. (Or did they?) — NEEDS HELP DESPERATELY

DEAR NHD:

According to our mail, many girls have parents like yours, and unhappily, they're often as unchangeable as rocks.

Sometimes, however, a relative, friend, or even a spouse can nudge them into the 20th century.

Don't you have an understanding adult close by who will take your side of the argument?

LAST WORD

enough to have a copy of the first edition last year when they were trying to improve playground equipment and provide scholarships for the multi-ethnic school, located at St. Andrew's church in Marin City.

SUSAN SHEA, who was on the board of directors of the Beginning School as fund-raising and recruitment chairman, recalls the small emergency grant of $1,000 which allowed the school to "stay afloat." Nesbit Crutchfield, Marin City leader, who was also on the beginning School's board, and Jeri Coleman, school director, helped the group through the foundation maze.

Because the Beginning School, which offers a morning session for 40 pre-school age children, was able to fulfill its obligation on the first grant, the Pacific Change, a San Francisco-based organization which obtains funds from private donors for agencies with educational goals, made an additional grant. The $5,200 grant was allocated for needed improvements and long-range goals of the school which fosters the interaction of parents and children from diverse political, economic and racial backgrounds.

"The Bread Game," which sounds like it might be a cook book, does provide a lot of information on the often missing ingredient — funding for worthwhile volunteer enterprises.

RAP:

A recent letter quoted the seventh commandment, "Honour thy father and thy mother." How strange it is that everyone knows that verse, especially parents; but don't know that there are verses in the Bible about parents' conduct too. For example: Colossians 3:21— "Fathers provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged." — ESTELLE

RAP:

I've been going with this guy for over a month. We had a lot of fun together when we were just friends, but now I find him very boring. All that love and affection and stuff, it's just not for me — with him anyway.

Maybe I'm not the demonstrative type, but I can't stand being smothered with love. I've got to be free.

How can you tell a fellow this when he's so good to you, spoils you, buys anything for you, and yet I'm — BORED AND OBLIGATED

BORED:

There's no easy way to break up with a nice guy. But if you're sure he isn't right for you, then make the break fast and clean, before he falls any harder. — HELEN

BORED:

Try "I'm not ready to be that serious," "You're too good for me — you'd be much happier with someone else." If these don't work, then come right out with "I've got to be free."

He'll recover, probably faster than you expect, which can hurt your pride a bit, right? — SUE

Aerosol Sprays On The Way Out

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — A Texas Agriculture Extension Service resource management specialist says aerosol hair sprays might be on the way out.

"Reports of malfunctions and health hazards with aerosol sprays have caused the industry to turn to pump-style bottles for hair spray," Janice Carberry said. "But hair sprays will have to be reformulated before they can be put into non-aerosol packages. Only 50 to 70 per cent of the spray is active ingredients. The rest is propellants."

She said that for years pump bottles were used for dispensing hair conditions and setting lotions but only recently have been considered for hair sprays. She said the cost of the pump-style sprays would be comparable to the aerosols.

Teachers Told How To Fight Sex Stereotypes In Class

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Teachers who want to rid their young pupils of rigid ideas about sex roles should ask them to act out familiar stories with a new twist, a report on sexism in schools says.

The teacher might ask the class to act out a princess rescuing a prince, a father taking care of the children while the mother works or girls playing baseball while the boys watch, the report suggests.

The Connecticut Public Interest Research Group, a student-supported organization inspired by Ralph Nader, has issued a handbook on how teachers and parents can stop sexism in elementary schools.

MARTHA COHEN, author of the booklet, says "The whole elementary school system is unknowingly geared toward limiting children's opportunities. The fact that 85 per cent of the elementary principals are male is not a good example for encouraging children that jobs are open equally to everyone.

Ms. Cohen, ajunior sociology major at Trinity College, says teachers must challenge rigid stereotypes that serve only to limit a child's development, to preclude gentleness in a boy or aggressiveness in a girl.

She suggests that teachers use "he" and "she" interchangeably in stories to stimulate discussion among children about characters and their sex roles.

TEACHERS SHOULD encourage girls to use manipulative materials such as screwdrivers and hammers and encourage boys to cook, sew and play house with girls, she says.

Ms. Cohen also suggests dividing the class into groups. One would observe "real life" and report to the class on such topics as how many girls wear slacks to school, how many mothers of class members work and how many fathers do household chores or care for children.

The other group would study television, magazines and textbooks and report on how these media view women and men.

SCHOOL CHILDREN would also enjoy visits from parents who work in nontraditional jobs, such as men who are nurses or women who are lawyers, she says.

Parents should examine textbooks and complain to school officials and textbook publishers about books that show girls using their mathematical prowess to measure flour for cupcakes, while boys are shown cutting book shelves or copying house plans, she adds.

Parents should also watch television programs their children see and compare the male and female characters with real people they know, according to the report.

MS. COHEN believes the report — which gives pointers for parents and teachers, lists books and records and suggests teacher in-service training topics — is a resource to activate those changes boards of education are seeking to eliminate sex stereotyping.

She cited a recent resolution passed by the Hartford Board of Education urging that sex stereotyped programs and textbooks be discontinued.

Discussion Set On Child-Rearing

The Marin Jewish Community Center will sponsor a discussion, "Can One Raise Children As Jews Today?," Dec. 4 at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hochstaedter in San Anselmo.

The discussion will be led by Rabbi Jay M. Krause, assistant director of the Bureau of Jewish Education in San Francisco.

The discussion is part of the "Current Trend" series sponsored by the center. Cost is $2.

Cochairman of the under 35 group's party is Angela Tilin of Mill Valley.

Both the University of California and Stanford University bands will play at the party.

PIANIST GITA KARASIK and Maestro and Mrs. Sandor Salgo will be honored at a reception at the home of Marin symphony Association president Carole Berg of Kentfield, following the opening concert of the Marin Symphony at 7:30 p.m. Sunday evening at the Veterans Memorial Building.

Among other honored guests will be concertmaster Charles Meacham and Mrs. Meacham, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Rinaldi, Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Manfred Karasik, county supervisor and Mrs. Arnold Baptiste, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Caddell, Dr. and Mrs. Rubin Gold, Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard, members of the symphony board of directors and executive officers of the auxiliary.

A LUNCHEON and boutique fashion show in the Kentfield home of Annie Humber on Monday was a benefit for the Variety Club Blind Babies Foundation of Bay Area. Mrs. Humber and Betty Anderson of Kentfield were hostesses for the luncheon for 24 friends. Proceeds will go to the Variety Club's annual Christmas party for blind children.

Fashions were shown from the Beautiful Ideas boutique of San Anselmo, with makeup by Viviane Woodard.

Sausalitans who attended the Warehouse Wassail Preview last night went on to parties after viewing the English antiques displayed at a decorator's showroom. The event was a benefit for Christ Episcopal Church.

Messrs. and Mmes. George R. Chapman, James W. Smith and Robert M. Gunn were hosts for a large party at dinner at the Sausalito Yacht Club.

Guests who joined Mrs. Elaine Austin for cocktails and dinner at her home in Sausalito were Mr. and Mrs. James Wells, William Austin of Tiburon, and Richard Berryman of Sausalito.

Grape History To Be Told

Members of the Ina Coolbirth Circle from Marin will hear a talk tomorrow at 2 p.m. by Sam Elster, senior tour guide of Christian Brothers Winery.

The meeting will be held at the Marines Memorial Building, 609 Sutter Street in San Francisco.

Elster will speak on "History of Grapes and Poetry."

Boutique Slated In Fairfax

A Christmas arts and crafts boutique, featuring handcrafts from local artisans, will be held at the Fairfax Community Church on Friday, Saturday and Sunday next week (Nov. 29-30-Dec. 1) from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Toys, jewelry, ceramics, linens, Christmas decorations and ornaments, plants, baked goods and other gift items will be sold. Tickets will be offered on a crocheted afghan.

The church is at the corner of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Manor Drive in Fairfax.

Little Girl Look

Watch for the "little girl" look to new collections. Smocking is a favorite way to dress grownups as well as little misses. Smock at the neckline, smock at the yoke, both give a flattering line to the tall, slender figure. Not recommended for plumpies.

Holiday Bake Sale Slated

A holiday bake sale, sponsored by the Education for Childbirth Association, will be held Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Co-op Shopping Center, 71 Tamal Vista Boulevard in Corte Madera.

Home baked pies, cakes, breads and cookies will be for sale.

Proceeds will be used by the association to provide informational services to the community on family centered maternity care and child development, according to Cathi Aradi, publicity chairman.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Caretaker' Proves Somber

By JEFF GILLMAN

The Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts staged "The Caretaker" last night in a production which managed to evoke the somber and menacing atmosphere of the Harold Pinter play.

"The Caretaker" is a curious and tense work which demonstrates the way in which our destinies evolve through the ordinary events and relationships of our everyday existence.

There is one set: a dingy room in a west London flat. There are three characters, none of whom seem very important.

Yet somehow — in the tension created by the sheer existence of these unremarkable people with their mundane problems and experiences — Pinter provides some telling insights into the human predicament.

The great strength of the Mill Valley production was Jim Lucas' first rate performance as Davies. Lucas captures the monotony and silliness of the everyday speech of ordinary people which Pinter demonstrates with unerring ability. His Davies was wonderfully querulous, irritating and funny.

THE CARETAKER a play in three acts by Harold Pinter. Performed by the repertory company of the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts; directed by Nancy Ringler; production design and graphics by Bob Olson. Cast: Gabriel, Mick; Chris Mei, Aston; Jim Lucas, Davis. Performances on Nov. 29, Dec. 7, 13, and 21, at 8:30 p.m. at the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts, 267 Buena Vista Ave. (Golf Club House) Mill Valley.

Chris Mei as Aston manages to absorb the audience into his small fears and plans. We are amused by his shocked reaction to the lady who "wanted to have a look at his body." The pathetic story of his treatment at the hands of a group of psychiatrists at a mental hospital is told with a dazed tranquility that makes it all the more chilling.

Gabriel (an actor goes by the single name) plays Mick and is a little hard to deal with. The nature of Mick'c character is both pivotal and puzzling. Is he malicious or benign? Where exactly does the irony of his long monologues lie?

These rapid-fire monologues with their absurd connections and illogic should serve as the comic vehicle upon which the more serious implications of the play can rest. As interpreted by Gabriel, they do not. They just aren't funny. Nor is there any depth or mystery to the character. Mick is played as a savage London hoodlum and that's all. It's too bad.

The Center for the Performing Arts is a charming, if somewhat drafty, place for an evening of community theater.

"The Caretaker" will be performed again next Friday and on Dec. 7, 13, and 21. All performances are at 8:30 p.m.

Watergate Doctors Due To See Nixon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Watergate court doctors arrive tomorrow to examine former president Richard Nixon Monday, under orders to determine whether he is really too sick to testify.

Dr. Charles A. Hufnagel, 58, chief of surgery at Georgetown University Hospital in Washington, D.C., was scheduled to arrive tomorrow afternoon. He planned to hold a news conference.

Hufnagel heads the panel of three medical examiners appointed by U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica to check on the health of the 61-year-old former president.

The conclusion by Nixon's own doctors is that he is too ill from his recent surgery and other ailments even to give a written deposition for at least two or three months, and could not travel to testify personally for much longer than that.

Higher Postal Rates Forecast

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Ralph W. Nicholson, 58, senior assistant postmaster general for finance of the U. S. Postal Service, predicted yesterday the price for mailing a first class letter would go up a penny or two by next summer.

Nicholson said the higher prices were needed to offset a budget deficit of between $500 million and $700 million for fiscal 1975.

MUSIC REVIEW

'Cosi Fan Tutti' Shows Control

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

The College of Marin last night presented a "Cosi Fan Tutte" commendable for its highly-controlled singing. The vocal expertise demonstrated in the opera was most impressive.

Mozart's great opera was a wise choice for the college's first opera workshop. Its wry humor, sublime orchestration and soaring ensembles make it a gem of the operatic repertoire.

The opera was sung in English (using the Martin translation) with impeccable clarity. Every line of de Ponte's great libretto could be understood easily.

There were some problems: pitch difficulties, a certain thinness in the upper ranges, adences that become overly apparent and an inadequate chorus. But these were momentary lapses between moments of real vocal success.

Carolyn Caton, as Fiordiligi, led the cast. There are times when her lavish voice reminds one of Kiri Te Kanawa, one of Europe's leading Mozartian heroines. She has a large and open sound.

Occasionally, Miss Caton's tone went nasal and rough in the mid-range, particularly in "Dearest Love, I Beg Forgiveness". But in pieces like "Sweet Breezes Blow Lightly", a soft, floating, lullaby-like aria, she was shimmering.

Fiordiligi calls for a wide vocal range and an accuracy at placement that is murderous. Of all the singers, Miss Caton had the surest command of Mozart's frills and embellishments. When brought to its full flower hers will be a voice to be treasured.

Mali Henigman who sang the role of Dorabella, has a voice, similar to Marilyn Horne's.

Miss Henigman is good at floating notes and rolling trills, and has the fully-developed middle range that Miss Caton lacks. Yet she has difficulty with the coloratura attack, that ability to skip nimbly from note to note, hitting each one dead center.

As the frumpier Dorabella, she was an amusing contrast to Fliordiligi, the socialite par excellence.

"Cosi Fan Tutte, osia la scuola degli amanti" which translates as ("Thus with All, or The School for Lovers") is built around a single proposition: no woman can be faithful. Don Alfonso, a cynical old philosopher, puts the fiancees of Ferrando and Guglielmo to the test. The two men leave and return disguised as suitors. In the 24-hour time limit, will the girls remain faithful?

"Do not tempt me" protests Fliordiligi, as a cat purrs just so it will be petted.

In comparison to the formidable women, the men seemed a bit weak.

It simply was harder to hear them.

However, Larry Bedini (Ferrando) floats notes nicely and his weakness in tonal strength will pass with experience.

Richard Goodman (Guglielmo) has worked hard on a full resonance for his voice and the suggestibility of his facial expression is enjoyable.

Together, Bedini and Goodman were a snappy pair in their red military coats.

The score is full of Mozart's sly wit and some light kidding of Handel and serious opera.

However, director Anne McNaughton's use of slapstick and the easy gag resulted in humor that was too broad and too loose.

All in all, "Cosi Fan Tutte" was a disarming, auspicious first production for the College of Marin Opera Workshop.

Post Office Food Stamp Role To End

The U.S. postal service plans to stop selling food stamps at its post offices on Dec. 31 because of a dispute over intergovernmental contracts, a Marin County official said yesterday.

Donald M. Sanford, director of the Health and Human Services Department, said the action will affect all California counties.

Sanford said the loss of Post Office service is the result of regional Postmaster General William J. Sullivan's refusal to contract with individual counties, as has been done in the past.

Sullivan wants a statewide contract which state officials have refused to grant, Sanford added.

The local Post Office branches have been offering Food Stamp service since late 1972. Before that, banks were used as distribution centers.

27-0 Victory For Unbeaten Novato

FUTILE EFFORT — Hogan High School tried in vain last night to stop the Novato Hornets, and nowhere was the Vallejo school's futility better shown than on this extra point kick by Mike Wilmott (8) in the first quarter. Reaching high, but not high enough, were five Spartans as Wilmott converted following a Mike Moroski-to-Steve Hoog touchdown pass. (Photo by Alfred M. Arn)

Moroski, Hoog Key Slaughter Of Hogan

By DAVID EINSTEIN

VALLEJO — Mike Moroski and Steve Hoog, the best of friends and the most proficient passing combination in Bay Area high school football, climaxed their prep careers last night by leading Novato to a 27-0 rout of Hogan in the third annual Top of the Bay Bowl.

Quarterback Moroski threw to wide receiver Hoog for three touchdowns, each more devastating than the one before, as the Marin County Athletic League champion Hornets whitewashed the North Bay League champion Spartans before 2,600 football fans at Corbus Field.

UNBEATEN SEASON

The victory gave Novato its first ever undefeated season, and avenged a 7-6 loss to Petaluma last year in the post-season game. The first Bay Bowl ended in a 7-7 tie between Petaluma and Terra Linda.

Coincidentally, Novato opened the 1974 season with M and H combining for three touchdowns in a nearly identical, 26-0 victory over Riordan of San Francisco. Novato went on to roll up a 7-0-2 overall record in the regular season.

Everyone knew Moroski would come out throwing last night, and it was also understood that if he and Hoog had their timing, there wouldn't be much the Spartans could do about it. They did, and there wasn't.

FIRST SCORE

Novato marched 77 yards in 11 plays to score following the opening kickoff. Hoog caught passes of 10, 13, 35 and three yards along the way, the last one for the touchdown.

That was all the scoring for the first half, but as far as the Novato defense was concerned, it was enough. Led by tackle Ron Davison, end Tom Dubose, and middle linebacker Rick Holshevnikoff, the Hornets smothered the running of Bill Nunes and Joe Smith throughout the game, and Davison even picked off two interceptions to help stymie the Spartans' less-than-average passing attack.

The second half opened with a mild Hogan drive to just across midfield, but the Spartans delivered the ball into Novato hands at their own 35 via a bad punt snap. Three plays later Moroski nailed Hoog at the 20, and the only player to make the All-MCAL team on both offense and defense broke a tackle and went the rest of the way untouched to score.

NOVATO BONUS

Novato got an added bonus on that play when Hogan's Ken Staggs was ejected for throwing a punch at Mike Leach in the end zone. Staggs played safety on defense, but he was also the Spartans' starting quarterback.

That was the ball game, but Moroski and Hoog weren't through. Early in the fourth quarter, they climaxed their own personal triumph with a 65-yard bomb that had Hoog cutting to the middle and then breaking to the sideline for the final 40 yards. Moroski took off his helmet, probably because his smile was too big for it, and went to the sidelines to embrace his buddy.

FINAL TOUCHDOWN

The last touchdown, after Moroski and Hoog had retired to the bench, came on a 12-yard run up the middle by Glen Dunbar with less than a minute left to play.

The Spartans got down deep in Novato territory only once, toward the end of the third quarter. Armand Chiono, a sophomore who quarterbacked the team most of the season, passed them to the 24 yard line. But Larry Smith intercepted a pass to snuff out the threat.

WFL Sun Stars May Jump To Bay Area

ANAHEIM (UPI) — The Southern California Sun has denied that James McAlister, Kermit Johnson and Booker Brown, the World Football League club's top three draft choices, are free agents, a claim made by their agent.

"It's absolutely untrue," Sun general manager Curly Morrison said yesterday.

"The players still belong to us. And all of our players were covered in the event of injury (in the Sun's Thursday night WFL opening round playoff game).

"Kevin Grady hurt his knee in the game, was operated on this morning and the club will pay every dime of his bill."

Johnson, the Sun's leading rusher, and Brown, an offensive tackle, failed to show up for Southern California's contest against the Hawaiians Thursday night. The Hawaii club won 32-14.

McAlister missed the game with an injury.

"If they had just told us they didn't intend to play we could have handled it differently," Morrison said.

"But the way it turns out, they come out looking like jerks and we get embarrassed."

Los Angeles attorney Michael Trope, the players' agent, defended his decision. He said his men were free agents.

"You're talking about three great players with the bulk of their careers ahead of them," Trope said.

"To risk injury in a game that would have meant just a couple hundred dollars to them didn't make sense. Besides, the club failed to live up to terms of its contracts with them. It's a simple business situation."

The San Francisco 49ers drafted Johnson on the seventh round, the Oakland Raiders selected McAllister on the sixth round, and the Houston Oilers tabbed Brown on the sixth round last January.

Trope negotiated the players' contracts, which were reported to bring Johnson and McAlister $350,000 each and Brown $225,000. All the pacts were for three years.

The Sun was one payday behind when it met the Hawaiians Thursday night. Trope said the contracts of McAlister, Johnson and Brown make them free agents if the team failed to pay them within 48 hours after a payday.

He also said the club or the league could not produce a certificate of insurance guaranteeing hospitalization coverage in the event of injury.

"I gave notice to Larry Hatfield (Sun president) three times in six days what our position was," Trope added.

"Communication is a two-way street—they never told us last winter that they were undercapitalized either."

49ERS FAVORED

Falcons Are Injury-Riddled

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers are nine-point favorites to beat injury-ridden Atlanta tomorrow and provide a rough homecoming for Falcon Coach Marion Campbell, a former 49er player. Game time is 1 p.m.

Rookie quarterback Tom Owen guided the 49ers to a 34-0 blitz of Chicago last Sunday and has an impressive record for his 14 NFL National Football League

Owen has completed 51.8 per cent of his passes for 890 yards and now has the nod over veterans Steve Spurrier and Norm Snead, both ready to play after recovering from injuries. Spurrier suffered a shoulder separation and has yet to see his first NFL action this season and Snead was out with a knee injury.

Injuries also have hurt the Falcons, who have dropped five straight games. Atlanta's 6-6 tackle Bill Sandeman was sidelined after back surgery and Art Malone and Dave Hampton have missed action. Falcon quarterback Bob Lee lost the edge and was benched for former Heisman Trophy Winner Pat Sullivan, who has not shone as a pro but will try again tomorrow.

The Falcons bring a 2-8 record to Candlestick Park, including a 16-10 loss to San Francisco in the second game of the season. Their hope is a rushing attack against the vulnerable 49er defensive line. The now healed Hampton ran 62 yards against Baltimore last Sunday for the club record of 2,260 yards rushing in fewer than three full seasons.

San Francisco, troubled by injuries to offensive linemen Woody Peoples and Randy Beisler, has had a faltering rushing attack which accounts in part for a 3-7 season record.

The aerial game is expected to put points on the board, however, provided Owen is able to approach his 316-yard passing performance last Sunday against the Bears.

BIG BUCKEYE BACKER

John Bachman, 2½, of Columbus yesterday suited up and was ready to do his part to help Ohio State beat Michigan — if called on. John and his mother attended a Buckeye rally yesterday in Columbus. The game, for the Big Ten title and trip to the Rose Bowl, was to be played today at Ohio Stadium.

STABLER'S PASSING

What Broncos Are Up Against

OAKLAND (UPI) — Kenny Stabler, whose passing has figured in Oakland's nine consecutive victories, will lead the Raiders tomorrow against the visiting Denver Broncos in the Coliseum. (The 1 p.m. game will be televised locally on Channels 3 and 4.)

Only a one-point loss to Buffalo in the opening game of the National Football League season has marred the Raiders' record. Their latest win, 17-10 over San Diego, set up the American Football Conference Western Division title and a playoff spot.

Denver saw Oakland clinch the division lead Monday night when the second place Broncos bowed 42-34 to Kansas City in Mile High Stadium.

The loss was especially disappointing to the Broncos because it all but extinguished their hopes of a playoff wild card berth and came despite a stellar offensive show.

Quarterback Charley Johnson accounted for 445 yards and two touchdowns in one of the season's finest passing efforts. The 36-year-old veteran hit 28- of-42 passes and the running of backs Otis Armstrong and Jon Keyworth helped bring the total offense for the game to 532 yards.

Armstrong is among AFC rushing leaders with 792 yards and has been a reliable target for Johnson's passes with 29 receptions for 335 yards.

Four games remain for Denver and the Broncos trail Oakland by 4½.

Johnson's 1,517 yards in passing offense this season is eclipsed by his Oakland counterpart, however. Stabler has hit the likes of receivers Cliff Branch and Fred Biletnikoff for 1,853 yards.

The Raiders' Marv Hubbard —711 yards rushing on the season—will help balance the Raider attack.

How WFL Plans To Operate Next Year

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — New money and sounder financial management will keep the World Football League operating next year, WFL Executive Committee Chairman John Bassett Jr. said.

"There is nothing wrong with the World Football League that strong ownership won't fix," Bassett said, emerging briefly from a closed door WFL owners meeting that lasted into last night.

WFL owners will be looking for new money today as potential new investors are included in the two-day huddle to map survival strategy for the financially troubled league.

"I'm sure we're going to have a league," Bassett, a Canadian millionaire and owner of the Memphis Southmen, said. "I would think that going into next season there'll be a whole number of new owners."

But Bassett said he expects no new ownership announcements until early next year, after a new set of league financial rules are adopted.

On that subject, Bassett said, "I think we're making excellent headway. There's some healthy discussion going on."

Attracting sound money was a factor in the executive committee's naming Hawaiians president Chris Hemmeter new league president last night, Bassett said.

Hapless Seals Await Naming Of New Coach

OAKLAND (UPI) — A new California Golden Seals coach is expected to be named tonight following the team's game with the Minnesota North Stars.

The Seals front office only says it will clarify the coaching situation within the next few days, but reportedly president Munson Campbell and player director Bill McCreary feel Marshall Johnston's coaching inexperience compounded the team's inexperience on the ice.

The Seals have a poor 3-14-4 record. They have just returned home from a road disaster that saw them extend their nonwinning streak to 19 in games on foreign ice in games that go back to last March.

Coaching the Seals is a hard task anyway since the team has no single owner and the three

U.S. Golfers Have Woes With Putting

CARACAS (UPI) — Venezuela may be famous for its oil holes, which spurt out millions of barrels of black gold every year, but you couldn't convince Hale Irwin and Lee Trevino that the golf holes here are just as generous.

Irwin and Trevino, who are representing the United States in the 22nd World Cup golf championship, turned in another less than average performance in the second round yesterday and slipped to a 284 team total, nine strokes off pace-setting South Africa and Japan.

And both were in agreement: the greens on the 7,000-yard par 70 Lagunita Country Club course were the real villains on the second day of the 46-nation event.

"The greens seem different and I just couldn't get that ball in," lamented Irwin, the U.S. Open champion, after shooting a one-under-par 69, a slight improvement over his first round 73 Thursday. "Lee and I didn't sink one decent putt in two days.

"The only way the ball would move was if I was going downhill."

PGA champ Trevino, who went from a par 70 on the first round to a sagging 72 yesterday, echoed his colleague's sentiments.

"It's ridiculous," the usually high-spirited "Merry Mex" said. "Here I have a special putter just so I can hit against the Bermuda greens."

PRO BASKETBALL

Cowens Returns, Sparks Celtics

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Dave Cowens is back, and for the Boston Celtics and their fans it's a breath of fresh air in musty Boston Garden.

But Cowens is aware that he has a long way to go before he returns to the style of play which made him last year's Most Valuable Player in the National Basketball Association.

"I'm not in good condition for basketball," said Cowens after his dramatic contribution in the final two minutes of play assisted Boston to a 95-94 win over the Phoenix Suns last night at Boston. "I'd say I played at about 40 per cent of my capacity."

Cowens, who scored nine points, got two of them in the closing minutes that put the Celtics ahead for the first time in the game. His four rebounds in the final two minutes allowed the defending NBA champs to retain the lead.

"My body's out of shape and my coordination is off. I never did get a second wind tonight," he said. "I only caught my breath when I was on the bench."

Cowens' physical condition has been affected particularly by the unusually disabling nature of his injury. Cowens injured his right foot in an exhibition game in Asheville, N.C. and after being cleared by an x-ray examination, played again in New York where he crumpled in the third period with a broken bone in his arch.

John Havlicek scored 20 of his team-high 22 points in the first half to keep the Celtics in the game until Cowens took over at the end. Charlie Scott had 28 for Phoenix.

Elsewhere in the NBA last night, New Orleans nipped Atlanta 90-86, Washington ripped Portland 117-99, Los Angeles defeated Houston 89-83 and Chicago stopped Seattle 93-89. American Basketball Association scores were Indiana 132 Memphis 116, Denver 115 Virginia 110, and San Diego 121 Kentucky 103.

Jazz 90 Hawks 86

Pete Maravich, returning to the Louisiana State University campus where he shattered college scoring records a few years ago, scored 14 of New Orleans' last 17 points to give Butch Van Breda Kolff his first victory as coach of the newest NBA team. Maravich scored 21 points as the Jazz improved their record to 2-16.

Trail Blazers 99

Phil Chenier, who scored 36 points, sparked a second half Washington rally that overcame a three-point halftime deficit. The Bullets outscored Portland 15-2 in a three-minute span of the third quarter to break it open.

Lakers 89 Rockets 83

Five straight points by Lucius Allen late in the fourth quarter enabled the Lakers to win.

Bulls 93 Supersonics 89

Seattle's largest crowd ever, 14,082, saw a fight near the end of the first while involving Tom Burleson of the Sonics and Norm Van Lier and Nate Thurmond of Chicago. Burleson and Thurmond wrestled each other to the floor. The Bulls didn't go ahead for good until a basket by John Block with 30 seconds left in the game. Spencer Haywood of Seattle scored a game-high 32.

ABA Pacers 132 Sounds 116

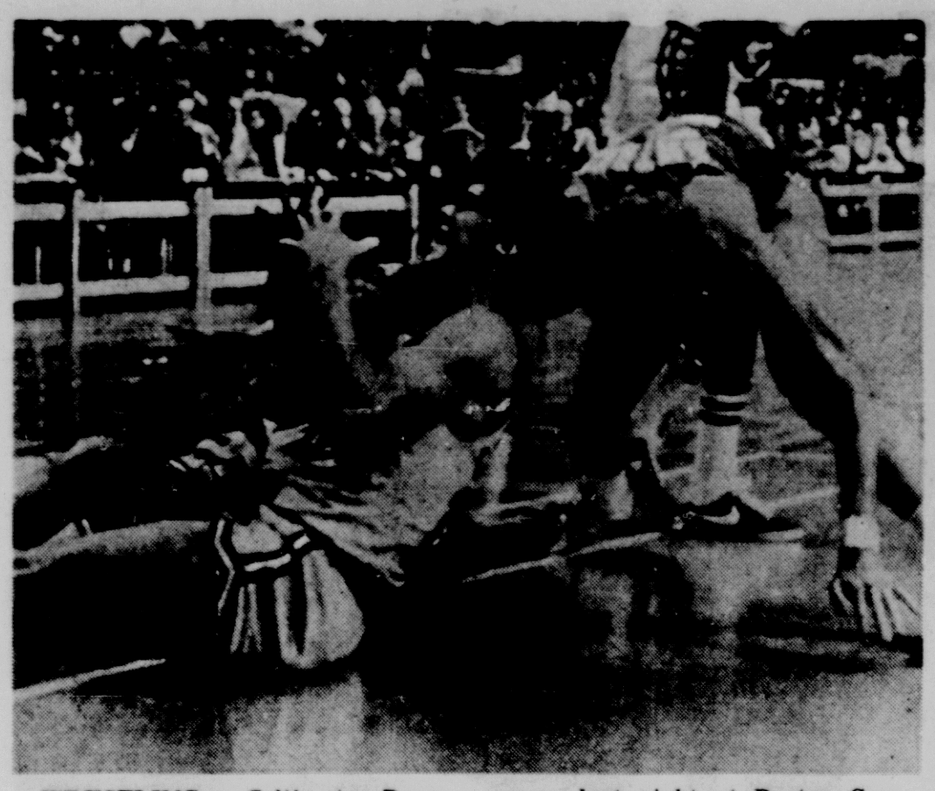

George McGinnis scored 37 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to lead Indiana in a matchup of last place teams.

Nuggets 115, Squires 110

Mack Calvin, who had a game-high 27 points, hit four free throws in the last 10 seconds to wrap up the game for Denver.

Conquistadors 121 Colonels 103

Travis Grant scored 34 points and Bo Lamar 27 as the Q's handed Kentucky only its third loss in 15 games.

WRESTLING — Celtic star Dave Cowens wrestled the ball away from Dennis Awtrey of the Phoenix Suns during the first period of a National Basketball Association game last night at Boston Garden. Cowen, making his first start of the season after an injury, led Boston to victory.

AGE, BUDGET BATTLES

This May Be Last Year As Coach For Gillman

HOUSTON (UPI) — Age and reported budgetary battles with the owner of the Houston Oilers may make this the last season for coach Sid Gillman, the Houston Chronicle reported yesterday.

Gillman, 63, the general manager and coach of the Oilers, took over active coaching of the sagging National Football League team the fifth game into the 1973 season. Houston has won four in a row this season for the first time since 1962.

Gillman declined comment on retirement, but at his last Monday news conference he did say, "I will have an announcement shortly."

Gillman's friends and relatives said he was seriously considering retirement, the Chronicle reported.

When he coached the San Diego Chargers in the late 1960s, Gillman suffered from a heart problem. His wife, Esther, and the families of his three daughters all were believed to have urged retirement, the newspaper said.

But when asked of his health, Gillman just says, "I'm okay."

Gillman's two-year contract expires at the end of this season, but Adams said the coach with 122 pro victories would be welcomed back for 1975.

Zoeller Top PGA Tour Qualifier

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Fuzzy Zoeller of New Albany, Ind., has led 19 qualifiers for the Professional Golfers Association tour and it was worth $4,000 to him.

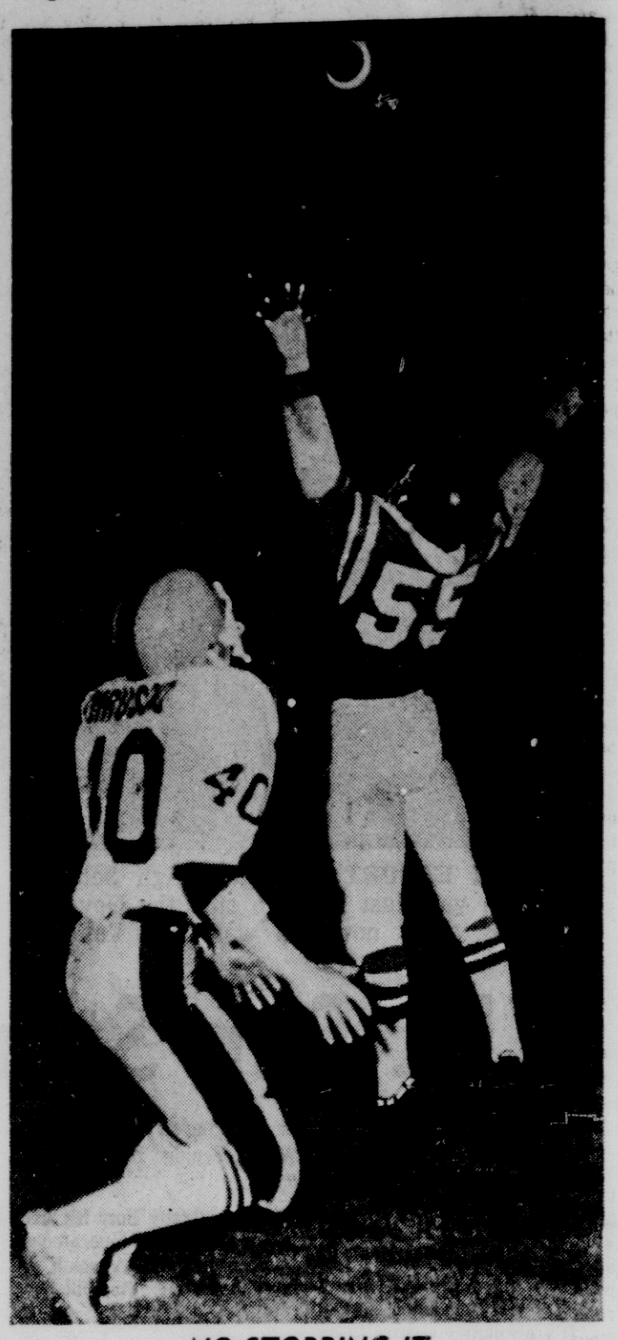

Zoeller, 23, shot a 69 at Canyon Country Club yesterday and that gave him an eight-round total of 572, 24 under par, and medalist honors in the qualifying school run by the PGA's Tournament Players Division.

He finished one shot ahead of Bob Risch of Diamond Bar, Calif., who had a last-round 69.

Zoeller carded rounds of 72-72-71-69 for a 72-hole total of 284 here. The first 72-hole session was held last week at Napa, Calif.

Qualifying for the pro tour next year, in addition to Zoeller and Risch, were:

George Cadle, Half Moon Bay, Calif., 574; Peter Oosterhuis, England, 575; Alan Tapie, Newport Beach, Calif., 576; Dave Newquist, Anaheim, Calif., 577; Bill Rogers, Texarkana, Tex., 578; Rex Caldwell, Lompoc, Calif., 578; Bobby Wadkins, Richmond, Va., 580; Frank O'Connor, San Antonio, Tex., 581; John Abendroth, San Francisco, 591; Greg Trompas, San Diego, 584; Jack Spradlin, San Diego, 585; Danny Edwards, Edmond, Okla., 586; Ray Carrasco, Huntington Beach, Calif., 586; Roger Maltbie, San Jose, Calif., 586; Florentino Molena, Argentina, 587; Jim Wittenberg, Memphis, Tenn., 589; Dan Halldorson, Canada, 589.

NO STOPPING IT

Novato High School back Jim Diruscio watched as a pass from Mike Moroski sailed over the head of Hogan defender Kefin Dixon early in last night's Top of the Bay Bowl in Vallejo. Diruscio was just a spectator on the play, which went to tight end Mike Leach for 14 yards.

Hockey Lesson From Buffalo

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Buffalo Sabres, who have more than paid their National Hockey League expansion dues, gave a lesson to the up-and-coming Atlanta Flames last night:

Don't be so sure.

The Flames, undefeated in 10 home games thus far this season and undoubtedly confident they are at last ready for playoff competition, sat back and blew a three-goal lead to the Sabres in the final period. Buffalo's Gil Perreault scored the goal that tied it 4-4 on a breakaway with with less than two minutes left to play.

In the only other NHL action, the New York Islanders blanked Toronto 6-0 and Montreal outscored Kansas City 7-6. World Hockey Association play saw Edmonton rout Toronto 8-2, Quebec edge Cleveland 3-2, Chicago down Michigan 5-3 and Houston top Vancouver 4-1.

Flames 4, Sabres 4

Perreault sailed in alone on a breakaway and beat Flames' goalie Dan Bouchard to cap a three-goal Buffalo uprising in the third period. Rick Dudley and Rene Robert brought the Sabres to within one goal of a tie prior to Perreault's marker. Curt Bennett had a pair of scores for the Flames who are still undefeated at home.

Canadiens 7, Scouts 6

Doug Risebrough slammed in the game-winning goal at 17:58 of the final period to give the Canadiens a wild 7-6 win and allow them to move into a first place tie with Los Angeles in Division 3.

Islanders 6, Maple Leafs 0

For the beleagered Leafs (5-10-3), criticized publicly by owner Harold Ballard two days ago, the woes continue and coach Red Kelly's job becomes more perilous. Billy Smith scored his third shutout of the season for the Islanders, who moved two points ahead of the idle New York Rangers in Division 1.

Nordiques 3, Crusaders 2

Mike Parizeau broke a 2-2 deadlock at 8:08 of the third period to deliver the victory for Quebec, which moved to two points of Toronto in the WHA Canadian Division.

Oilers 8, Toros 2

Left winger Ron Clime scored a pair of goals while Steve Carlyle, Tom Gilmore and Ed Joyal each notched their first markers of the season in the Edmonton rout.

Cougars 5, Stags 3

Chicago's hot line of Rosaire Paiement, Francois Rochon and Gary MacGregor combined for nine points in leading the hapless Cougars over the equally hapless Stags.

Oilers 4 Blazers 1

Gordie Howe scored his sixth goal of the season and assisted on another for the Oilers.

FOLLOWING A'S EXAMPLE

Sporting fake mustaches in honor of visiting Oakland A's, Jimmy Yeakle, 12, (left) and Johnny Coogan, 13, got admiring tweakes from relief pitcher Rollie Fingers (behind Yeakle) and third baseman Sal Bando. Bengals' Playoff Hopes Depend On A Victory Over Kansas City

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Two months ago, the Cincinnati Bengals were all but conceded a playoff slot. It was just a question of whether they'd go as champion or wild card team.

Now they're fighting for their lives.

The Bengals were upset by Houston for the second time this season last Sunday and fell 1½-games behind Pittsburgh in the American Conference Central Division race with just four to go. Even worse, it dropped the Bengals to 6-4 and left them a game behind Buffalo for the wild card slot which goes to the best runnerup.

Cincinnati plays host to Kansas City tomorrow and must win or virtually forget about the playoffs for this year. The loss of star center Bob Johnson for the season with a broken ankle won't help the Bengals, who earlier in the year lost running back Boobie Clark for the season with a broken arm.

The Bengals catch Kansas City after a 42-point outburst Monday night against Denver's supposedly strong defense in which they racked up 364 yards total offense.

Things don't look bright for Paul Brown's Bengals. After Kansas City, they are at Super Bowl champion Miami, play host to Detroit and go to Pittsburgh.

In other games tomorrow, Minnesota is at Los Angeles, Dallas at Houston, Detroit is at Oakland, St. Louis meets the New York Giants at New Haven, Conn., Miami is at the New York Jets, Philadelphia at Washington, Buffalo at Cleveland, San Diego at Green Bay, New England at Baltimore, Chicago at Detroit and Atlanta at San Francisco. Pittsburgh is at New Orleans Monday night.

The league is underwriting the Seals and already paying off another ex-coach, Fred Glover.

To add to the Seals woes, they have learned that defenseman Mike Christie, injured earlier in the week against Washington, will be lost to the club for a minimum of two months with torn ligaments in his right knee. He is recovering from surgery in Merritt Hospital.

10 Black Grid Players Out

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — Ten black football players at Fullerton State were left off the traveling squad for today's season finale against the Cal Aggies here.

Coach Pete Yoder had told the 10 they would be dropped if they missed Thursday's practice. Two other black players on the squad worked out Thursday and made the trip here.

A meeting has been scheduled Monday between the dissident players and college administrators, but no announcement was made beforehand as to the nature of the players' grievances.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

NOV. 23, 1929

BRONKO NAGURSKI, MINNESOTA'S ALL-AMERICAN FULLBACK AND LINEMAN, CLOSED HIS COLLEGE FOOTBALL CAREER BY SMASHING FOR TWO TOUCHDOWNS AT MINNEAPOLIS TO LEAD THE GOLDEN GOPHERS OVER WISCONSIN 13-12, FOR THE SECOND STRAIGHT YEAR.

Washington St. Retains Coach

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — Washington State University Athletic Director Ray Nagel has confirmed that football coach Jim Sweeney's new four-year contract has been approved and finalized.

Word that Sweeney had signed a new contract was first reported in late September, and Nagel said at the time that all that was needed on the contract was the "appropriate signatures."

This is Sweeney's seventh season at the Cougar helm, with a won-loss record to date of 23-50-1.

Manager Of Year Goes To Wrong Bill

THE TIPOFF:

Most far-reaching decision affecting sports in the next decade could be the IRS hassle with the Atlanta Falcon owners, challenging their write-off of players against the value of the franchise as a tax amortization — a lot of millionaires aren't going to be so hasty to jump into sports.

Q. Why did the writers pick Bill Virdon over Billy Martin as manager of the year? And Catfish Hunter over Fergie Jenkins for the Cy Young award? All Martin did was take the worst team in baseball and bring them to a second place finish. — Brinke Guthrie, Terrace Park, O.

Well, not all writers. UPI did pick Martin as its manager of the year. And I agree. But I gotta go with Hunter for what he has meant to the world champion A's consistently over the last four years. He should have gotten the Cy Young before this. There's lots more pressure on him pitching for a winner than Jenkins had.

Q. I say the majority of pro football players don't wear girdle pads (hip and tailbone). My friends say otherwise. Please acknowledge. What types of helmets do most pro players wear? — Rick Turner, Orange, Calif.

Only three players on the Oakland Raiders bothered to wear the girdle pad you mention. Most players shun hip pads and settle for just shoulder, knee and thigh pads. Some defensive backs and receivers don't even bother with the latter. Generally, most football pros wear foam-padded Riddell helmets and some use air-injected models, too.

Q. I know Tom Seaver pitched for Fresno High School and City College and then at USC, where I think he was used illegally. Wasn't he drafted by Pittsburgh and then his name placed in a hat and the Mets drew him? Will you explain? — Ed Orman, Fresno, Calif.

Tom Terrific, was just wound up a tour in Japan with the Mets, was originally drafted and signed by the Braves. But all the time he had already pitched two games in early '66, not illegally, for USC, which made signing him an illegal act. So his name was placed in a hat and all teams were allowed to match the $50,000 deal he made with the Braves. Only Philadelphia, Cleveland and the Mets snapped at the bait. The Mets won the draw and got a great pitcher. Not generally known is that Seaver was first drafted after his junior year by the Los Angeles Dodgers but spurned pro ball and was picked six months later by the Braves. To bring you up to date, his back trouble which hampered him in '74 is clearing up.

Q. When a sports league is formed, does the new league raid the established teams of the old league for their broadcasters? And if not, where does the new league get their broadcasters? — William Rom, Camarillo, Calif.

Pithy answer — anywhere they can. Raiding is not the right word. Unlike athletes, broadcasters are generally free-lancers and not tied to any club. All it takes to get them is money. So, for instance, Merle Harmon, who is a major league baseball broadcaster as the voice of the Milwaukee Brewers, was snapped up by TVS for the World Football League. And conversely, when ABC was looking for a new partner for its Monday night troika, it grabbed Alex Karras, who had been a frequent commentator on WFL telecasts.

Q. Ray Guy has not had a punt blocked since he came to the Raiders. What is the longest streak in games without having a punt blocked? — Carlos Rodriguez-Pastor, Lafayette, Calif.

No such records are kept and are not shown in the NFL record manual. But it's interesting to note that the great Sammy Baugh still holds the career record for highest punting average — 45.10 yards per kick from 1937 to 1952. It should also be noted that Sammy had one advantage over modern day kickers. In his day, he lined up only 10 yards behind the center while all blockers were held in. Amos Alonzo Stagg devised the 15-yard drop for punters in the mid-1940s at COP.

An hour-by-hour check of George Foreman's movements for the two days before his fight in Zaire might explain his somnambulistic actions in the ring.

BAD NIGHT FOR FORMER CHAMP

Former middleweight and welterweight champion Emile Griffith (right) who is now 35 and trying a comeback, took a left jab in the face last night enroute to losing a 10-round decision to 22-year-old Vito Autuofermo at Madison Square Garden in New York. Autuofermo, born in Italy and now a Brooklyn resident, ralled after suffering a cut eye in the first round. (UPI Telephoto)

Reasons Why Fewer Bucks Were Shot In 1974 Season

Combined AP & UPI

SACRAMENTO — Hunters shot 26 per cent fewer buck deer in California during the 1974 season than they did last year, fish and game officials have reported.

A total of 14,644 bucks were bagged this year compared with last season's total of 19,803, officials said yesterday.

Lower deer numbers, fewer hunters and dry conditions were blamed for the drop.

Fish and game officials also reported that the 1974 pheasant hunting opening weekend was the best in recent years. Reports from 10 public areas showed 2,568 pheasants killed, an increase of 50 per cent over last year.

Tennis

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Rual Ramirez, a little known Mexican, yesterday upset veteran Ken Rosewall 6-4, 6-4 to join Americans Jimmy Connors, Arthur Ashe and Harold Solomon in the semi-finals of the South African Open Tennis Championships.

TOKYO — Wimbledon champion Chris Evert, playing for the first time in Japan, today amazed enthusiastic Japanese tennis fans with her accurate stroking and eliminated American Shari Barman, 6-0, 6-0, in the first round of the $100,000 Gunze World Tournament. Rosie Casals of Sausalito today blitzed Kris Kemmer of Los Angeles, 6-0, 6-0.

BUENOS AIRES — Grand Prix champion Guillermo Vilas of Argentina yesterday defeated Bolivian Ramiro Benavides 6-2, 6-4 in the $24,000 Argentine Open Tennis Tournament and moved into the semifinals.

Recalcitrant Barnes Expected To Go Home For Explanation

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Former Providence College basketball star Marvin Barnes is expected home today to talk with his mother and his attorney about why he walked away from the Spirits of St. Louis without any explanations.

Like any good detective story, there are more rumors floating around than the involved people would like to see. The latest chapter is waiting to unfold, as soon as Marvin shows up here.

And like any good plot building to a climax, Barnes has provided impetus for a good ending by "dumping" Los Angeles agent Marshall Boyer — according to his mother.

Boyer has reportedly been the moving force trying to convince Barnes that his American Basketball Association contract was not as lucrative as it should be.

Earlier yesterday, Barnes appeared in Dayton, Ohio, at a billiards parlor, and said he had no intention of returning to the Spirits. Boyer said he and Barnes tried to talk to the Spirits about his supposedly non-lucrative contract, and the Spirits refused.

Meanwhile, Boston attorney Bob Woolf, who negotiated the 6-9 center's contract, was in the dark. He talked to Mrs. Barnes last night and told her the same thing he told the press in a prepared statement that afternoon.

"I told her that if Marvin wanted to go back to the Spirits, then I'd help him. If not, then I want nothing to do with him. That's the last time I've heard from her, and I don't know anything more."

Mrs. Barnes said Marvin would probably talk to Woolf when he got home.

"It all depends," she said. "But the one good thing is that he's not with that Boyer. Marvin dumped him."

Mrs. Barnes said she was taken ill yesterday morning, and a friend tried to call Marvin to tell of her condition.

"My friend tried to get through to Marvin," she said, "but the people wouldn't let him talk to me. That must have gotten to him and made him mad, knowing that they were trying to keep him away from his mother. Maybe that's why he's coming home."

H. Washington Will See How Record Shapes Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Herb Washington, whose specialty is breaking world sprint marks and stealing bases for the Oakland A's, discovers how good his track record shapes up when he enters negotiations with Charles O. Finley.

Billing himself as "the world's fastest human" after establishing new world clockings for the 50 and 60-yard dashes, baseball's only designated runner hopes to hike his Oakland earnings to $100,000 in 1975.

"I'm waiting on Catfish Hunter's arbitration meeting with Bowie Kuhn on Tuesday before I make my pitch with Finley," said the former Michigan State star who stole 23 bases in 39 attempts for the world champion A's last season.

"I should do much better in 1975. I've learned a lot. Maury Wills had only 10 days to work with me last spring and I didn't grasp what he was trying to convey until July.

"I'll never be a threat to Lou Brock's record because there's no way I can get on base as many times. I have no interest in the other facets of baseball. I don't want to bat and have no expertise in fielding. Running is my game.

"I wouldn't want to play any position, especially on the A's. The only way you can play in their outfield is if somebody dies — and then they just will that position to somebody. How do you figure to oust Joe Rudi, Reggie Jackson or Billy North?"

Washington plans to keep in shape as a competitor in the pro International Track Association that has scheduled 17 meets in the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

CHARLES O. FINLEY
To receive pitch

However, this is an interim job for Mr. Speed.

"I've enjoyed baseball, but it's the toughest task I've had to do athletically," Washington says. "Proficiency is what counts and being known only as a base stealer, I knew I was being watched carefully."

Washington says the hardest part of base stealing is the start. A runner must know the opposing pitcher's key moves "and you only learn this by experience."

Washington's world series check, which he hasn't received yet, his base salary and bonus money brought his earnings to an estimated $85,000 in 1974, roughly 90 per cent of his total income. He figures he'll make much more in baseball as he improves his base stealing technique.

"The endorsements, man, the endorsements. That's where a lot of the gravy lies."

Washington, according to Billy North, a top base stealer in his own right, "must be more aggressive. He showed tremendous improvement during the year and I'm sure he'll get better as his running matures."

Reggie Jackson figures Washington won nine games outright for the A's last season by stealing himself into scoring position. Manager Alvin Dark believes Washington should be credited with a higher total.

Washington says his apprenticeship was completed when Los Angeles reliever Mike Marshall picked him off first base during the world series.

"You don't get to see the styles of National League pitchers very often. But I learned something — to take a shorter lead on guys like Marshall. That pickoff will remain with me forever. A successful baserunner tries to steal on the pitcher. Catchers throw too well."

In retrospect, Washington says he never felt butterflies in his stomach until late in the season "when the standings got tighter."

A two-fold secret Washington doesn't mind imparting to baserunners: "You don't have to be lightning fast to steal bases. You must have a knowledge of the pitcher and speed in getting the jump. This combination will result in a stolen base almost every time."

And, of course, have the guys in front get on base so you can do your thing.

A Look At Warriors' Hectic Road Schedule

DETROIT (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors had a night of rest, but they still figure to be tired when they take on Detroit tonight. After all, it will be their sixth National Basketball Association game on the road in eight nights.

After losing to Philadelphia a week ago tonight, the Warriors flew to Phoenix, arriving 2 a.m. to beat the Suns that night.

Monday they flew to Chicago and Tuesday to Buffalo, where they lost to the Braves. Wednesday they flew to Providence, R.I., where they downed Boston. But the cross-country hopping seemed to take its toll Thursday in a 106-74 slaughter by Cleveland.

"I guess the trip simply caught up with us in Cleveland," said coach Al Attles "It's funny. I'm used to it, I guess, and I was only thinking of three games in three nights in three cities. But I had forgotten two others, making it five in six nights.

"We didn't react well, and Cleveland ran away from us. They made the unmolested layups, and then another five or six layups from plays under the basket."

Should the Warriors lose tonight, it would be the first time this year the Warrriors lost two in a row.

62 Marin Youngsters In District Tourney

Tony Trowbridge, 15, of Greenbrae Lanes will lead 62 Marin County bowlers into the District Two California State Junior Bowling Association Championship Tournament.

The tourney will be held Thanksgiving weekend at Napa Bowl. The American Junior Bowling Congress-sanctioned tourney will have participants living from the Golden Gate Bridge north to the Oregon border. It is a doubles and singles event in divisions based on average.

Members of the Marin County Junior Bowling Association 600 Club will be competing. They are: Greenbrae Lanes — Trowbridge, Tom Borries, Dave Koehler, Ken Aeschlimann, Bryce Coleman and John Baker; Country Club Bowl — Greg Painter, Mark Holmes and Ken Pedroli; Nave Lanes — Tom Carrigan, Greg Guitterez, Don Sutherland, Chris Moats, Neil Simpson and Frank Hoerman.

GENE BLUDER of San Rafael recorded the top three-game series score in Marin County league bowling the past week. He had a 245-269—734 Tuesday night in the 905 Classic at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael.

NANCY McPHERSON of San Rafael bowled a 222-198—190—610 series to lead the girls in the 870 Mixed Scratch league last weekend at Castle Lanes in San Francisco.

Ruffian Could Be His Best

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Whiteley has trained many fine horses including Damascus and Tom Rolfe. The two-year-old filly Ruffian won her first five races and at that point Whiteley said: "This may be the best horse I ever trained."

Ruffian is owned by Stuart Janney of Locust Hill Farm. She was bred at Claiborne Farm in Kentucky.

End Of An Era For Sam Snead

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (UPI) — In 1936 Sam Snead came over the hill from Virginia to become golf pro at The Greenbrier, but that 38-year relationship came to an end yesterday.

The new management is making some changes, and wants a pro who'll spend more time around the resort.

The 62-year-old Slammer is a man on the move and admits, "I was gone a lot." The parting appears amiable, and Snead says, "Everybody is lovely."

"I can come back anytime I want to. My room will be here, and I can play here anytime. Everything is in harmony."

Instead of a gold watch, they gave Sam a lifetime membership in the Greenbrier Golf Club.

Giving up the post because he wanted to spend more time on the PGA tour and "do more hunting and fishing," Snead didn't rule out the possibility of hooking on with another club.

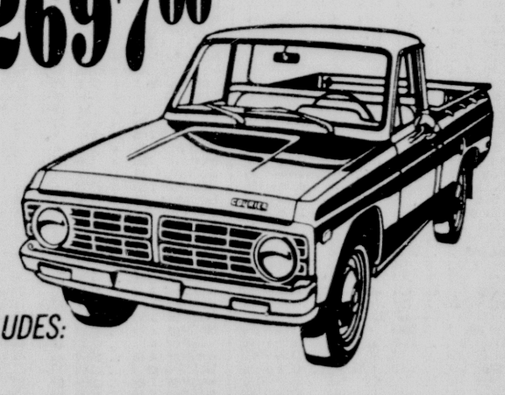

"Well, I'm open to a few things," Snead said, "if the right deal comes along."

"Everything's been changed around, the management and what not. They've taken over the golf carts and the pro shop. That seems to be the trend around the country."

JOHN SERGEANT
Among six applicants

Sergeant Seeks Plan Position

John Sergeant of Fairfax has applied for appointment to the Fairfax Planning Commission.

Sergeant, 34, is among six applicants for the post, vacant since the death of John Grybel. The town council will fill the seat at 8 p.m. Dec. 9 in the Fairfax Women's Club.

Other applicants are David Pines, Arlin Timberlake, Walter Connolly, Leander Duhring and William Chapman.

Sergeant is a native of Oakland and has lived in Fairfax for the past year.

He said he is seeking appointment to the commission since it is "the strongest element of government in Fairfax, aside from the council."

He described himself as a growth control advocate, and said his political philosophy is one of "liberal libertarianism — I don't believe in government getting involved in people's lives anymore than it has to."

A major problem in Fairfax is the "hot issue of illegal second units" on singe family lots, he said, adding he advocates bringing these units up to code as they come to public attention.

Sergeant said he supports the concept of a growth control board for the Upper Ross Valley. He also said communication between Fairfax government and local citizens needs improvement, and he suggested the town publish council agendas in local papers.

He called the town sign ordinance "unenforceable and unrealistic . . . It's too restrictive, and we've got more important things to worry about."

Sergeant, who handles labor relations for civilian employees at the San Francisco Presidio, holds a bachelor's degree in industrial management from the University of California at San Jose.

He lives at 55 Madrone Road.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, November 23rd, the 327th day of 1974 with 38 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

Franklin Pierce, 14th President of the United States, was born November 23rd, 1804. This is the 57th birthday of American actor Howard Duff.

Also on this day in history:

In 1942, Congress authorized creation of a Woman's Auxiliary of the U. S. Coast Guard to be known as the "Spars."

In 1945, World War II rationing ended in the United States on all foods except sugar.

In 1954, the Chinese communists said they had convicted 11 American airmen and two civilians of espionage.

In 1968, French President Charles de Gaulle refused to devalue the franc and ordered an austerity program for his nation.

A thought for the day: British writer Samuel Butler said: "An empty house is like a stray dog or a body from which life has departed."

The Old Familiar Ways Are Easy Way Into The Ashcan

It takes courage to break new ground. It's much easier to go ahead with the old familiar methods -- even if that lands you in the ashcan.

Opening lead – ♡ Q

FOLLOWS SUIT

You are West. You lead the queen of hearts, dummy plays low and your partner plays the nine. South follows suit with the deuce of hearts, and it's up to you to make the next lead.

"What's the problem?" you may ask. You lead another heart, of course. And maybe you'll have better luck next rubber.

The current rubber ends when you lead a second heart. Your partner wins with the ace of hearts and returns a trump. You can take two trumps out of the dummy, but there's still a trump in dummy for South's last heart. He ruffs that heart, gets back to his hand to draw the last trump and can then claim the rest of the tricks.

CORRECT SWITCH

If you want to keep the rubber alive, you must switch to a low trump at the second trick. Not the ace of trumps, just a low trump.

South's best plan is to take the top diamonds and ruff a diamond in the hope of betting a 3-3 break. When that fails, he leads another heart.

East wins with the ace of hearts and returns his other trump. Now you take the ace of trumps and clear the last trump off dummy. South must lose three hearts and one trump trick.

DAILY UESTION

Partner opens with 1 no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- J 8 7
♥- K 6
♦- K 10 8 6 2
♣- J 10 5

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 2 no-trump. This shows about 8 or 9 points, inviting partner to bid game if he has more than a bare minimum for his bid.

Insurance To Be Eyed

The Fairfax Town Council will meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the Fairfax Women's Club to discuss the town insurance program, according to Town Mgr. William Haden.

The meeting will be followed by a closed session on pending litigation.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.
Smoke particles, light air pollution.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, light air pollution.
Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources.

Union Shop Issue In Public Sector

One of the major issues that will be debated in the next California Legislature is that of compulsory unionization of public employees.

In the campaign just concluded, most of the candidates talked about "collective bargaining" for public employees, as though that were the issue. It is not. Public employees in California are not permitted collective bargaining. The issue is compulsion.

LAST YEAR'S Senate Bill 400 by state Sen. George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco, mandated such compulsion for teachers in the public schools. It required that the organization with majority membership among the teachers in a district be recognized as the exclusive bargaining agent. Every teacher would thus be required to join the union, or pay dues to it, to have any bargaining representation.

Moscone's bill passed both houses of the legislature, but was vetoed in Gov. Ronald Reagan. An identical bill was later introduced by Assemblyman Richard Alatorre, D-Los Angeles, but it died in committee as the two-year legislature adjourned.

When Moscone's bill covered only teachers, a similar bill covering all public employees in the state was introduced by Assemblyman Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood. It got no place.

There will be similar bills in the next session. And the California State Federation of Labor and California Teachers Association believe they have helped elect enough pro-compulsion candidates to pass them.

As governor, Edmund G. Brown Jr. will not veto such bills. He let that be known during his campaign.

THE USUAL ARGUMENT for permitting the union shop or "agency shop" in public employment is that public employees should have the same bargaining rights as private employees.

This overlooks two things:

(1) The civil service system — and, in the case of teachers, the tenure laws — provide much greater job protection in public employment than anyone has in private employment. When auto sales dropped the past few months, the auto makers began closing plants and laying off employees — who were, almost all of them, mebers of the United Auto Workers Union and covered by its contracts. State, city and county governments and school districts are precluded from closing their plants to save money. They are similarly precluded from many other steps that private industry may take in labor disputes.

(2) Employees of government are in fact employees of the public. County boards of supervisors, city councils, school boards, fire district boards, etc., are elected to represent the public as its agents. They are not the real employers. The issue in public employment cannot be one of employees-vs.-owners because the employees are also owners. The city council, school board, etc., is their agent, too.

A SPECTER that hangs over all discussions of "union shop" or "agency shop" in public employment is that of the strike.

Union leaders agitating for state and federal compulsory membership laws say frankly that these would be largely meaningless without the right to strike.

However, many public employees themselves are troubled by the idea of union-ordered walkouts in essential public services.

Assemblyman Leroy F. Greene represents the Sixth District, in Sacramento, which has the largest concentraton of public employees of any Assembly district in California. Recently he polled his voters on whether they thought public employees should be permitted to strike. He received some 17,000 responses — and 64 per cent said "no."

SOME CANDIDATES during the recent campaign urged that compulsory union membership in public employment be legalized, but with compulsory arbitration "to prevent strikes."

This is a cop-out, at best. The democratic process would be eroded, perhaps fatally, by making the decisions of elected public bodies subject to the rulings of arbitrators whom nobody had voted to have run public affairs.

Besides, arbitration has failed to prevent strikes in the private sector. Raymond A. Smardon, president of Industrial Employers and Distributors Association of Emeryville, declared in the October issue of Nation's Business that compulsory arbitration laws "will not prevent strikes but will destroy collective bargaining as we know it today and cause immeasurable other damage to our economic and social system." He speaks from experience: his association has negotiated contracts with 113 union locals in Northern California, including nine with public employee unions.

IT SHOULD NOT be surprising that many of our legislators ignore the very real dangers to government and to public service posed by forced unionization of public employees. After all, the California State Federation of Labor and California Teachers Association are boasting openly that their money and efforts elected many of these legislators.

Simon Cameron, Republican boss of Pennsylvania, said over a century ago: "An honest politician is one who, when he is bought, will stay bought."

How Intelligent Are They?

Zoologists are always making new discoveries about animal intelligence. The recent discovery that chimpanzees could learn to converse, using standard sign language, proved that they are intelligent enough to talk but simply lack the necessary vocal equipment for human speech. Likewise, studies of whales and dolphins are revealing undreamed-of intelligence among these marine mammals.

Perhaps because they are so commonplace, we have heard of no studies to learn how raccoons communicate. Nor have we ever heard of any serious study of raccoon intelligence.

We believe it would be a rewarding project, and one which would increase our respect for the backyard bandit in the heavy fur coat.

About That Promotion In Tam Fire District

There were two different tests given for two different fire departments referred to in Tamalpais Fire Protection District Chief Bennett's letter in the Oct. 30 I-J.

The first, given for 18 openings for firemen in the Marin County Fire Department drew several hundred applicants, including the majority of our own Tamalpais District firemen, who had become increasingly unhappy and disillusioned by the shoddy treatment they have received from Chief Bennett since he took over our department last January . . .

The second test was conducted by Marin County Personnel Department for our Tamalpais District openings for captain. Fifty-six applications were received, including three from our own firemen. Of these, 26 passed . . . including one of our firemen, who achieved the second highest score, not the seventh as Chief Bennett's letter stated.

If you were disturbed about the three-member oral board which then rated the applicants, it might interest you to know that only two of these members actually rated the men, as the county personnel member merely conducted the proceedings and averaged the final scores . . .

Although our firemen had been promised extra points in recognition of their prior service to our department (this is common in most districts) the Marin County Personnel received no such notification from either our board of directors or our chief.

Our fireman was finally promoted to captain (effective Dec. 1) after public protest over the hiring of several outside applicants for the captain's position and after the publication of the intention to circulate a recall petition . . .

'Developers Out To Undo County Planning'

The developers have launched a major offensive to undo county general planning and halt the preservation of the environment. Apparently Marin County has the "honor" of being a key county for their assault. On Nov. 19, the vice-chairman of Marin Coalition, a group representing primarily construction, building trades, and real estate interests, attacked the countywide plan's growth limits and said the housing goals must be revised. Philip Buskirk, an architect, chimed in that "the housing industry should be given a free rein." The next day American Savings and Loan Association filed a 5 million suit against the county general plan, claiming that the general plan (required by law) is unconstitutional and implying that down-zoning is unconstitutional. The county counsel reportedly considers this lawsuit the construction industry's major assault. Meanwhile in a recent speech another director of Marin Coalition called the no-growth movement communistic! In the same month Michael Peevey, defeated in his race against the environmentalist supervisor, Gary Giacomini, has surfaced as spokesman for something called the Council for Environmental and Economic Balance, a sort of statewide Marin Coalition. He called for the developers to organize to roll back the "excessive" victories environmentalists have won in the legislatures and courts.

Since Marin Coalition's candidate for Marin Municipal Water District's swing seat lost, and I won, the developers are shifting their attack somewhat from MMWD to the county supervisors. If we believe in planned growth, and a balance of moderate and high-income housing for Marin, our supervisors need to hear from us now as never before to support these goals; for Tuesday they will consider whether to revise the county general Plan.

Surrender? Never, Unless Friedkin Buys That New Car

WASHINGTON — As each day passes by, the automobile dealers are getting more desperate to move their 1975 cars. They've tried almost everything under the sun to no avail — well, almost everything.

"Attention all cars — attention all cars — go to Overview Terrace — a family is being held as hostage by a madman."

"Zipkind, we know you're in there. Throw your weapon out the window and come out with your hands up and you won't get hurt."

"Not unless the Friedkins agree to my terms."

"What are your terms?"

"THEY BUY A NEW four-door Buccaneer station wagon with genuine leather seats, power steering, air conditioning and white-wall tires. I'll throw in the radial tires for free."

"Zipkind, that is no way to sell an automobile."

"I've tried everything else, copper. I begged them to come into the showroom. I promised the greatest trade-in of their lives. I offered them financing over 48 months. But they just laughed at me. Well, now it's my turn to laugh. They either sign a contract or else . . ."

"LISTEN TO US, Zipkind. We'll talk about it later. Just let the hostages go. We'll find you somebody else who might want to buy a station wagon."

"Don't kid me. Nobody wants to buy a station wagon now. The only thing the consumer understands is force. No one leaves this house unless I have a signed contract in my hand."

"Let me speak to Friedkin."

"Here is is, copper, but I warn you, if he makes one false move . . ."

"FRIEDKIN, ARE YOU willing to give in to Zipkind's demands?"

"I'd like to, commissioner, but I don't have the money. Who can afford a new car these days?"

"He's stalling, copper. He's got the money; he just won't part with it. All right, if he can't afford a station wagon, what about a four-door 1975 Whiplash with vinyl bucket seats, disc brakes and a rear-window defroster?"

"Zipkind, we can't negotiate with you for a new car until you release the hostages."

"Fie on you, copper. I'm going to move those cars off the lot one way or another."

"ZIPKIND, HERE IS your wife Esmerelda."

"Horace, please come out of the house. Even if you sell the Friedkins a car, you can't keep holding people as hostages every time you want to make a sale."

"No dice, Esmerelda. If I don't sell any '75 cars, they'll take my dealership away from me. I have to think of us. I warned Friedkin something like this would happen if he kept stalling on the new models."

"Zipkind, we're losing patience with you. You either come out or we're coming in after you."

"ALL RIGHT, COPPER, I'm coming out. But Friedkin is going to be sorry. When he goes to buy his next new car he'll be paying $500 more than they're selling for right now."

"Get in the cruiser, Zipkind. We're taking you down to headquarters."

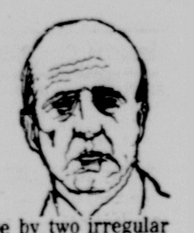

"Hey, copper. What are you doing with a 1973 cruiser? How about a new '75 Amazon? I'll throw in a siren and a red light gratis, and you get a two-year warranty on all parts except the engine. I'll give you $800 for this heap, no questions asked."

"Sorry, Zipkind, but there's a freeze on in the department and we can't buy any new cruisers."

"That's what I thought, copper. When it comes to a new car you're all talk."

Permanent Peace In Mideast Requires Provision For Refugees

Obviously a dialogue between Israel and the Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat is not going to begin today or tomorrow, whatever the outcome of the United Nations debate on Palestine.

Emotions are too high now for that — on both sides.

But there is one overriding reason why Israel should become accustomed to the idea of doing precisely what it now sees as inconceivable.

That is that a fair and satisfactory provision for the Palestinian refugees always was and always will be essential to a permanent and peaceful relationship between Israel and the Arabs. Unless and until these people who have been living unsettled in refugee camps ever since 1948 are offered something which they will consider to be "home," they will continue to be an irremovable barrier to any real peace. They must be satisfied. They can no longer be ignored.

A SUBORDINATE PART of the above point is that, due to Israel's own past policies, there is no alternative bargaining agent for the refugees. Had Israel encouraged the development of a new Palestinian leadership among Arabs living on the West Bank of the Jordan in the Gaza Strip, and in Israel itself, there could have been an alternative bargaining agent with a habit of doing business with the government of Israel.

Nothing has been done to build up such an alternative leadership. Arafat is in fact the only Palestinian who today enjoys stature and influence among Palestinian Arabs, both those still in Palestine and those in the refugee camps in other Arab countries.

The Israelis do not realize that in pinning the epithet "terrorist" to the Palestine Liberation Organization and its members, they are being illogical in Arab eyes.

For, as the Arabs see it, the methods of the Palestinian guerrillas are modeled on the tactics and methods of the Jewish "terrorists," who fought against the British under the last years of the Palestine mandate and cleared the way for the founding of the Israeli state.

IN 1947 AND 1948 news and history were made in Palestine by two irregular Zionist "terrorist" organizations: the Irgun Zvai Leumi and the Stern Gang.

Bombing, terror raids, political assassination were all parts of the stock in trade of those two highly determined, ruthless, and successful paramilitary outfits. One of their proudest achievements was the bombing of British GHQ in the King David Hotel.

The present leader of the right-wing Likud bloc in the Israeli Parliament is the same Menahem Begin who led the Irgun in its time. To the British of 1947 he was just as much a "terorist" as Arafat is regarded today by the Israelis.

The kind of tactics practiced then by the Irgun and Stern Gang and now by the various Palestinian irregular groups are alike in reflecting a deep sense of frustration in a people; alike in forcing their frustrations upon the attentions of others; and alike in getting action where less violent methods had failed.

THE USE OF TERRORISM and violence by the Israelis hurried the British out of Palestine in 1948 and cleared Arabs off the land marked for Jewish settlement by Zionists.

It could now be argued that the use of terrorism and violence by the Palestinians in recent times has forced the other Arabs to remember and recognize them and their aspirations; has gained the attention of the United Nations; has won Arafat an opportunity to present his case in the forum of the nations in New York; and has won in him a central voice for all Palestinian Arabs.

It must be acknowledged that Arafat is just as much a folk hero to Palestinian Arabs as the Irgun and Stern Gang leaders were to the Zionists of a generation ago.

For Israel, the choice is difficult and unpleasant. But to many of its friends, it now seems clear that someday it will have to negotiate with the Palestinians and ultimately take part in the settlement of the refugees, or there will be an endless progression of wars which will continue to sap the economy and morale of Israel.

Brazil's Election Results Show Wide Discontent

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Brazil's recently concluded parliamentary elections are being regarded hopefully as a reversal of what up to now has been a melancholy accompaniment to Brazil's 10-year-old economic miracle — the harsh suppression of human rights.

On Nov. 15, Brazilians voted for 22 senators, one third of the senate membership, and for all members of the chamber of deputies.

To be sure, the elections were between two government-created parties — the only two permitted by Brazilian law — but, commented the influential Rio de Janeiro newspaper Jornal do Brasil:

"It is an honest attempt to restore a state of law and consensus in substitution for a state of fact and force, through the gradual election process and not violence."

THE RESULTS can be interpreted only as a resounding victory for the opposition Democratic Movement against the government party, the National Renewal Alliance, even though it will make no particular difference in Brazil's military-led government.

The Brazilian congress has virtually no power.

But, after 10 years of political silence, the fact the elections were held under circumstances of comparative freedom is itself regarded as a victory, not only for Brazil's 36 million eligible voters but also for President Gen. Ernesto Geisel who took office last March on a promise of a gradual liberalization of authoritarian rule.

Early response to Geisel's promise was slight but gained momentum as the election neared and opposition candidates remained out of jail.

CHIEF ISSUE before the voters was Brazil's rapidly rising cost of living. Inflation, after being held for years at a "manageable" 15 per cent, now is leaping ahead at a rate of 33 per cent.

Especially hard hit has been Brazil's traditionally poverty-stricken northeast whose 35 million people have received the least benefit from the swift rise in Brazil's economic growth.

Half of Brazil's national income goes to fewer than 10 per cent of the people.

BEHIND GEISEL'S decision for limited political relaxation and the decision of Brazil's military right-wing to go along with it, lie two important factors.

One is the fact that militant opposition has been crushed and the country is calm. The other is that economic problems are mounting and the military would like to share responsibility.

Brazil had a favorable balance of trade of $2 billion last year but has a staggering foreign debt of some $10 billion, to which now will be added a problem over which the government has no control. Brazil must import 80 per cent of its petroleum needs and this year will pay more than double last year's rate for it.

But for Brazil's immediate future, the question now is how the military hardliners are to react to this unusual show of opposition.

It's official now — Gerald Ford will run for president in '76. That may be the only way he can put in a man of his choice as vice president.

Ford's plans to run are bound to be good news to one organization. He could be the first candidate ever to throw a Boy Scout cap into the ring.

Opponents of the Nelson Rockefeller nomination are following an ancient principle: Keep the money-lenders out of the temple.

Seven Democratic senators are offering a "tax reform and relief package." Taxpayers' reaction will depend on whether they come under reform or relief.

Fearful Norway Facing An Oil Boom — Uneasily

Behind The News

SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1974 29

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH

OSLO (UPI) — With fear and foreboding, Norway has struck it rich.

The stormy North Sea waters off Norway's 1,500-mile coast cover a Klondike of oil and gas that, by all evidence, ranks this Nordic nation alongside the Arabs. By 1980, Norway will be a major oil exporter, with an annual income conservatively estimated at $4 billion — in a nation of only four million persons.

This luck has met a sour reception in this stern land. The oil boom has split Norway politically, has set it at odds with its oil-thirsty allies and threatens to drown the clean, bucolic Norwegian life style in a gusher of oil and money.

"We've got a rich man's burden," lamented Odd Goethe, oil expert at the Industry Ministry. A foreign diplomat added, "This is a conservative society and Norwegians don't want a boom and bust. They feel they're doing fine right now."

This attitude is responsible for the government's decision last month to reject membership in the International Energy Agency, a group of industrial nations formed under U.S. leadership to share oil in future crises. It also has led to a growing squeeze on foreign oil firms, to attempts to limit future production and to a public debate on Norway's future and whether she can wax rich while the rest of Europe reels before high oil prices.

"It's not just old-style nationalism," said Hans Goksoeyr, a Norwegian official of the Shell Oil Company. "It's a question of our own identity."

But a high government official deeply involved in oil matters worried, "I don't think people realize how much we are part of the Western World."

The Phillips Petroleum Co., first struck oil in Norwegian North Sea waters five years ago in the Ekofisk field, 180 miles southwest of the coastal town of Stavanger. Since then, two other major fields, Frigg and Statfjord, have been found. If all goes well, pipelines will begin carrying oil and gas from Ekefisk to West Germany and Britain next year, marking Norway's debut as a major producer.

It was only after last winter's oil crisis that Norwegians began to realize how much oil they have and how much it is worth. Even today, the riches can only be estimated.

Proven reserves so far total four billion barrels of oil and an equivalent amount of gas. The government thinks there may be four times as much. Britain shares the southern North Sea half-and-half with Norway and owns about twice as much oil, but is expected to use most of it at home.

The Norwegian estimate only covers the North Sea south of the 62nd parallel. The Norwegian shelf north of this line, an area four times the size of Norway itself, is unexplored, although a recent unauthorized test by a U.S. team indicated it is even richer.

Since Norway can use only a fraction of this oil, most will go for export. By the most cautious estimates, this will make Norway the world's fourth biggest oil exporter, behind Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Iran.

But Norway is making it clear it is not the answer to the West's oil nightmare.

The decision to quit the energy agency was one warning. Norway specifically objected to an agency rule on automatic oil-sharing if another Arab embargo hits. As the agency's only net exporter, Norway feared giving consumer nations that kind of control over its oil.

The government has said, however, that it is willing to assume some sort of "appropriate obligations." What this means is open to dispute.

"The idea of solidarity with other countries is a basic one," an official said. "If a situation should arise of a shortage of supplies, we have accepted the principle of helping. But the final decision should be left to ourselves."

"We live in one united world," said Arve Johnsen, director of the state oil company Statoil. "We can't look on ourselves as a privileged little outskirt."

Bjoern Unneberg, member of parliament for the populist, rural-based Center Party, demurred.

"In the case of a real embargo, our main task with oil is not to threaten the existing economic structure of Norway," he said. "We feel we cannot restructure Norway as the price of some obligation to Western Europe."

The Norwegian character and climate stress self-reliance and rugged individualism, not cooperation. Even Norway's closest friend, next-door Sweden, cannot count on help. "We won't do something for somebody just because they have blue eyes," Shell's Goksoeyr said.

But Goksoeyr added that 40 per cent of Norway's annual production goes into foreign trade, making the nation "totally dependent" on the rest of the world. Moreover, Norway belongs to NATO and no one knows yet whether a hard oil line will be understood by such allies as Italy that have critical oil problems.

"We could be hated," Goksoeyr said. "You don't become popular by being too nationalistic or by having too much luck."

Norway also hopes no one expects it to undercut the Arabs on price.

"That's simply wishful thinking," the Industry Ministry's Goethe said. "Oil is so valuable it can always draw a high price. And that's good. We think the cheap selling of oil is wrong." Norway even plans to keep oil prices high at home, Goethe said.

Norway charges an average 12 per cent royalty on oil drilled by foreign companies and is considering an excess profits tax on top of the 50 per cent tax it levies now.

In addition, Phillips and other firms that pioneered the Norwegian oil business are gradually being demoted to hirelings of Statoil, which will own 50 to 100 per cent of future fields, and Norskhydro, another Norwegian firm 51 per cent owned by the government. A government white paper last March spelled it out:

"Private enterprises, Norwegian or foreign, may be engaged at the exploration and production stages and will receive suitable compensation . . .

But in future they should obtain the right to exploit these national resources in exceptional cases only."

Ole-Jakob Kvinnsland, editor of the oil magazine Noroil, noted that Norway, unlike other oil nations, already had a sophisticated industry and a planned economy when oil was found.

"So for us, oil is just an additional industry," he said. "This gives us a great deal of freedom to act slowly, carefully, to negotiate the best terms with the oil companies, to make haste very slowly indeed."

Two years ago, Norway negotiated membership in the European Common Market, then had to back out when its people voted no in a referendum, largely out of fear of ceding independence to Brussels bureaucrats. Something of the same happened with the energy agency.

"The Labor Party which leads the minority government was licking its wounds, was battered and confused after the referendum," John Sanness, director of the Norwegian Institute of Foreign Relations, explained. "Then U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger pressured them into the talks on the IEA (energy agency). The government had no policy, but just let things simmer."

When the automatic oil-sharing rule became public here, political protests followed. The government, without putting it to a parliamentary vote, renounced its IEA membership.

More international problems loom when drilling begins in the northern North Sea, probably in 1977. Those waters are highly strategic, because they are the outlet to the ocean for the Soviet Northern Fleet, which may not want a NATO member watching its maneuvers from oil rigs. Tough negotiations with Moscow on the line dividing Norwegian and Soviet waters were set to open in Moscow on Monday.

The Murmansk inlet, just east of the Norwegian border, is the base for much of the Soviet Union's second-strike capability — its nuclear missile submarines. That strategic consideration as well as fisheries and future oil development will all figure in the Norwegian-Russian talks to divide authority over the continental shelf.

The difference between the Norwegian and Soviet claims is about 50,000 square miles. Whatever line is agreed, questions will remain — for example, will the Norwegians permit stationing of American oil rigs in an area which provides the only ice free outlet for Soviet naval power to the North Atlantic.

Norwegian oil, vast though its potential may be, offers no immediate help to the West. One problem is that it won't begin flowing in quantity until next summer. More important, the government has decreed that, for the foreseeable future, production will be limited to an average 90 million tons, or 700 million barrels, per year — a drop in the 13-billion-barrel ocean of oil that Europe alone uses every year.

This 90-million-ton limit is a compromise between Norway's allies, who want her to produce much more, and the powerful environmentalist bloc at home, which wants less.

"It's in Western interests to have as large an oil production outside OPEC (the Middle East oil-producing countries) as possible," one Western diplomat said. "It would be unfortunate to engrave this 90-million-ton figure in stone. But you know the Norwegian character — the best way to make them produce less is to press them for more."

Environmentalists fear the infusion of too much money into Norway's economy, the blighting of her natural splendors, the destruction of the farm and fishing industries, the upsetting of a delicate balance between rural and urban Norway.

Even urban Norwegians love the outdoors and see their taciturn, independent farmers and fishermen as the custodians of the nation's values.

"Someday, there will be no more oil here," said the Center Party's Unneberg, who would like a 50-million-ton annual limit. "So it's very important not to destroy this basic structure of our society. When the oil is gone, Norway must live on. If we change too much, it will be that much harder to rebuild our society."

The Norwegian living standard already is one of the world's highest. The oil boom is certain to raise it further and Norwegians, who don't really need the money, are debating whether it should go for social services such as badly needed roads, for high consumption, or to lower a crushing tax rate that takes 40 per cent from the average paycheck. A small tax cut was announced this fall and could be the first of many.

Unneberg speaks for a hard, puritan strain when he argues that the money must be used to preserve the countryside, not for consumption.

"To have money to spend, it is a little bit primitive," he said.

The debate on the 90-million-ton limit may be academic. Oilmen says it already is unrealistically low and cannot be held.

"We're already through that roof," one Norwegian oil official said.

Phillips officials said Ekofisk alone, when it hits full production, will pump 60 million tons of oil and gas. When Frigg and Statfjord are in operation in the early 1980s, the three fields could produce 140 million tons. Existing drilling licenses give the government few means to control this flow.

But that is only the start. New drilling is to begin soon along the North Sea boundry with Britain. In the likely chance that fields overlapping the boundary are found, pressure will be huge to start production as quickly as possible, to keep British rigs from sucking up all the oil and gas.

"We'll drill like hell in the border bocks," one oilman said. Added another: "We're being forced into developing whether we want to or not. Everybody in the oil industry in Norway knows this."

A government spokesman insisted the limit "is something the government intends to stick to." But Nils Vogt, deputy director of the Oil Directorate which must monitor production, only smiled when asked about the effect of the new areas on the limit and said, "That's a very interesting question."

Oil policy is made in Oslo. The oil industry's center, however, is Stavanger, a quiet, picturesque harbor town of 80,000 persons that, until recently, was best known as "the herring capital of Norway."

Stavanger does not look like a boom town. True, there are 3,500 Americans living there now and the American school, with more than 400 students, is the biggest in Scandinavia. The arrival of foreign money and foreign workers has sent rents and restaurant prices soaring. Most newcomers hail from Texas and Oklahoma and one American says being in Stavanger "is like being with the old boys down at the store."

But Stavanger people scoff at fears in Oslo that success will spoil Norway. They talk of the "opportunities and possibilities" that oil will bring and say that, apart from high rents, the town has taken the boom in stride.

Stavanger's air and water remain unpolluted. Older, well-kept clapboard homes still ring the harbor. Many newer buildings — banks, factories, the biggest hotel — were there before the boom began.

The new industry — the building and repair of oil rigs and other equipment which could be as lucrative as the oil itself — meshes well with Stavanger's traditional shipyards and actually employs three times as many people as the rigs themselves. Norway's fierce drunk-driving laws keep oil-workers quiet when they come off their eight-day stays on the derricks.

But Stavanger is where the power is. If Norwegians will be as rich as Arabs, their sheikh is Arve Johnsen, 40, the Stavanger-based boss of Statoil.

Johnsen, like many real sheikhs, got part of his education in America (Kansas University '60). After a stint in politics and the law, he became director of Statoil, which the government created to handle its oil affairs.

Statoil is only the germ of an empire now, with 130 employees. But it already has a 50 per cent share in Statfjord and will own 100 per cent of some fields.

Johnsen said he plans to move as quickly as possible into exploration, transport, refining and marketing, using foreign expertise and equipment only as long as necessary and aiming for elimination of foreign influence in oil decision-making.

"The new areas are the first time when Norway has 100 per cent ownership," he said. "They are not the last."

"There definitely is a danger in Statoil getting too big," a Stavanger oil expert said. "We are creating our own multinational."

If Stavanger keeps its old-world charm, Ekofisk is a new world altogether. The name includes both the field itself — the oldest and southermost Norwegian oil field, a vast geological structure, 32 miles square and 10,000 feet down — and the complex of rigs and drills built above it.

The rigs sit on mammoth concrete bases prefabricated on land and towed to their site in 200 feet of water — an oil business record. They operate in some of the world's worst seas, with winter waves up to 100 feet — another record.

In these savage surroundings, the rigs support a shifting population of 600 men and an array of space-age machinery.

The men work 12-hour days. Liquor and beer are banned. They live in barren two-man or four-man rooms decorated only by Playboy centerfolds and look forward to the end of their eight-day tours and the helicopter that will fly them back to Stavanger for a week on land.

The equipment includes 150 standard wells drilling into the limestone beneath, huge tanks separating gas from oil, a tank of computers that monitor every operation and four compressors that will pump some of the gas back into the ground to build up pressure to get more oil out.

Because of the depths, the compressors are 50 per cent more powerful than any ever built. When they were turned on at Ekefisk, they began vibrating dangerously. This delayed plans to begin pumping through the pipelines until next June.

Another failure was the construction of Ekefisk's trademark — a mammoth tank, big enough to hold the Arch of Triumph twice over, built to keep up to one million barrels of oil until tankers could carry it away. The decision to build pipelines instead made the mammoth tank a $28 million white elephant, parked in the middle of the sea and used only as a storage platform.

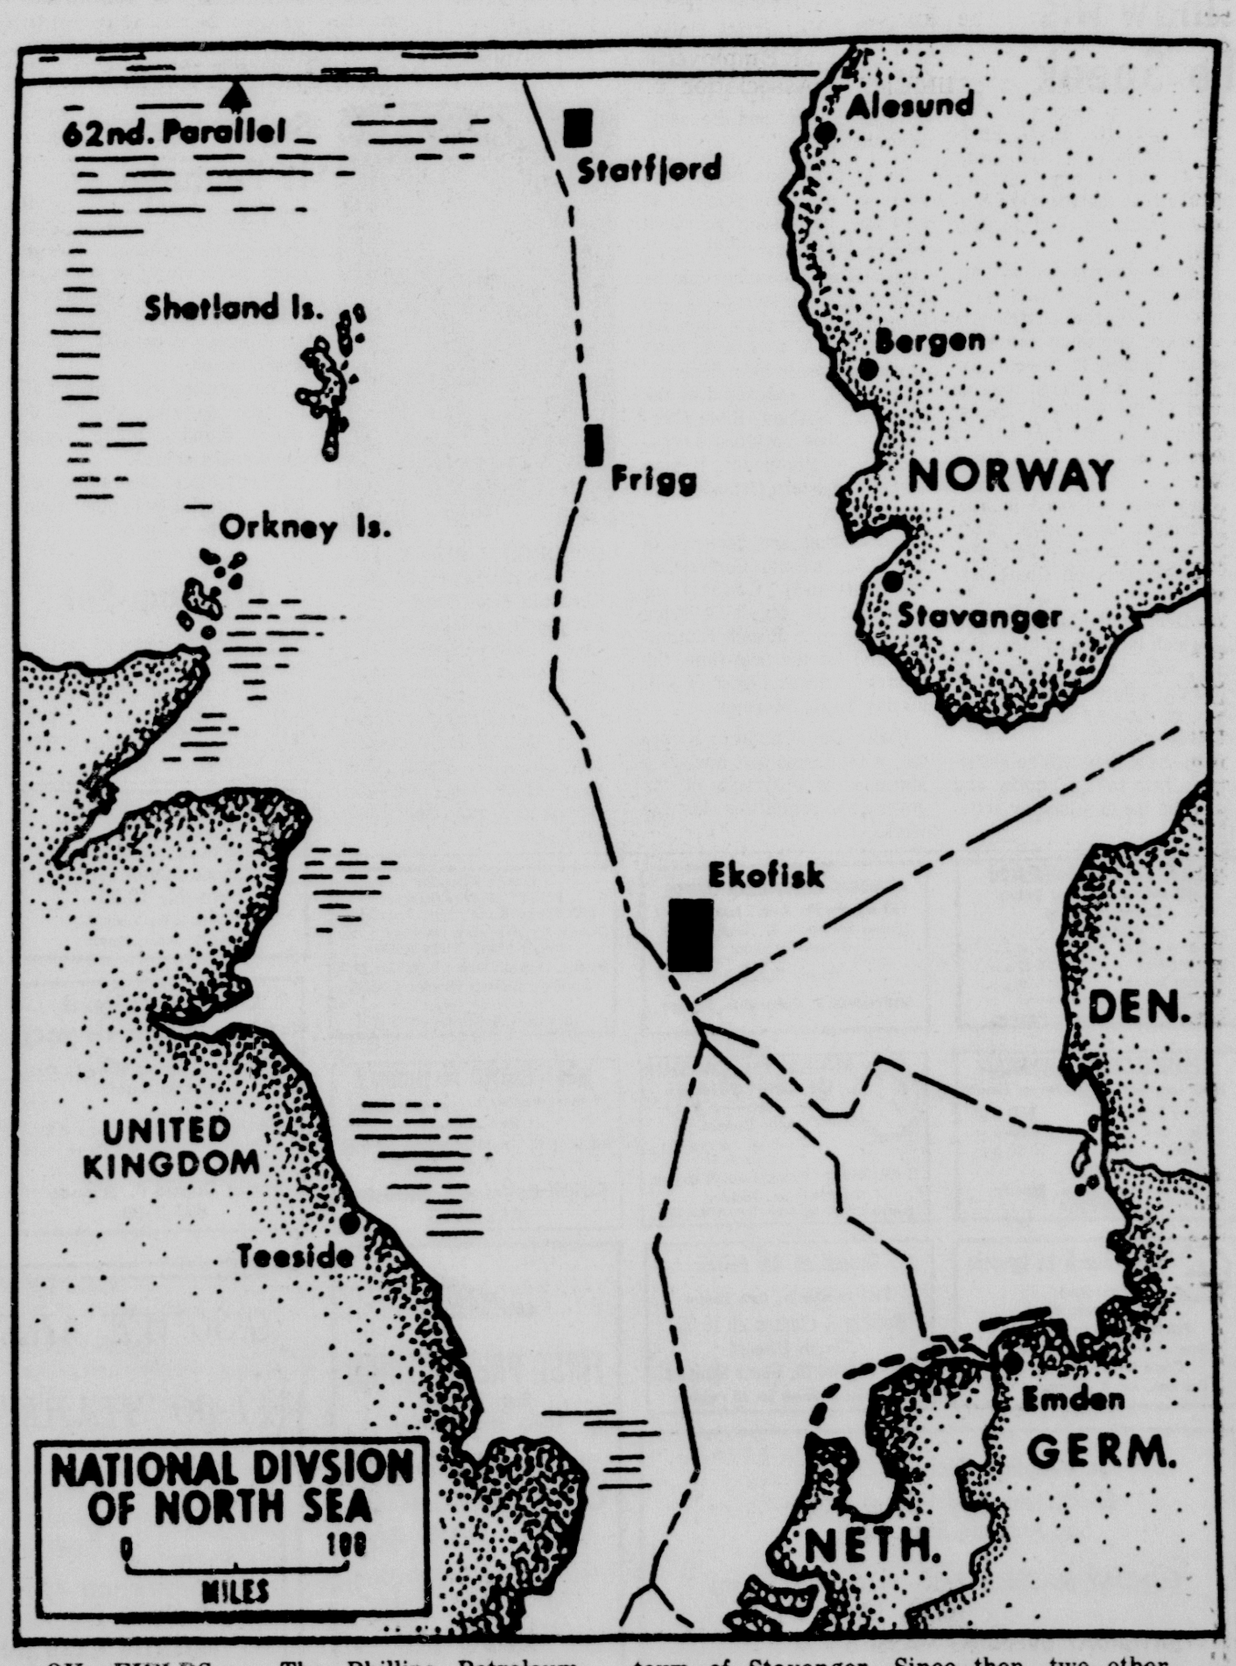

BOOM — Norwegian Prime Minister Trygve Bratteli (right) stands on the production platform "Gulfside" for the ceremony marking the start of trial production of oil in the Norwegian sector of the North Sea. The photograph was taken in June of 1971. International problems have arisen over the oil discovery since they are located in the northern North Sea which is used by the Russians as an outlet to the ocean. Norway is a member of NATO, an oft-times Soviet nemesis.

SHOPPERS — The Norwegian living standard already is one of the world's highest. The oil boom is certain to raise it further. Here shoppers look over the fresh fruits and vegetables available to native shoppers.

OIL FIELDS — The Phillips Petroleum Company first struck oil in Norwegian North Sea waters five years ago in the Ekofisk Field, 180 miles southwest of the coastal town of Stavanger. Since then, two other major fields — Frigg and Statfjord — have been found.

Many Special Services Scheduled For Thanksgiving

"And they thought not only of harvest when they thanked their God for His Gift."

These words were written by Steven Vincent Benet in his Ode for the Tercentenary of the Founding of New Haven, Conn. June 6, 1938.

Residents of Marin and Southern Sonoma counties will gather as families, small groups, church bodies and groups of church congregations to thank God for their blessings and to share them with others.

Some churches will have their own dinners, such as the First Baptist Church of Sausalito at 131 Filbert Avenue which will give a free Thanksgiving dinner from 2 to 4 p.m. Thanksgiving Day for all comers. This is the first time that this church has undertaken this giving free Thanksgiving dinners.

The largest and oldest such Thanksgiving dinner will be given to the senior citizens from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Whistlestop. It is being put on by St. Raphael's Catholic Church, the First Presbyterian Church, the Methodist Church, Trinity Lutheran Church, St. Sylvester's Catholic Church, St. Luke's Presbyterian Church and St. Paul's and Church of the Redeemer Episcopal.

Many of the churches will have the traditional pumpkin pie with coffee following their Thanksgiving services.

A growing custom among many churchs is to band together for Thanksgiving services.

The largest ecumenical service is held each year in Southern Marin. The service will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church at 3 Oakdale Avenue, Mill Valley.

Joining in the service will be congregations from Church of all Faiths, Corte Madera; Christ Church Episcopal, Sausalito; Redwoods Presbyterian Church, Larkspur; Community Church of Mill Valley; United Methodist Church of Mill Valley; Episcopal Church of Our Savior, Mill Valley; Presbyterian Church of Sausalito; St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Marin City and Westminster Presbyterian Church, Tiburon.

The oldest ecumenical service in the county is the one in San Anselmo and Ross which is 60 years old this year. Rev. John O. Najarian of San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church, Rev. John R. Dietz Jr. of Saint Anselm's Catholic Church and Rev. Max O. Nye of St. John's Episcopal Church in Ross have joined in four services.

At noon Monday they will hold a service at the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church at 72 Kensington Road. At 6 p.m. Tuesday the service will be at St. John's Episcopal Church at Lagunitas Road and Shady Lane. The service will be held at noon Wednesday at San Anselm's Catholic Church at Shady Lane and Bolinas Avenue. The Thanksgiving service will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at the First Presbyterian Church.

A smaller ecumenical service will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday at San Geronimo Valley United Presbyterian Church at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and San Geronimo Road. Other churches joining them are the Sleepy Hollow Presbyterian Church, the Point Reyes Presbyterian Church and the Fairfax Community Church.

Chapel 1 at Hamilton Air Force Reserve Base will host Good Shepherd Lutheran Church of Novato in a joint service at 10 a.m. Thursday.

The congregation of the Church of the Redeemer will join the St. Luke's Presbyterian Church at 10 Bayview Street at 8 p.m. Wednesday in a joint service of Thanksgiving.

Tiburon Baptist Church, 445 Greenwood Beach Road, dinner 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran, 9 Shepherd Way, 7:30 p.m., Wednesday.

Community Congregational Church of Tiburon-Belvedere, 145 Rock Hill Drive, 10 a.m. Thursday.

First Church of Christ Scientist, Mill Valley, 10 a.m. Thursday; Sausalito and Belvedere, 11 a.m. Thursday; Larkspur, 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

PETALUMA

A joint service is planned at 7:30 p.m. on Thanksgiving Day at the Evangelical Free Church, Fifth and B Streets. Participating will be the city's Methodist and Presbyterian churches, the United Church of Christ and the Evangelical Free Church. Music will be privided by a mixed quartet directed by Marge Bauer, plus vocal soloist Marjorie Crews. Paul Chaffee, student minister for the United Church of Christ, will speak on "Thanksgiving."

St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church, 35 Liberty Street, 7, 8 and 9 a.m. Thursday.

First Church of Christ Scientist, 522 B Street, 11 a.m. Thursday.

Elim Lutheran Church, Baker and Stanley Streets, 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

St. John's Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, 455 McNear Avenue, 10 a.m. Thursday.

Ford Headlines U.S. Bible Week

NEW YORK (AP) — President Ford and a cross-country lineup of congressmen, governors, mayors, businessmen and religious leaders are heading a drive to boost the Bible as a basic source of integrity and idealism.

"This year we need the good book in a very bad way," says the theme for the campaign, the annual interfaith observance of National Bible Week from this Sunday through Dec. 1.

In the eight-day period, specific passages are recommended for reading each day. Also, a blitz of public service advertisements and broadcast sports has gone out for use during the week.

As honorary chairman of the effort, Ford issued a message commending it and declaring his own "special regard for Scriptures as a unifying source of wisdom and inspiration."

He said "greater knowledge, use and understanding" of the Bible can be a "strong force for good in our daily lives," and added: "Bible reading has been a tradition in my family for as long as I can remember."

The President, an Episcopalian, cited his favorite verses, Proverbs 3:5-6: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths."

He said he has made that passage "my daily prayer." It also was the passage on which he took his oath of office.

Special proclamations for the Bible-reading observance are being issued by more than 400 mayors and 35 governors, most of whom already have done so.

The week is sponsored by the Laymen's National Bible Committee, a New York-based organization of Protestant, Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and Jewish laity.

Cooperating are agencies of the U.S. Catholic Conference, the National Council of Churches, the Greek Orthodox archdiocese, a Jewish committee, and for the first time, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon).

Utah's Gov. Calvin L. Rampton, a Democrat and himself a Mormon, is chairman of the governor's committee for the week.

REV. H. N. TED LINDWALL
Former Novato minister

Lindwalls To Speak

Rev. and Mrs. H. N. Lindwall, missionaries, will speak at 9:45 and 11 a.m. services tomorrow at the Southern Marin Assembly of God in Mill Valley.

Prior to their missionary appointment, the Lindwalls were pastors of several churches in California, including the First Baptist Church in Novato. Appointed by the foreign mission board of the Southern Baptist convention in 1960, they studied Spanish in Costa Rica for a year.

They were stationed in Quezaltenango, Guatemala. They also served in Coban and later in Panajachel and Guatemala City.

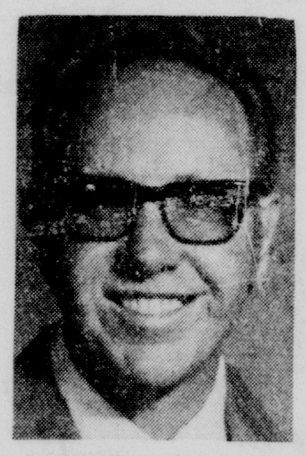

On Dec. 10, the Lindwall family, which includes two teen-age sons, will be transferred to Panama where Lindwall will serve as director of theological training school.

Tomorrow they will be assisted by their sons, Timothy and David, in the mission day activities.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST SCIENTIST

The First Church of Christ Scientist in Petaluma started in 1906, just 27 years after a group led by Mary Baker Eddy founded the church in Boston, Mass. The group gathered at the Brown Building at Washington and Keller streets. In 1908 it gained recognition from the group in Boston and moved to Fifth and S streets and a reading room was started there. Then in 1910 it moved again to the McNear Building at 20 Main Street. In 1917 a lot was purchased at Sixth and B streets where the present church is now located. It was dedicated on Jan. 15, 1928 after it was completely free of debt.

HONORED — Allen Pinkerton, administrator of Valley Christian School and assistant pastor at Valley Baptist Church, will be honored at a reception at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Valley Baptist Church at 3 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael. Pinkerton, his wife, Myrna, and their three sons recently moved to Novato from Portland, Ore.

Study Series Is Featured

A study series on the various ways people celebrate the Nativity will start at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the Westminster United Presbyterian Church at 240 Tiburon Boulevard, Belvedere-Tiburon.

The services will continue after the morning worship on Dec. 1, 8 and 15 in the fireside room of the church.

The customs, decorations and other material from other countries will be featured.

Program Set

The liberated wailing wall, a group of six Jews for Jesus will give a special program at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Carpenter's Hall at 647 Lindaro Street, San Rafael.

'Footprints' To Be Shown

"Footprints in Stone," a full-color documentary motion picture will be shown at 7 p.m. tomorrow at Calvary Baptist Church, Baltimore and Holcomb Avenues, Larkspur.

Geologist Clifford Burdick, author of several books and articles, has made the film of scientific research in the Paluxy River, near Glenn Rose, Tex. where human footprints were discovered in the same rock strata with dinosaur tracks.

Thomas Aquinas: 'Angelic Doctor'

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

To his classmates, as G. K. Chesterton reminds in his delightful biography, Thomas Aquinas was known as "the dumb ox."

History, however, has looked differently on the mind of Aquinas and the nickname that has stuck has not been "dumb ox" but "the Angelic Doctor."

This year marks the 700th anniversary of the death of Aquinas and therefore brings a whole series of reappraisals of both his life and work — especially among Protestants, prejudiced by Martin Luther's dismissal of the theologian as "the greatest chatterbox" of the medieval scholastics.

It has been marked, for example, by a major new biography of Aquinas, James A. Weisheipl's "Friar Thomas D'Aquino," along with a new edition of Chesterton's "Saint Thomas Aquinas; 'The Dumb Ox'" (both Doubleday, the latter a Doubleday Image paperback).

In addition, such magazines as the liberal Protestant "Christian Century" and the conservative Protestant "Christianity Today" have both run reappraisals of Aquinas.

It is noteworthy that contemporary commemorations mark Aquinas' death and not his birth.

That is partly because very little is actually known about his life. His date of birth is uncertain and for a long time his place of birth was a matter of scholarly dispute.

What is certain is that Aquinas was born into a turbulent age, not unlike this one, marked by many of the same problems as this one — urban squalor, university unrest, economic inflation and uncertainty, and exciting scientific breakthroughs.

All of these seemed to conspire against the faith of the church.

One example of the turmoil of the time touched Aquinas' life very directly. In 1244, after leaving the Benedictine monastery, Aquinas joined the still emerging Dominican order — a radical group stressing voluntary poverty, missionary zeal and a strong return to the Bible. His joining the Dominicans brought him into conflict with his family and they kidnapped him and held him under house arrest for a time.

A year later the young man was in Paris, studying at the university under Albert the Great, one of the most brilliant of the medieval minds. It was there that Aquinas, soon to be one of Christianity's greatest missionaries to intellectuals, acquired the nick-name "the Dumb-Ox."

Thomas' great contribution was in the appropriation of Aristotelian thought for theology.

Aristotle's thought was at that time the primary vehicle for a scientific challenge to the faith of the church but Aquinas argued that all philosphical truth has a place within Christian thought.

INTERIM — Dr. Richard B. Cunningham of the staff of the Golden Gate Baptist Seminary is serving as the interim pastor of the First Baptist Church of San Rafael. Dr. Cunningham is associate professor of systematic theology and philosophy of religion. HOW CAN YOU HELP YOUR CHILD IN SCHOOL?

School can be a demanding place. But in a Christian Science Sunday School, children learn that God is the source of intelligence, talent, confidence.
From Bible lessons and discussions with their teachers and other pupils, young people learn how to express more of these qualities every day.
There's a warm welcome awaiting your child this week at the

A Master Pie-Baker Shares Secrets—

By DOROTHY GARDINER

To many families sitting down to Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday the dessert will mean as much as the traditional turkey and stuffing.

According to master pie-maker N. Christopher (Chris) Gartman of Ignacio, who has created the recipes for all the pies and pastries sold at the Hick'ry Pit in the Strawberry Town & Country Village Shopping Center, a good pie is the result of a "long complicated process" requiring "trial, error and patience."

Gartman, president of the corporation that operates the Hick'ry Pit in Southern Marin, talked of pie-making and his 23 years as a restaurateur as he stood in his restaurant's spotless baking kitchen that is not a great deal larger than most family kitchens across the country.

A NATIVE OF Alabama, he moved to the Bay Area in 1947 to study at the University of California at Berkeley and to major in restaurant business at San Francisco City College.

Following graduation in 1951, he went to work, he said, as a fry cook for the Hick'ry Pit in San Francisco.

After becoming chef, the following year and then age 26, he said, he began developing, changing and improving the recipes that are used in his restaurant today.

By the time he was 34, in 1961, Gartman was head of the San Francisco restaurant. Four years later, in 1965, he opened the corporation's second Hick'ry Pit in Southern Marin. In 1968 the San Francisco restaurant was closed after it lost its lease.

Today Gartman supervises while his head baker and an assistant daily turn out several hundred pies to be sold for restaurant and retail sale.

"MANY PEOPLE dine here," he said with pride, "just because of our pies."

Originally "we did not intend to go into retail sales but the pies were so good, people requested them to go."

As a result today half the pies made every day are sold over the counter and the other half eaten in the restaurant.

(Along with the pies, the restaurant makes its own cakes and Danish pastries. Gartman said it took 18 months to develop his recipe for a pancake batter that is now a featured item on the menu.)

Even though Gartman and his staff use a barrel of flour at a time in making their pies and have at their disposal a giant mixer that automatically counts strokes, a vertical mixer with a timer and a gigantic yellow oven with a 120 pie capacity that has rotating shelves to "provide an even distribution of heat," Gartman has adapted some of his pie-making methods for the housewife to use in making holiday pies in her own home kitchen.

STRESSING THE importance of ingredients, Gartman said he always uses fresh eggs, milk and whipping cream in baking and that he never uses "mixes, powdered or synthetic products."

Even the vanilla used, he said, is "pure bourbon vanilla extract."

The pie crust is the most difficult thing to make, he said. A negligible amount of water should be used in blending the dough, he stressed. To get a flaky crust pie dough should be made ahead of time, placed in a baking pan and chilled overnight in the refrigerator.

Immediately after filling the shell, he said, place it in a hot oven on top of a heavy plated cookie sheet. This sheet helps induct heat instantly into the bottom of the pie.

Following are Chris Gartman's recipes for two single crust, nine-inch holiday pies:

THE PIE CRUST

3 cups all purpose flour
1 cup vegetable shortening
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. sugar

Blend dry mix with fingers, knife or pastry blender until the lumps of shortening are the size of small peas. (It's the small lumps that when baked make the crust flaky, Gartman said, and over mixing will result in a mealy dough and a crumbling pie.)

Sprinkle three or four tablespoons of ice water over the mixture until the dough begins to cling together.

Roll out and place in two nine-inch pans. Flute edges and place pans in refrigerator overnight.

For holiday desserts Gartman suggests a traditional spicy pumpkin pie, or for a change of pace, a pecan pie, that he says is the Southern version of the old-time Pennsylvania Dutch shoo-fly pie.

SPICY PUMPKIN PIE

Mix together until blended:

1½ cup pumpkin
1 cup milk, light cream or half and half
½ cup light brown sugar
2 eggs, beaten slightly
½ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. nutmeg
¼ tsp. ginger
¼ tsp. salt

Fill chilled pie shell with mixture. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven for 50 to 55 minutes until filling has consistency of set jello.

Cool and serve.

PECAN PIE

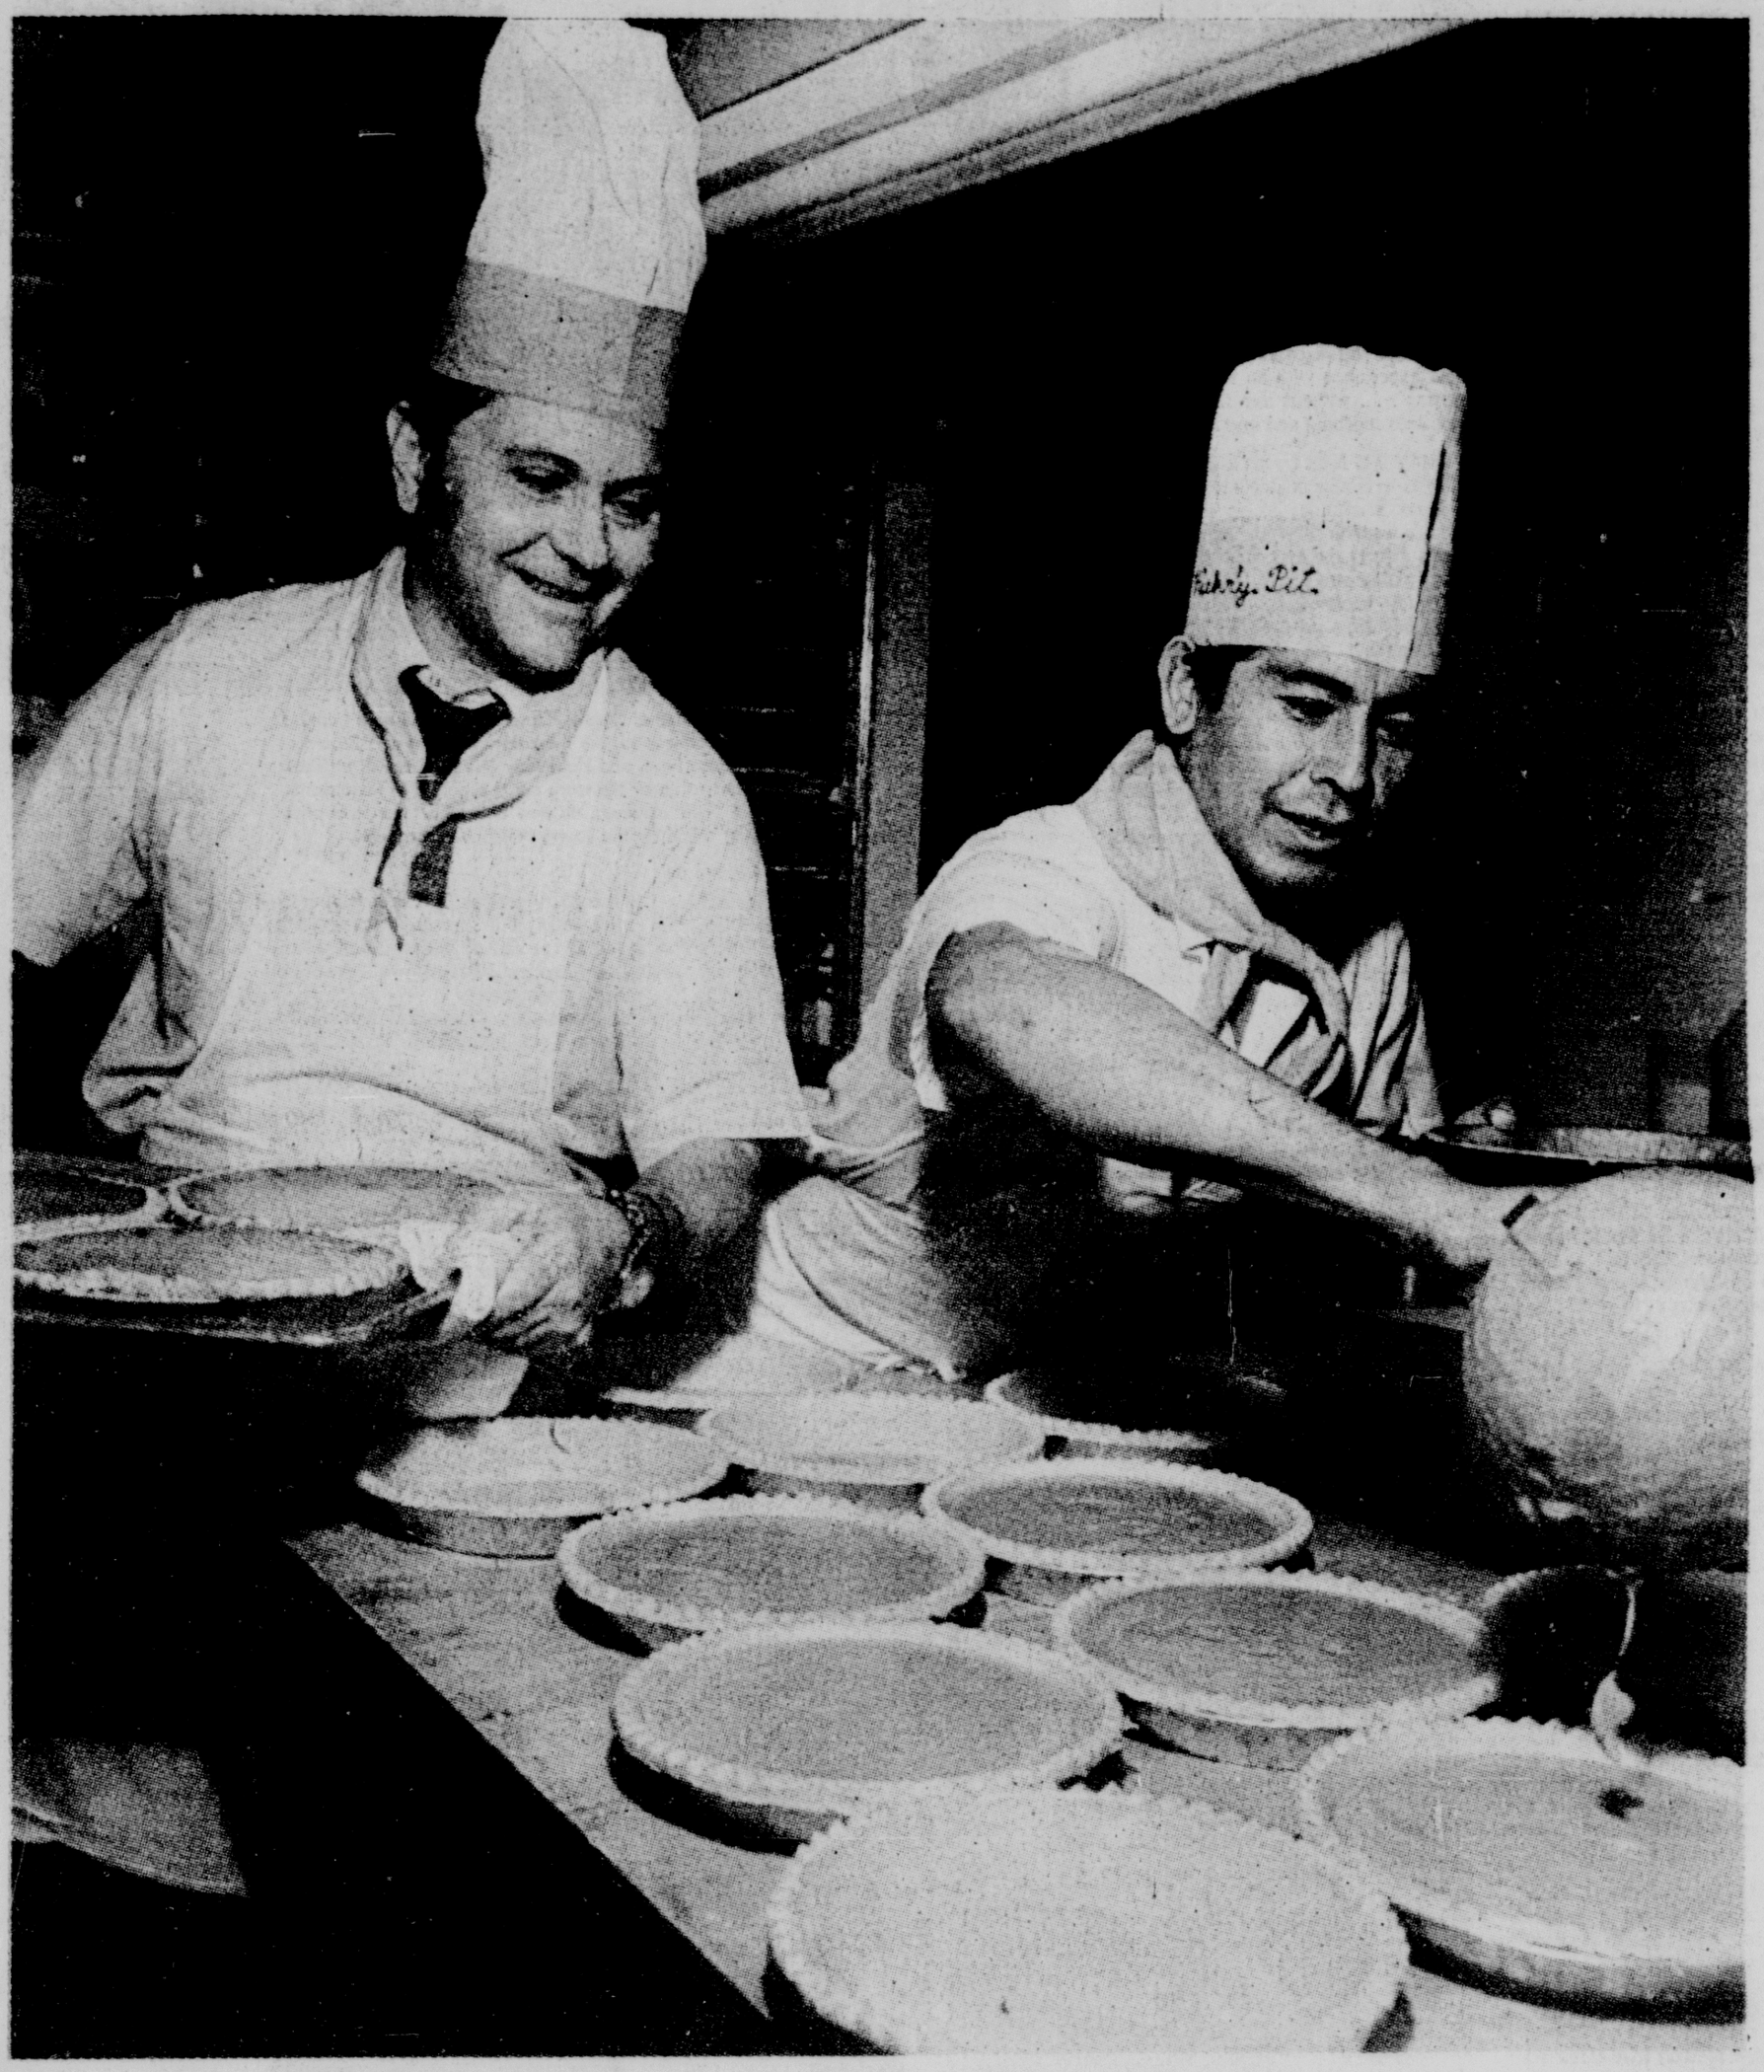

Place in top of a double boiler:

1 cube (less 1 tbs.) butter or margarine
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed for weight
1 cup light Karo syrup
1 cup chopped pecans

When warm, remove mixture from heat and add three large or four medium sized, lightly beaten eggs. (Addition of a quarter teaspoon maple extract is optional.)

Pour mixture into chilled pie shell. Immediately bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes, or until filling is set. Cool and serve.

For those not wishing to bake, the Hick'ry Pit is now taking orders for holiday pies, Gartman said, and will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Thanksgiving Day.

WITH THANKSGIVING almost upon us, the pumpkin pie becomes the king of the menu at the Strawberry Town & Country Village's Hick'ry Pit, widely known among dessert fans for its pies. Here N. Christopher (Chris) Gartman, left, president of the corporation that operates the Hick'ry Pit and master pie-maker, and baker Jesus Jose Garcia turn out some of the tasty holiday treats in the restaurant's compact but well-equipped baking kitchen. Gartman, creator of all the pie recipes used by the Hick'ry Pit, has adapted two holiday favorites, pumpkin and pecan, for the home cook, and shares them on this page with readers of the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine. Laser, The Volkswagen Of The Sailing Industry

By RON LENT

Laser.

It's the Volkswagen of the sailing industry. Why? Because, among other reasons, it costs only $855.

While touring the Laser's San Rafael warehouse, Performance Sailcraft Corp. president Don Trask explained the Volkswagen analogy.

The mustachioed, husky Trask said: "We manufacture it to precise specifications (13 feet, 10½ inches long, 130 pounds). It costs less to race a Laser than ski in winter. We make all our boats here (at 33 Duffy Place) the same.

"That's why it is ideal for racing. It means a race of skill, not pocketbook. Laser races are decided by sailing abilities. The precise specifications make it great for international racing."

IN JULY, THE International Yahct Racing Union granted international status to the class, just three years after the

Indian Valley's Students Relive The Renaissance

MARIN MAGAZINE

By MAY KRAMER

"We want students to 'experience' their subject, not just study one aspect of it," said instructor Victor Minasian of Indian Valley Colleges.

He was talking about the course listed as Coordinated Studies Class 232: The Renaissance, a new concept in interdisciplinary studies which Indian Valley Colleges is pioneering.

There are about 40 students in this class and they approach their subject from four different aspects . . . the art, music, history, and literature of the Renaissance period, under the guidance of four instructors.

VICTOR MINASIAN, the music instructor, also teaches philosophy and history at Indian Valley and History at College of Marin.

Dick Warren (also an art history instructor at College of Marin) teaches Art of the Renaissance.

Maria von Bolschwing, who teaches English at Santa Rosa Junior College, instructs the Indian Valley class in literature of the period, and Robert Becklund explains the history of the Renaissance. He also teaches history at College of Marin.

"We tried teaching together last year for the first time," Maria von Bolschwing said. "We gave a course on the Romantic period — the 19th century. It was so successful from every point of view that we were glad to team up again this year for the Renaissance class."

INDIAN VALLEY Colleges is the new campus in the Marin Community College District, and now, in its fourth year of existence, beginning to make a name for itself. Few people had heard about Indian Valley Colleges until last fall when it moved to its present location at Pacheco Elementary School on Ignacio Boulevard in Novato.

Prior to that, classes were held in the evenings at a junior high school and later at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The present enrollment at IVC is 1,721 students (day and evening), 64 per cent of whom are women. The average age of students is 27 years old, reflecting a nationwide trend of adults returning to school.

The philosophy at Indian Valley is that education should always be flexible and responsive to change. And since the school is still in its infancy, it can afford to take innovative steps to find its direction.

CREATING A COLLEGE to suit the needs of everyone in the community is no easy challenge. To attempt that goal Indian Valley attracted a president in Dr. Ernest H. Berg who it felt would be equal to the challenge. Dr. Berg, the former president of Alameda Junior College, was responsible for the creation of that college within the Peralta College District.

At Indian Valley, Dr. Berg and his faculty are building a college system which they say is "designed to serve all the people in the community."

"Everyone is welcome at IVC," they add. "The recent high school graduate, the retired person, people seeking vocational re-training, or people who just want the stimulation of a course of lecture."

Women returning to school have a program set up especially for them, which includes counseling and child care.

IN CREATING ITS institutional structure, Indian Valley Colleges looked to students for ideas, and ways to improve upon the learning experience.

The college is being created around the idea of the small cluster college system, which can be traced back to the medieval Oxford-Cambridge method that clustered students and faculty together in modest numbers for their mutual benefit. The theory behind the planning is that students tend to learn better when there is closer contact between themselves and their instructors.

"Previously," said Victor Minasian, "general education was a matter of allowing students to put together a required number of units in social science, humanities, physical sciences and skills. The student often came away from the whole experience with no sense of cohesiveness . . . without any feeling of the disciplines meshing and overlapping.

"WHAT WE ARE trying to do at Indian Valley is to enable students to experience all these disciplines in an interrealted way. We want to show, for example, how politics affects the arts, and how science affects philosophy."

"To my knowledge," said Minasian, "there has been no previous attempt to bring together the concept of general education and interdisciplinary studies at the community college level."

How does it all work in practice?

Typical of the approach with the Renaissance class was the Saturday morning when a visit to the annual Renaissance Faire and Ha' Penney Market held annually at Black Point, Novato, was scheduled.

Before the students left for the Faire, Dick Warren showed slides of the Italian Renaissance. He lectured off-the-cuff, calling on his colleagues for corroboration or dispute. The other three instructors contributed their views.

The atmosphere was informal and demonstrated the open communication and shared inquiry approach that is typical of this class.

THEN THE GROUP left en masse for the faire, many of them costumed for the occasion. They entered the Faire together, splitting up afterwards into small groups. People were then free to concentrate on whatever aspect of the faire interested them most.

At the following class session there was a general discussion about the excursion in which views were freely aired and observations exchanged.

STUDENTS AND FACULTY of the "Coordinated Studies Class: The Renaissance" course left the campus of their Indian Valley Colleges to join the colorful throng one Saturday morning that poured into the Renaissance Faire and Ha' Penny Market grounds at Black Point. The purpose: to permit the class to savor the close approximation to Renaissance culture and society that the annual faire achieves. It was typical of the innovative approaches to higher education being taken by the young North Marin college.
(Photos by Bob Hass)

Next semester the same four instructors will teach a class called the "Romantic Strain," which deals with Europe in the 19th century. In addition to art, music, history and literature, Indian Valley plans to round the course off with the addition of physical science of the period taught by Dr. Manus Monroe.

The class will meet on nine consecutive Saturdays for a credit of three units.

THE ROMANTIC STRAIN was given last fall and was a most popular course. Field trips, to look at art and architecture of the period, are an integral part of this course. In addition, students worked on individual projects.

One student researched dolls of the period.

Two other students, who were interested in cuisine, created a dinner based on 19th century recipes. It was served to the entire class at a costumed dinner party given at the end of the semester. At the dinner, another student gave a recital of songs by Schumann.

Indian Valley Colleges is looking forward to yet bigger things in the fall of 1975.

At that time the school will make its initial move to the new 330-acre campus which is currently under construction. The site of the new campus is the Pacheco Ranch, an old Mexican land grant.

The campus has been left almost entirely in its natural condition. The architectural design of the buildings, carried out in redwood and glass, has been conceived to blend into the natural beauty of the setting, making use of the trees in the area.

THREE OF THE FOUR instructors for Indian Valley Colleges' "Coordinated Studies Class 232: The Renaissance" were photographed in costumes they donned for the class field trip to the Renaissance Pleasure Faire at nearby Black Point. Left to right are Robert Becklund, Dick Warren and Victor Minasian. Maria von Bolschwing is the fourth instructor for the course which represents a new concept in interdisciplinary studies that is being pioneered at Indian Valley.

THE JUGGLER was an entertainer whose skills were much admired in Renaissance days. And visiting Indian Valley Colleges students found one at the Renaissance Pleasure Faire to appreciate and enjoy as they recaptured something of the feeling of the era they had been studying. Their visit was preceded by a classroom briefing, and followed by a general discussion during which the students exchanged observations and opinions derived from the faire.

A Lot Of Boat For Little Cost

Laser's introduction. Trask was discussing the possibility that, with IYRU recognition, the Laser could become an Olympic Games event in, say, 1980.

Meanwhile, Trask's staff is building 16 boats a day. The young staff works 10 hours per day, Monday through Thursday. It takes 25 hours to build one boat.

Trask's goal is to warehouse 400 boats in winter storage.

"People don't often buy boats in winter. But come the spring, we won't be able to build them fast enough," Trask said. As evidence, he noted that 4,000 Lasers have been constructed in Marin, 3,000 in San Rafael.

THE FIRST 1,000 were developed at 65 Industrial Way in Corte Madera. "We started two and a half years ago in Corte Madera with 1,800 square feet. Now we've got 27,000 square feet."

And the future is bright for this one-design venture valued at an estimated six million dollars.

"We know we've got a good, simple, solid idea. It's marketable and in demand," Trask said.

Trask considers the Laser "the highest quality off-the-beach sailboat on the market at its price." Among its standard features are: fiberglass hull and deck; watertight seal between hull and deck; dacron sail; 300 pounds positive buoyancy sealed in polyethylene bags to resist styrene; non-skid deck; towing eye; wood rudder blade and centerboard; self-bailing cockpit; adjustable hiking straps; and sail bag.

IN POINTING OUT how the boat works, Laser vice president Bill Kreysler said: "It is basically like sailing any boat. But you hook your toes in underneath a strap and lean your body in a given direction to counteract the wind which is pushing the boat. You compensate for the force of the sail while tipping sideways.

"The boat is easy to sail, because it is well designed and efficient.

"Its more than just for recreation. It's a sport ... It can carry up to three people and travel about 20 knots in the ocean with a good breeze."

Speed is of essence when considering that there is a world championship for Lasers. The first championships were held Oct. 13-19 in Bermuda.

BECAUSE OF THE Laser's versatility and appeal, it has enabled the business to expand.

There are eight Laser factories, including the San Rafael one. The others are in Banbury, England; Waterford, Ireland; Neuchatel, Switzerland, Sydney, Australia; Auckland, New Zealand; Kanagawa-Ken, Japan, and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

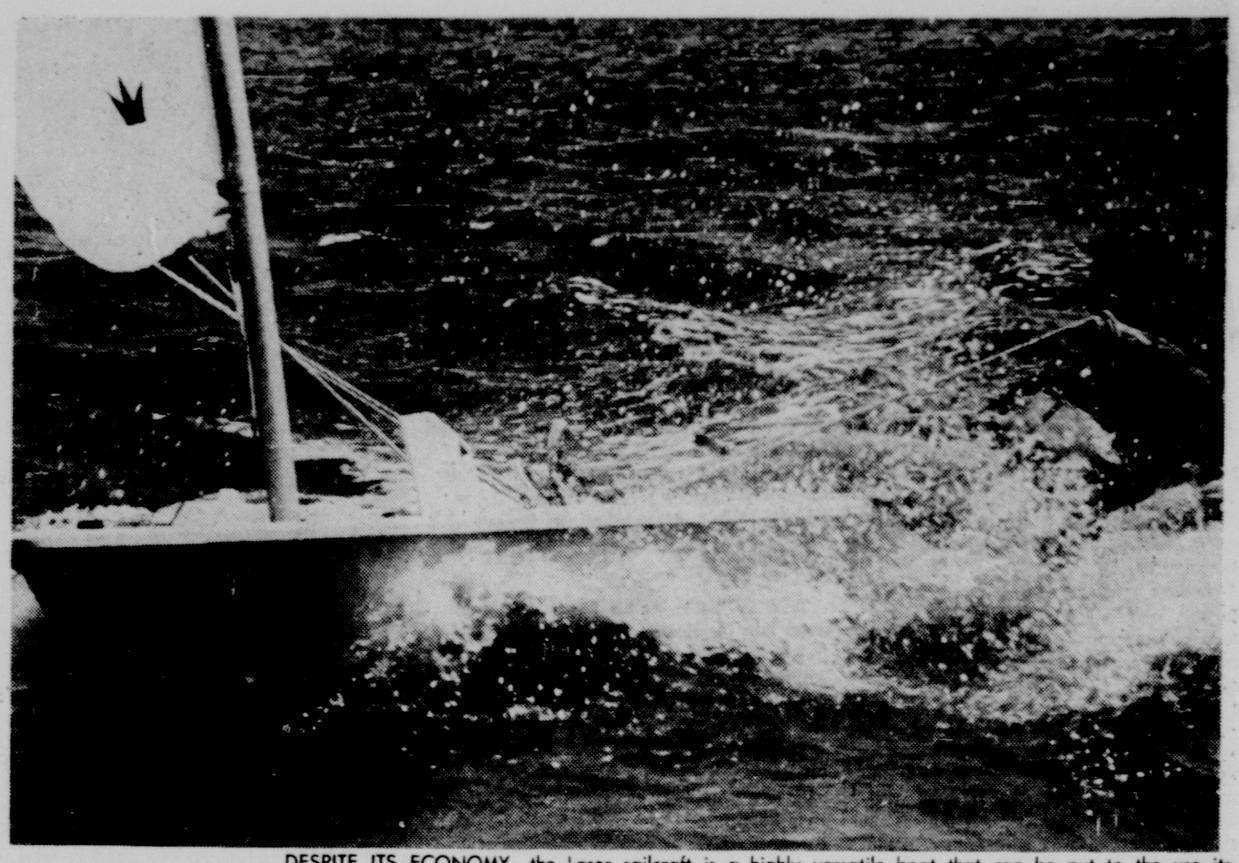

The San Rafael office services "from here to the Mississippi, including Honolulu, Mexico, Guam, Philippines, Japan and Panama. Because our market is continually growing, we've increased production from 900 to 2,100 boats from '73 to '74," according to Trask.

Trask believes: "This is virtually an untapped business which has opened boating to thousands of people who otherwise couldn't afford the activity."

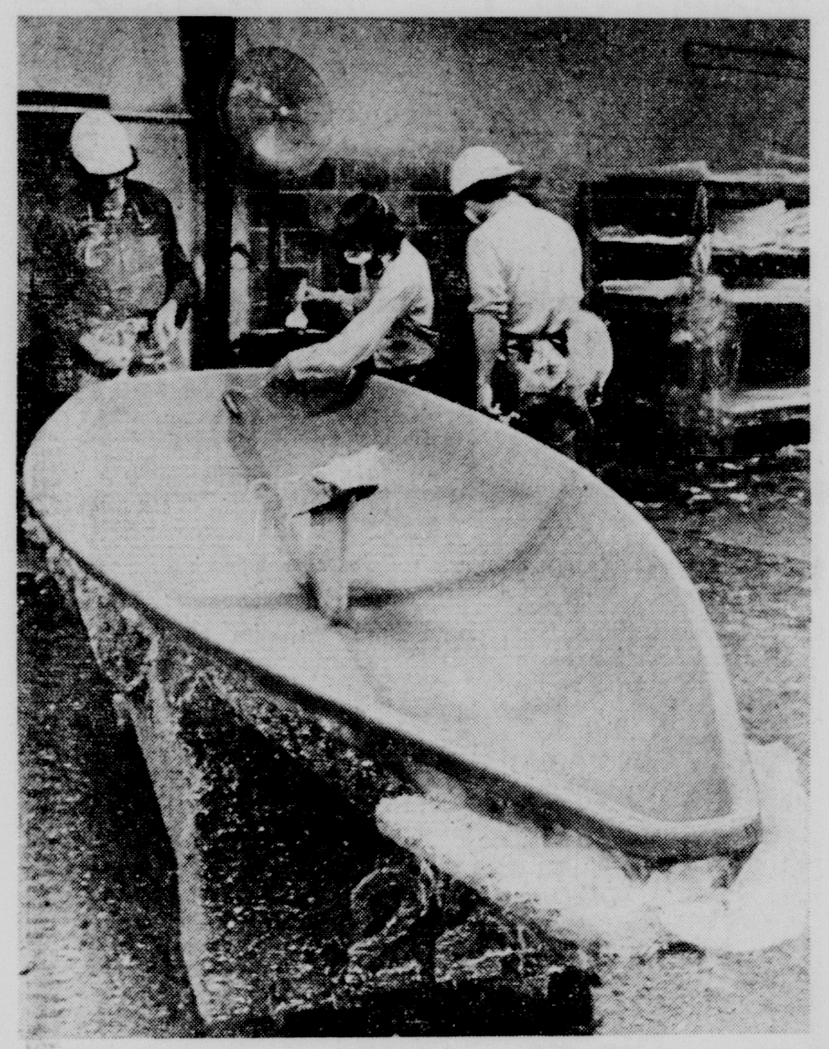

He added that "you can sail on the beach, on an ocean, on lakes, in competition or for recreation."

On the topic of Laser recreation, it was said that Laser fleets have formed on the Belvedere, Greenbrae, and Bel Marin Keys lagoons. These groups sail together on weekends.

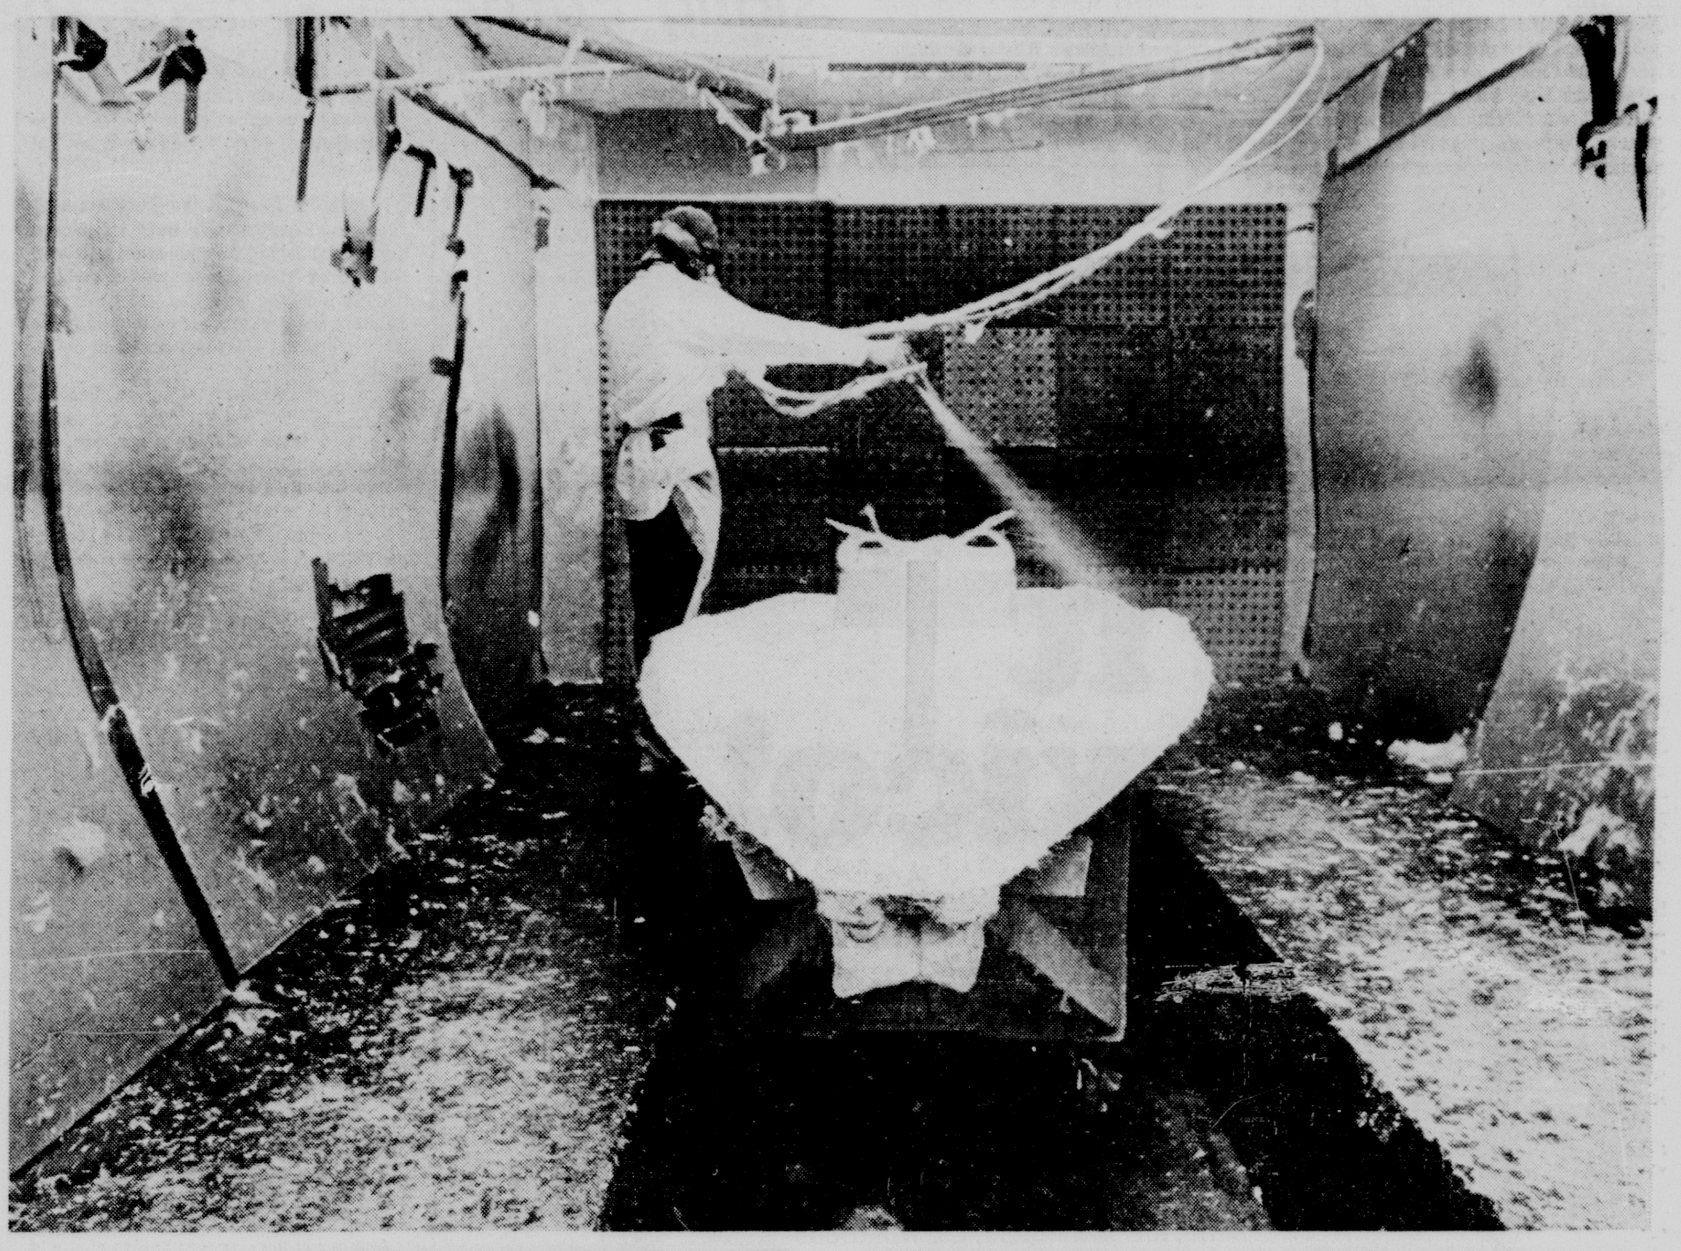

With such groups forming, it is not surprising that the Laser is becoming more lucrative as a business and as a pleasure.

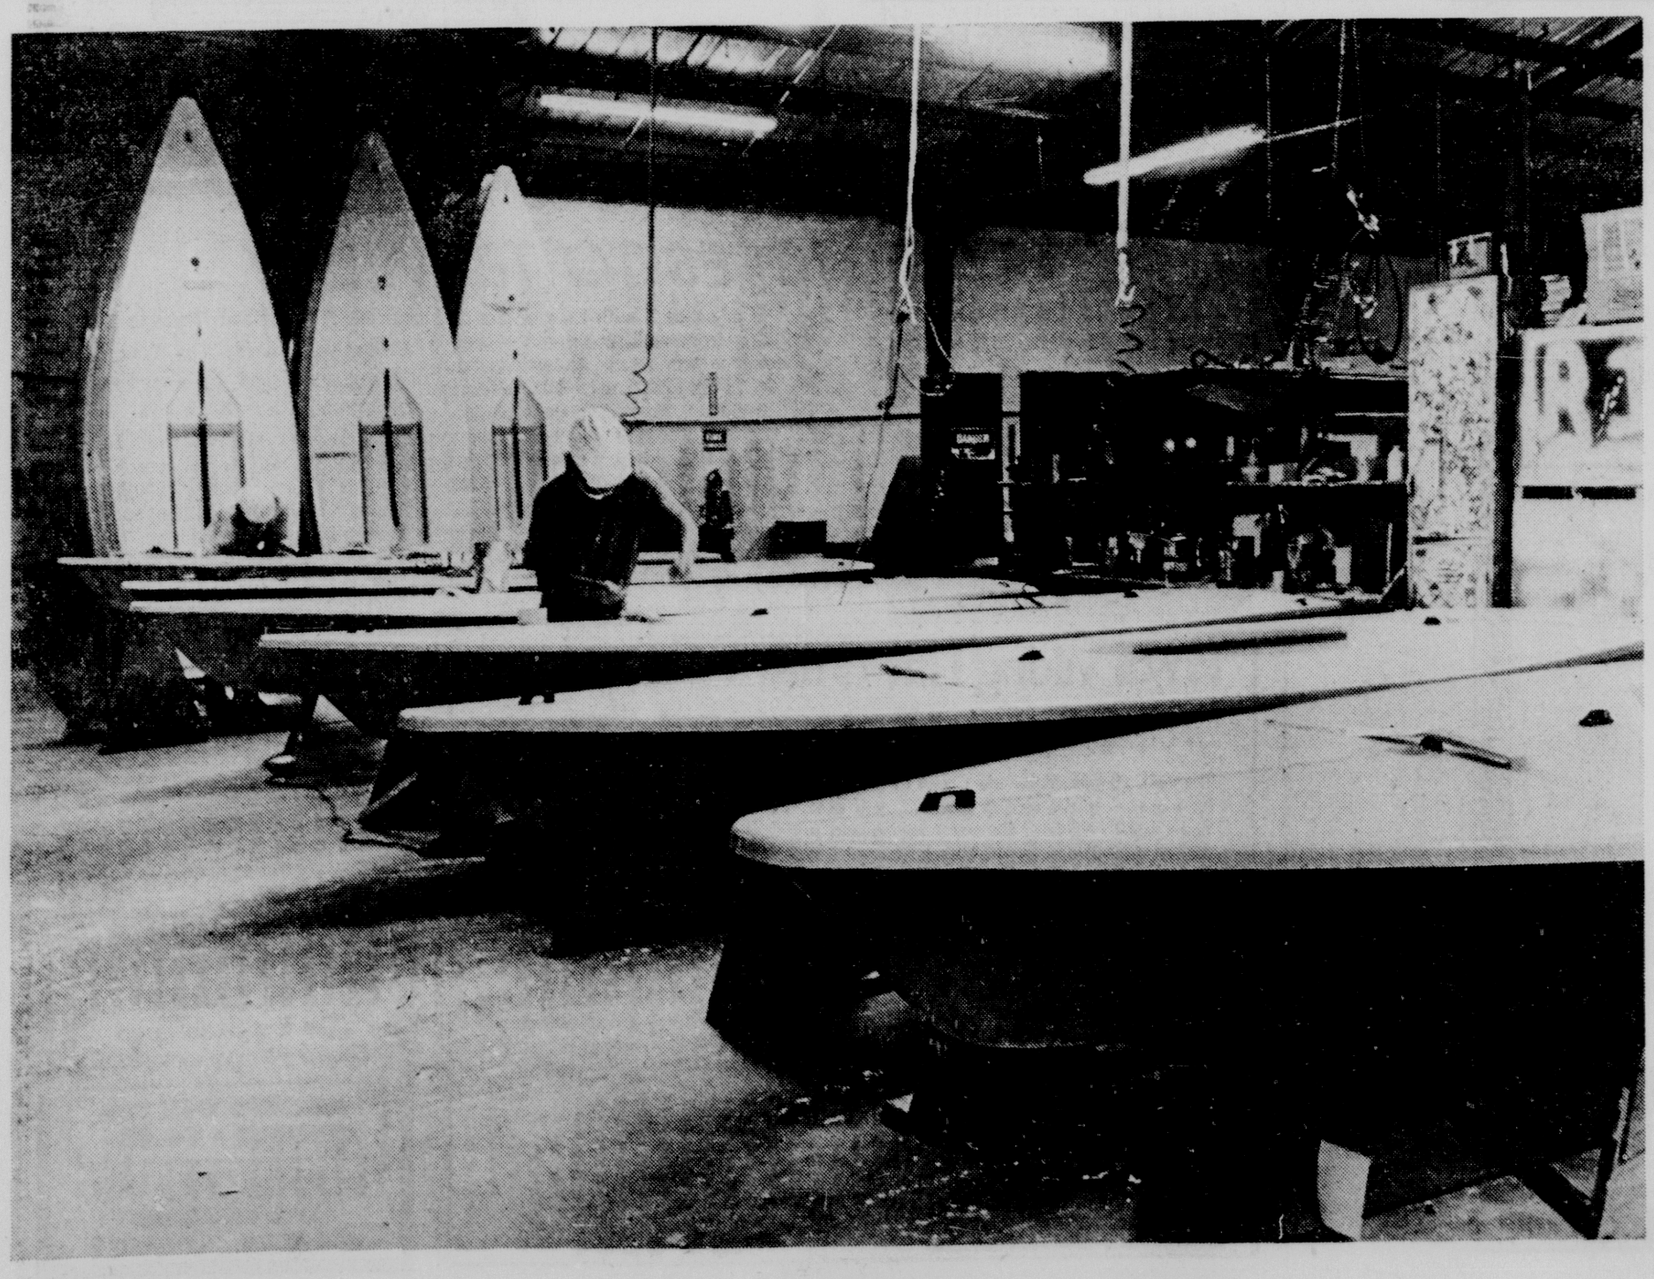

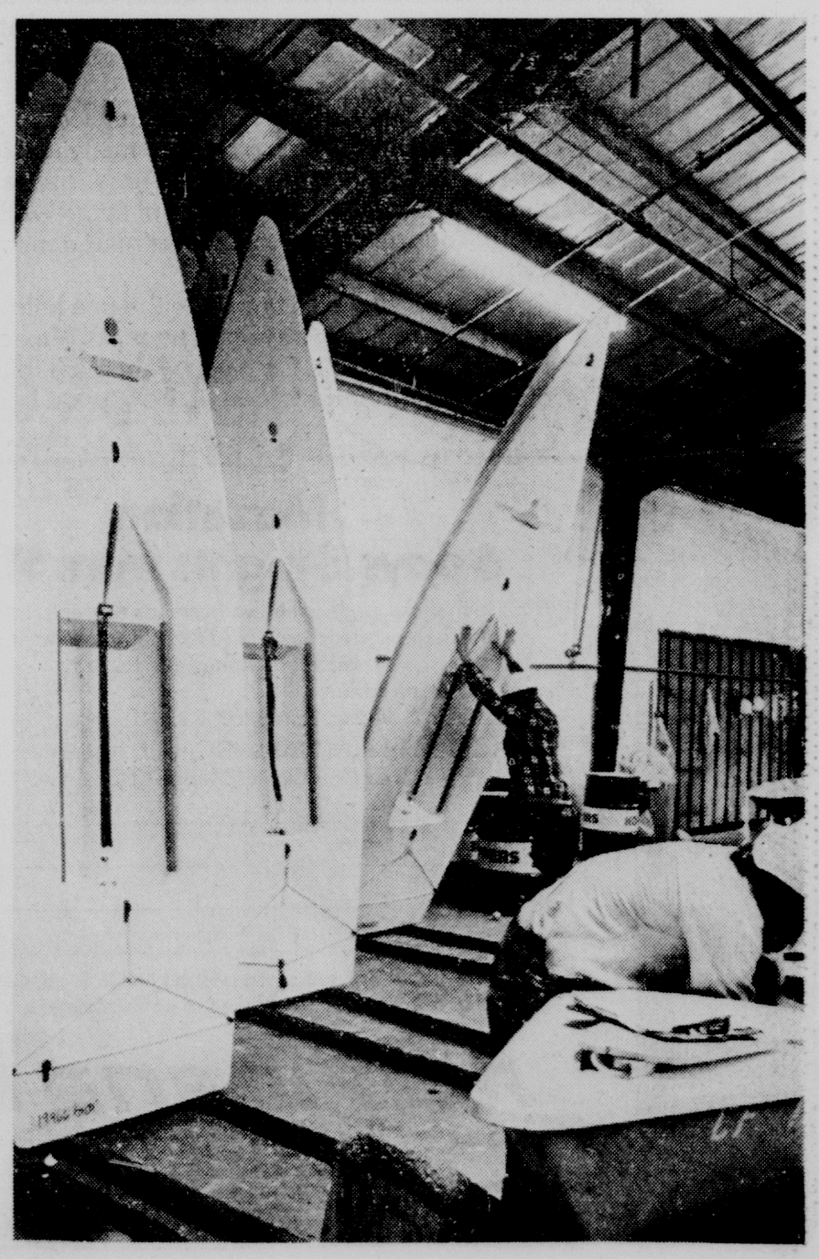

DESPITE ITS ECONOMY, the Laser sailcraft is a highly versatile boat that can be put to the use its skipper's tastes dictate. It can be, as shown at left, a speedy racing craft, and it now has its own world championships. Or it can be, as shown above, simply a means of relaxation and recreation.

LASER CLASS SAILBOATS, 13 feet, 10½ inches long, weighing 130 pounds and selling for $855, are being produced at an increasing tempo in Performance Sailcraft Corp.'s 27,000-square-foot plant at 33 Duffy Place, San Rafael. Production has now hit 16 boats a day, with a goal of a winter stockpile of 400 of the boats to meet the expected boom in demand, come spring. In addition there are seven other Laser factories in as many different lands. The San Rafael-based firm started operations in Corte Madera two and a half years ago, before moving to the more spacious San Rafael site. To date, it has constructed 4,000 Lasers, and the market demand has been brisk.

For An Historic Stroll, Walk Freedom Trail

BOSTON — Who needs time machines when there's Boston, where a trek back in time is just so many steps along the Freedom Trail?

A mile and a half walking tour features churches, graveyards, houses of revlutionary heroes and other relics of the American heritage.

Freedom Trail also points up the city's exciting contrast of past mixed with present. Many of the historical sites, for example, are nestled among modern-day skyscrapers.

TO BEGIN THE tour, pick up the free Freedom Trail booklet and map from the information booth on the Tremont side of the Boston Common, the first of the historic sites along the trail. A plaque at the Common shows where the British set sail on their ill-fated expedition to Lexington and Concord. The Charles River lapped at the edge of the Common in those days.

In the 1600s, pirates, Quakers and "witches" were hanged on the Common.

From this point, the Trail leads to the gold-domed State House, designed by Charles Bulfinch, who also was the architect for the Capitol in Washington. The Charter of Massachusetts Bay Company (1628), orders signed by Gen. George Washington and numerous other historic documents are on dispaly in the Archives Museum in the State House basement.

AT THE OLD Granary Burying Ground, be sure and read some of the tombstones. For example, "Stop here my Friends and Cast an Eye/ As you are now so Once was I/ As I am now so you must be:/ Prepare for Death and Follow Me."

Among the prestigious laid to rest here are Paul Reverr, Tom Paine, John Hancock, Samuel Adams and five victims of the Boston Massacre.

Also on the Freedom Trail is the Old Corner Bookstore (1712), which was the favorite haunt of Longfellow, Emerson, Thoreau, Harriet Beecher Stowe and Julia Ward Howe.

THE LIVELY MEETINGS that developed into the Boston Massacre were held in the Old South Meeting House. Sam Adams served as a deacon when the hose was used as a church and as a town clerk when it was used for public meetings.

The Old State House (1713) was the office of the colonial governors, as well as a plce where patriots schemed against Britain. It later became the office of John Hancock, the first governor of Massachusetts.

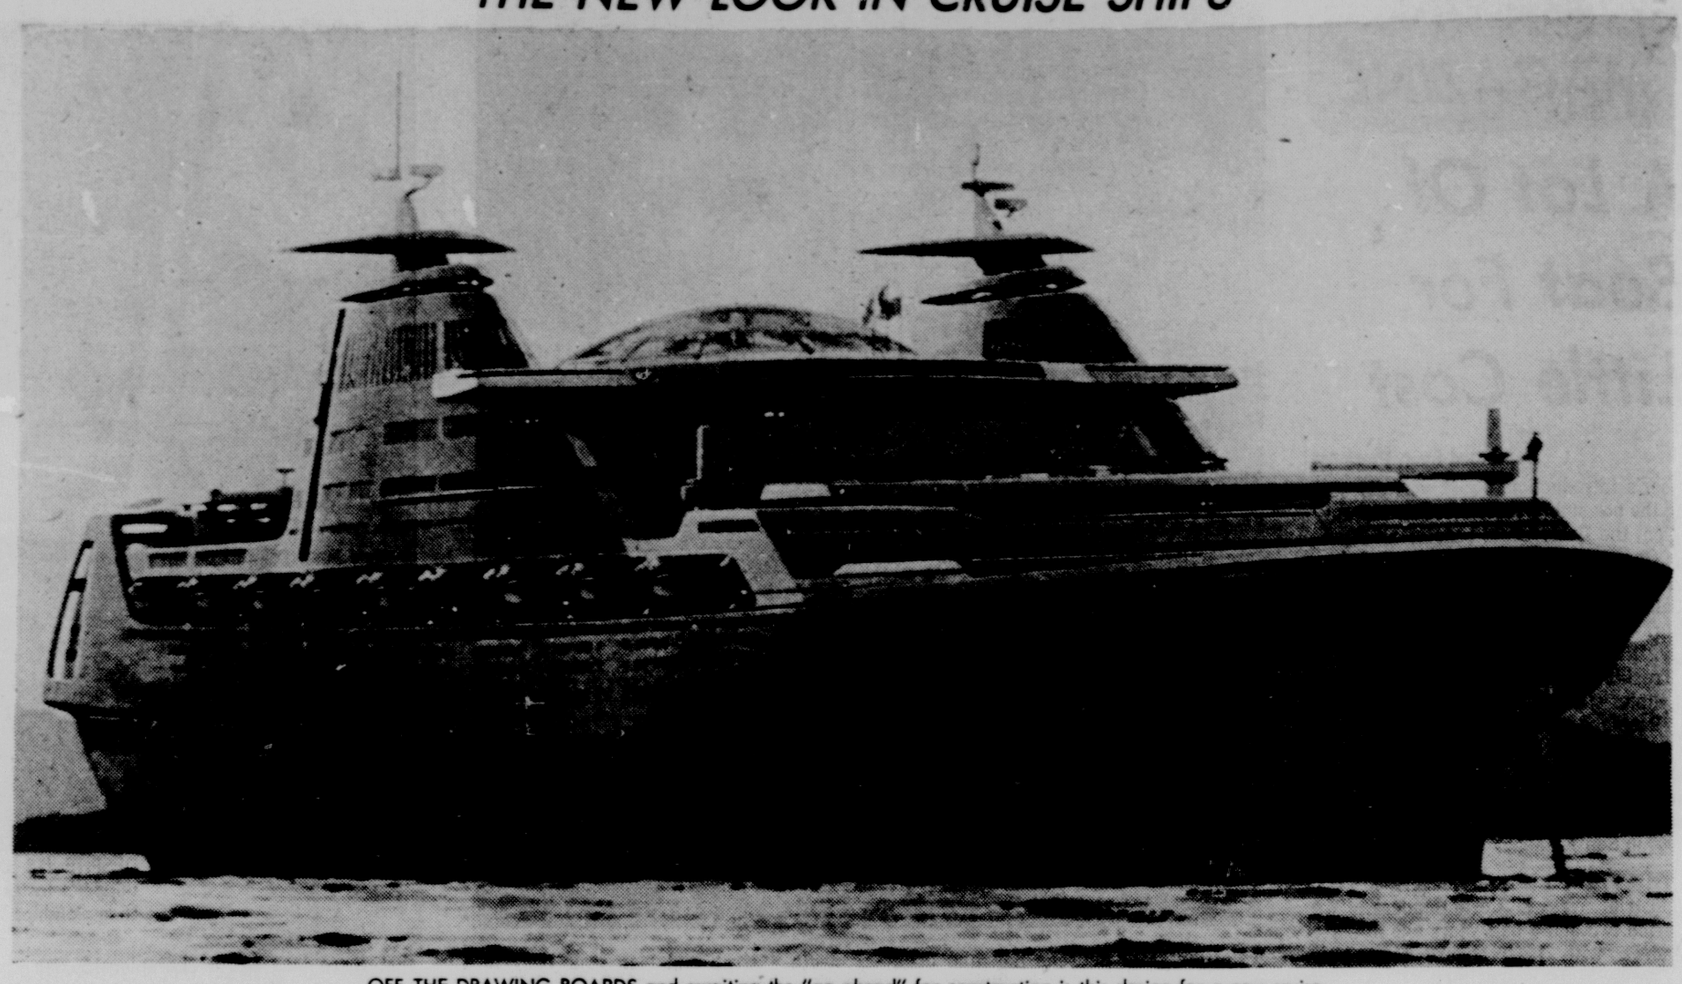

Near the Old State House a circle of cobbles marks the site of the Boston Massacre.

THE TOUR ALSO includes Faneuil Hall (1742), which was given to the city by Peter Faneuil, a rich merchant. However, he stipulated that the hall must house markets on the ground floor and a meeting hall above. At meetings protesting the Stamp Act and other indignities, fiery speeches in Faneuil Hall incited the colonists to seek independence from Britain

Three generations later, Daniel Webster and others spoke there with equal fervor against slavery. A large picture in front of the hall shows Wbster orating.

The Paul Revere House, the oldest residence in Boston, was built around 1677. It looks quite British with an overhanging second story.

THE NEW LOOK IN CRUISE SHIPS

OFF THE DRAWING BOARDS and awaiting the "go-ahead" for construction is this design for a new cruise liner for Norwegian Caribbean Lines. The ship is called "the Elysian Project," and is hailed as "the world's first cruise ship with a semi-catamaran design." The bow is conventional, but the double stern, providing a broader beam for greater stability and increased passenger activity, is unique. An observatory below the waterline would permit passengers to view marine life and reef configuration. A giant dome on the top deck would allow observers to practice their celestial navigation. The possibility of shipboard helicopters is under study. And the interior is opened up for a greater variety of dining, entertainment and recreational facilities. Construction, once it begins, will take two years.

Island Paradise Where The Cariocas Go To Relax

By ARTHUR H. PASTORE JR.

RIO DE JANEIRO — Paqueta, a mere speck of an island in Rio's wide blue harbor, has long been a favorite excursion spot of the Cariocas — as the citizens of Rio de Janeiro are called.

And today even more visitors are flocking to it, attracted by the unspoiled atmosphere.

PAQUETA IS LIKE the Bermuda of 25 years ago, before cars were introduced there. The island has no autos, no telephones, no trappings of modern civilization. In fact, the only way you can get to Paqueta is by motorboat or by taking the ferry from the Pharoux Docks in downtown Rio.

The hour-and-a-half trip is a pleasant one.

As you leave Rio, you can see the imposing highrises and skyscrapers that frame the city's long white beaches. The ferry has a festive air; people bound for a day's outing tote picnic baskets; someone plays an accordion and many passengers sing along.

AS THE FERRY enters the slip at Paqueta, you can see a fine beach fringed by waving palm trees. It looks like a travel poster of an island set in the South Pacific.

Paqueta consists of two hills connected by an isthmus (where the ferry docks). It's only a mile long, but that mile is a whole tropical garden surrounded by beaches. Take your pick of the hills and climb it; it's lovely up there, looking down at the people swimming and picnicking on the beach below.

In contrast with modern Rio de Janeiro with its crowds, skyscrapers and bustling commercial life, Paqueta is a leisurely place where people never rush.

THE ONLY VEHICLES are Old World carriages and bicycles. But the island is so small it is easy to walk over most of it in a few hours' time.

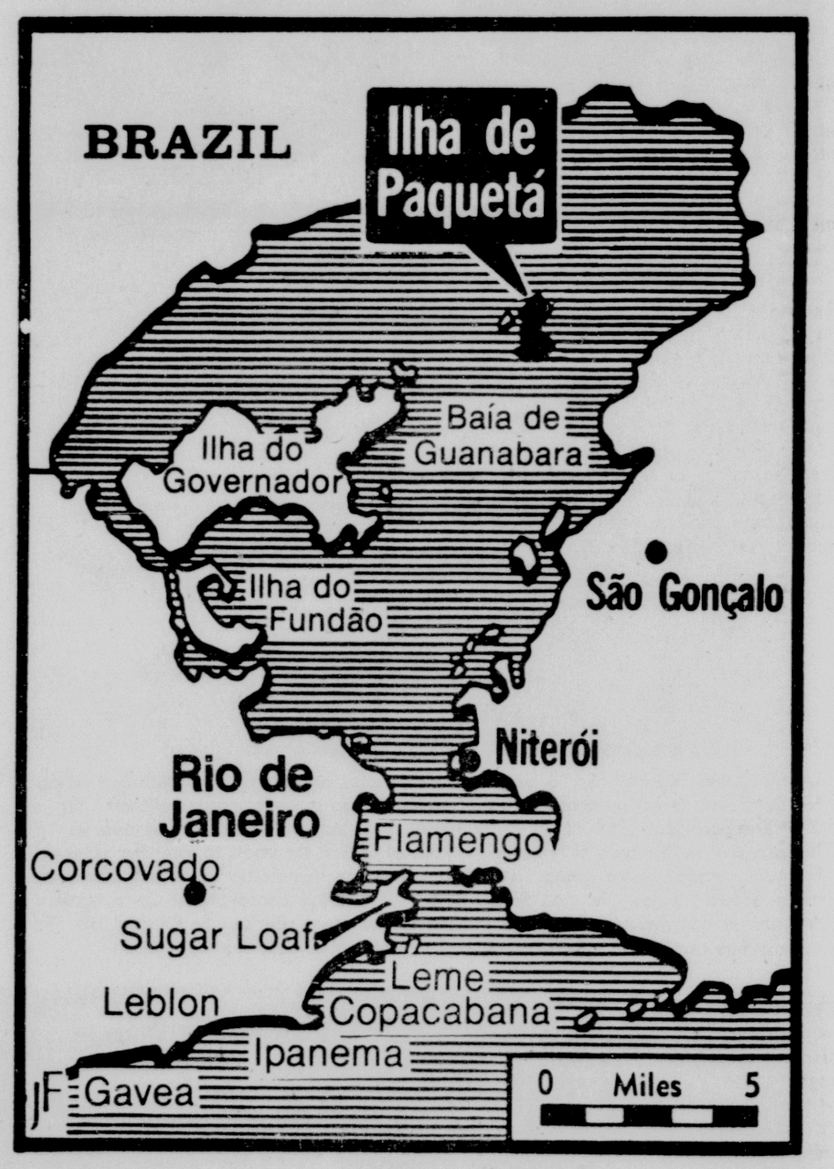

One of the highlights of the island is the Morehhina Mansion, where there's a pleasant restaurant in a grove of trees and flowers. The food is good and the atmosphere idyllic.

Another is the summer palace of one of Brazil's last kings, Emperor Don Joao VI.

But my most vivid memory of Paqueta is of watching the lengthening shadows after sunset, as I waited to catch the ferry back to Rio, just across the bay.

IN SEARCH OF THE AMERICAN DREAM: The Western Frontier

MARIN MAGAZINE

(Editor's Note: This is the ninth of 18 articles exploring the theme, "In Search of the American Dream." Under the general sub-title of "The Frontier Is The Future," this article discusses "The Frontier in Theory: From Jefferson to Turner." The series appears weekly in the Independent-Journal's Marin Magazine section.)

By WILLIAM H. GOETZMANN
Distributed by Copley News Service

A belief in the future formed the bedrock of the American Dream.

As the 19th century began, there stretched before the relatively small population of five and one-half million people the boundless western frontier. To Americans it was the land of opportunity and the strength of the new republic. It was also the source of moral virtue.

People in the wilderness lived closer to nature than Europeans. Nature was God's creation; hence to live closer to it was to live closer to God. For almost a century Americans felt themselves to be continuously present at the creation.

VERY EARLY IN our history, American thinkers began to develop theories about the frontier.

It seemed the actual embodiment of the English philosopher John Locke's "state of Nature" into which men entered as individuals endowed with inherent natural rights, grew into a mutually dependent society, and contracted with one another to form a government which would protect that society and those individual rights. Thomas Jefferson built a theory of independence upon Locke's idea and upon what he could glean from history that integrally involved the frontier experience.

Just as Anglo-Saxons had voluntarily brought free government from Northern Europe's forests to ancient Britain, so, too had individual British citizens come to America.

LIKE THE EARLY Anglo-Saxons in Britain, they had every right to form their own society and government in a new state of nature. The American experience was simply ancient British history repeating itself; when he looked to the West beyond the Blue Ridge Mountains, Jefferson saw an endless replication of this process.

This theme persisted throughout the 19th century until in 1890 the superintendent of the United States Census abruptly declared that the continuous frontier no longer existed.

Three years later, at the World Columbian Exposition in Chicago, the Wisconsin historian Frederick Jackson Turner dramatically explained the whole experience in "The Significance of the Frontier in American History," one of the most important historical addresses ever delivered by an American.

LOOKING BACKWARD, Turner stated that "American social development has been continually beginning over again on the frontier," and that this experience "furnish (ed) the forces dominating American character." Out of the frontier had come a new man, the democratic American, since the rough conditions of wild nature eroded away classes and distinctions, measured a man by his true functional worth and threw open a future for all who could contribute and survive. But, said Turner in 1893 with a touch of sadness, "the frontier is gone, and with its going has closed the first period of American history."

"American social development has been continually beginning over again on the frontier," wrote historian Frederick Jackson Turner, looking back over the 19th century. And this experience, he added, "furnished the forces that dominate American character."

For most 19th century Americans, however, the frontier was indeed the future — "the land of beginning over again."

EVEN WHILE confronting the loneliness, the hard life, and the terrors of Indian massacres, Americans habitually thought of the whole experience in optimistic images largely derived from European stereotypes. The West was the Garden of Eden.

"Oh, my honies," declared one Kentucky preacher, "heaven is a Kentucky of a place."

To labor from dawn 'til dusk hacking out a clearing in a vast forest was to be a "yeoman farmer." And, according to the historian Arthur Moore, to be an eye-gouging, ear-chewing, half-horse, half-alligator Mississippi River bully was really to be the celebrated centaur of Greek mythology. Booster towns with pretentious Old World names like Athens, Rome, Cairo and Carthage sprang up all over the west.

JEFFERSON HIMSELF proposed such names for the new western territories as Metropotamia, Michigania, Polisipia and the jaw-breaking Assenisipia (now Illinois).

Even the gold seekers of the Far West did not seek only for the mundane yellow metal. They searched for Golcondah, the city of untold riches. No matter how stark the realities of frontier life, Old World dreams, myths and images constantly programmed the people's imaginations and kept them on the road to a wilderness utopia.

The realities of the frontier experience, however, also confronted Americans with strange paradoxes.

THE GREAT EMPTY continent was not empty. It was populated by half a million Indians divided into an astonishingly varied series of social organizations whose ideas of "territorial imperatives" differed sharply from those of white pioneers.

At a loss as to how to deal with the redmen, European settlers reverted to Old World concepts and treated tribes, bands and cultures alike as "nations" with whom they could bargain for land and military alliances. The history of white-Indian relations in 19th century America is thus the history of broken treaties made with sometimes fictitious "nations," a long series of Indian battles — Tippecanoe, Horseshoe Bend, Sand Creek, Little Big Horn, Rosebud, the Lava Beds, Wounded Knee — and occasional gestures of humanitarianism such as the founding of the Carlisle Indian School.

IN GENERAL, HOWEVER, as Prof. Brian Dippie has pointed out, white Americans considered red Americans inevitably destined to become the vanishing Americans.

Government policy was aimed at making the Indian vanish through purchase of his lands and removal, wars of extermination, reservations which placed the Indian out of sight, or assimilation plans such as the Dawes Act which destroyed tribal culture in favor of white, Protestant, individualistic values and institutions.

The vanishing-Indian policy produced nothing but bitterness and tragic massacres of both red men and white. Always just beneath the surface of frontier success lay a psychological "dark and bloody ground" of Indian-white relations.

BEYOND THIS BASIC contradiction arose still another paradox for westering white Americans.

As they marched across the continent, felling trees, exterminating wild game, blasting away the sides of mountains, laying out railroads and shanty towns, fencing off farms and plowing the plains into dust, Americans brought into being the very discontents of civilization that they had left behind them.

They were on the horns of a great cultural dilemma. If unspoiled nature was a source of moral value, and if freedom was a function of the wilderness frontier, then the very task of subduing nature, of civilizing the wilderness, was culturally self-defeating.

THE NOVELIST JAMES Fenimore Cooper caught this dilemma in his "Leatherstocking Series." His buckskin hero, the hunter Natty Bumppo, who ranges far out ahead of the tide of settlement, is nature's moral nobleman — a symbol of freedom. But in Cooper's novels, Leatherstocking is seen to be inevitably and sadly anachronistic like the vanishing Indian. The progress of civilization with its man-made laws is inevitable.

Cooper was an interesting novelist because he reflected a real American dilemma. He, like many thoughtful Americans, could never make up his mind which he admired most — nature or civilization.

Most 19th century Americans brushed aside such philosophical niceties.

THEY WERE WHAT historian Daniel Boorstin has called "go-getters." They made haste to get to the land of opportunity first — to stake out claims to farms, ranches, mines, water holes and potential real estate bonanzas.

Booster towns with pre-fabricated fancy hotels went up instantly out in the middle of nowhere waiting for the railroad, a county seat, a college, even a state prison to make the investment pay off. In Texas, raw-boned, saddle-sore cowboys drove longhorns a thousand miles north in search of the main chance. North on the Great Plains, managers of bonanza wheat farms directed phalanxes of harvesting machines like generals in a tank battle. In Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Far Northwest timber barons felled the great forests, while other "go-getters" gouged some of the largest open-pit mines in the world out of the earth.

AND RAILROADS, AS they, one after another, spanned the continent, brought all this extracted produce to markets in St. Louis, Kansas City and Chicago, "the hog butcher of the world."

The "go-getters" — exploiters though they were — fed, housed, clothed and built a complex, market-oriented, increasingly urban-dominated nation. They tamed the frontier with astonishing rapidity after the Civil War.

All of this was at a cost. Certain kinds of pioneers were left behind in the march of progress.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN miners, treated like slaves for all their dangerous work deep in the earth, banded together in violence, seeking to recapture the American Dream. They blew up a good part of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, and the state's governor as well.

Immigrant lumbermen in Wisconsin's forests, as Michael Lesy has graphically demonstrated in "Wisconsin Death Trip," began to feel that their fate was entirely out of their control.

This caused a kind of cultural psychosis. Gangs of unemployed men — called "tramps" — burned barns and houses. Suicides were frequent. The state insane asylum began to fill up with despondent men and women suffering from acute paranoia.

A SENSE OF bewilderment and desperation gripped families whose children were carried off by mass diphtheria epidemics, leaving only their school pictures as mementoes of a certain variety of the American Dream.

"The main-travelled road in the West," as Hamlin Garland put it, had become "long and wearyful." Terrifying for some, he might have added.

In protest against these conditions, miners organized the International Workers of the World; urban immigrant leaders turned to socialist parties; and the small farmers, at the mercy of railroads and market conditions, formed such organizations as the National Grange of the Patrons of Husbandry (1867) and the Populist Party.

EVEN WITH THEIR imaginative platform of 1892 calling for nationalization of railroads, telegraph, and grain elevators, the creation of postal savings banks and the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the ratio of 16:1, the Populists made little headway. And in 1896, having been co-opted by the Democrats on the silver issue, they were crucified along with their "boy orator" hero William Jennings Bryan upon "a cross of gold."

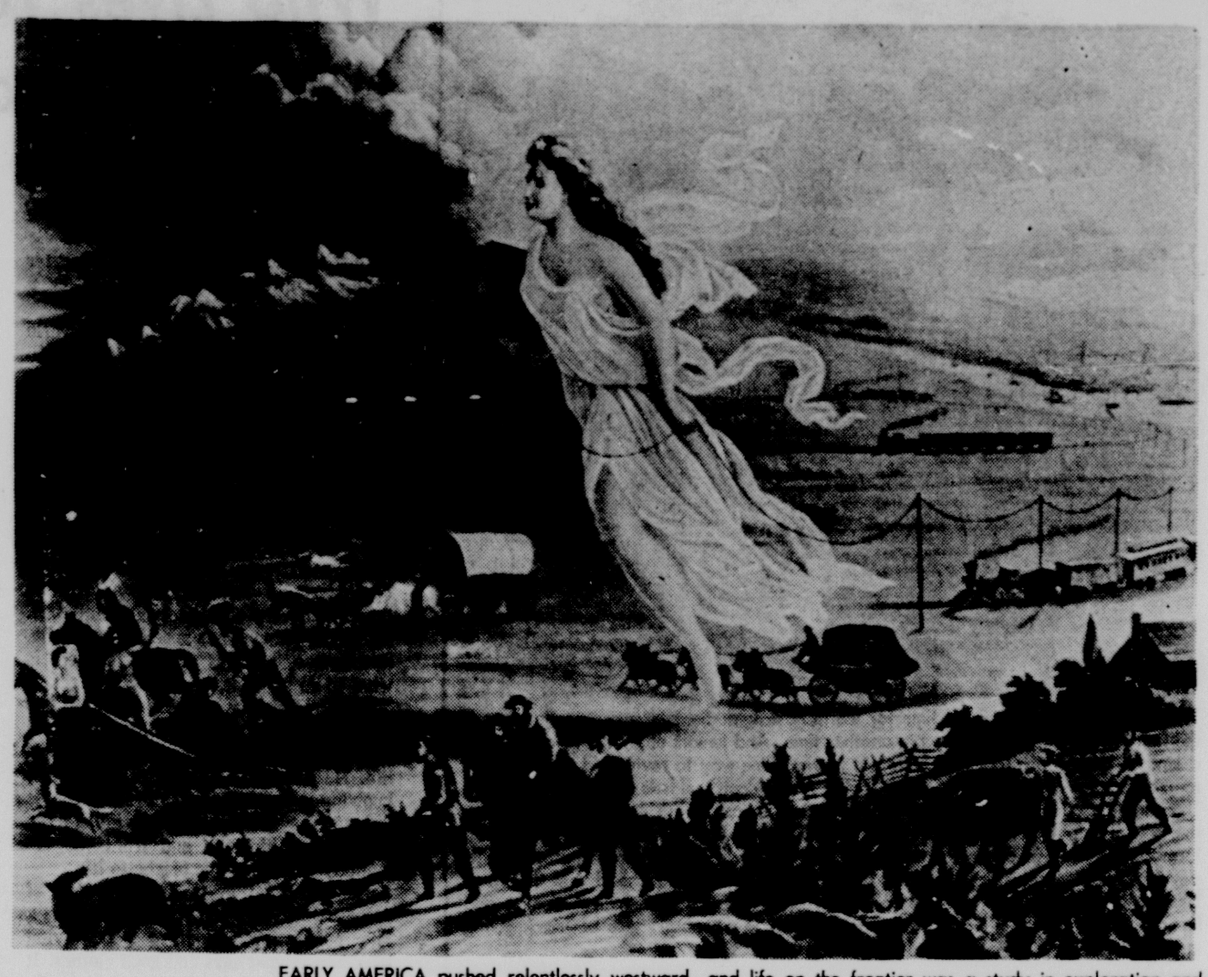

But so deep has been the frontier experience as part of the American Dream that since the nineties it has been re-invented in countless forms.

TURNER HIMSELF called in 1911 for a frontier spirit in urban society. Theodore Roosevelt acted out the part of a cowboy president. Owen Wister and hundreds of western novelists who followed him kept the frontier alive as have countless film-makers like the great John Ford.

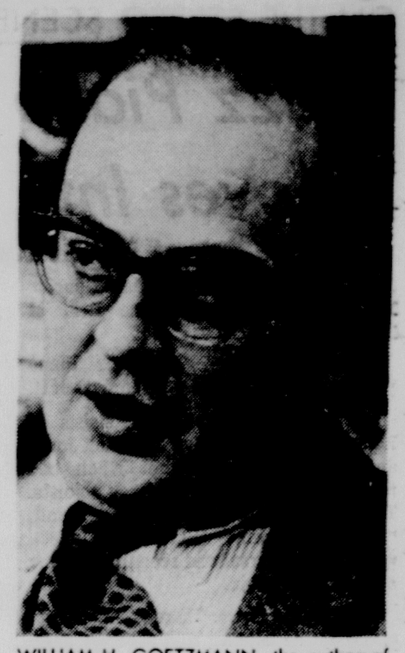

And finally Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson both saw themselves as "new" frontiersmen. The idea of the frontier has been so intimately related to the American Dream, that if it really ceased to exist it would have to be re-invented to give purpose and cohesion to the culture.

EARLY AMERICA pushed relentlessly westward, and life on the frontier was a study in exploration and exploitation, of virtue and lack of virtue. This Library of Congress paining, entitled "The Frontier Is The Future," captures the restless, man-in-motion spirit of the 19th century.

THANK YOU, LORD

Thank you, Lord, for the full day,
And for the strength to go on —
If I should ask you for more,
Remind me that all I really need
Are the joys that are here already;
Tahnk you, Lord, for yesterday —
For memories will always last,
And if Ishould reach out for you,
Remind me that I can go on alone;
If by chance you give me tomorrow,
Thank you, Lord, for life again.

'Tis rare to steer
In the eye of the wind
Harbour-bound, and,
Veer neither to port or sta'b'r'd,
To gain each smashing wave,
Cross currents, divide water, and,
Never come about; Gollee!
My tiller arm's tired.

Jazz Piano Quartet Moves Into A Gap

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

The demise of the Modern Jazz Quarter has left a big gap in the field of contemporary music.

Another foursome, The Jazz Piano Quartet, is ready to fill a large part of it.

The Jazz Piano Quartet consists of Roland Hanna, Dick Hyman, Hank Jones and Marian McPartland. Each has reached spectacular heights as soloists. They recorded their first album as a unit, "Let It Happen," (RCA CPL 1-0680), without a rehearsal and seemingly with a minimum of strain.

Their music flows. There is no attempt to dazzle the listener with pianistic pyrotechnics and most of the keyboarding is done in a subdued tempo.

At times, the notes have a classical flavor. And often the jazz tones are almost hidden. The result is a most satisfying experience.

The recording begins with a melodic presentation of "Lover Come Back to Me," which indicates the session will be lively. But then the foursome moves into a lower pace on "Maiden Voyage" and "Let It Happen."

If there is an outstanding number among outstanding numbers, it is "Improviso," a fragment by Erik Satie which Hyman put together for the foursome to build on over a six-minute stretch.

There are also excellent renditions of "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" and "How High the Moon."

Since this is a team effort, the soloists are not identified. The only indication is that Hymana and Marian McPartland re playing through the left speaker and Hanna and Jones through the right speaker.

The Jazz Piano Qqarter is off to a good start and it is hoped there will be more recordings by this gregarious group.

TAL FARLOW IS another fine jazz musician who never attempted to overwhelm audiences with fancy performances. His steady musicianship influenced many guitarists in their formative years, among them John McLaughlin. In turn, Farlow was greatly impressed by Charlie Christian, a pioneer in the modern jazz movement that emerged after World War II.

Farlow put away his guitar about 15 years ago, picking it up for public appearances only on rare occasions.

Some of his notable recordings have been reissued on "Tal Farlow, Guitar Player" (Prestige P-24042). The two-record album consists of two sessions, separated by a 14-year span.

In the early session recorded in 1955, Farlow is heard with a fearsome combo of Red Norvo on vibes and Red Mitchell on bass.

The second session, recorded in 1969 when Tal emerged from retirement, teams Farlow with John Scully on piano, Jack Six on bass and Alan Dawson on drums.

Among the numbers Farlow recorded with Norvo and Mitchell were "That Old Black Magic" and "Old Devil Moon" as well as "Lullaby of Birdland" and "What Is This Thing Called Love."

In the get-together 14 years later, Farlow recorded, among other numbers, "Summertime" and "I'll Remember April."

A FARMHOUSE HOLIDAY

THANKSGIVING IS a special time for warm nostalgia. Seniors enjoy recollections of the holiday as it was celebrated in another time. And juniors enjoy the re-creation of a kind of observance that they have not known. One way to revive old memories, or to create new ones, is by reading Louisa May Alcott's classic "An Old-Fashioned Thanksgiving" that has now been reprinted by Lippincott with illustrations, including the one above, by Holly Johnson. It is the charming story of some New Hampshire farm children whose parents are called away to tend an ailing grandmother on the day before Thanksgiving. The plucky youngsters decide to go ahead with their own Thanksgiving dinner and celebration, with results that are both heart-warming and humorous. But before it's over, the reader shares in the observance of Thanksgiving in the traditional New England, 19th century manner.

Story Of The Junkie Who Lives Terrified, And By Terrorizing

BOOKS AND RECORDS

JONES: PORTRAIT OF A MUGGER by James Willwerth; Evans, 251 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Former Independent-Journal reporter James Willwerth's second book is a shocker.

It explores the grim and seamy world of one New York City junkie who finances his drug habit and other tastes with the proceeds from street robberies.

Jones, the pseudonym Willwerth applies to his subject, is a product of the ghetto society, son of a black father and a white mother. He is naturally suspicious of and hostile to the society outside his own limited world. But somehow, rather amazingly, Willwerth has won the confidence of Jones. Their association becomes a very close, even intimate one.

"We all know Jones is selfish, neurotic, destructive, ruthless . . . the problem is what to do about it," writes Willwerth.

And: "Jones is a violent man; he knows the streets may kill him. He looks over his shoulder every moment of his life. He hates the tension of this, while knowing it comes with the life he chooses to lead. For the streets allow him to run away from himself, and from the demands and limitations of ghetto life.

"The alternative is a job: years of dreary work and grinding semi-poverty. The people uptown have good-paying jobs, houses and cars and good clothes. It doesn't happen to anyone in Jones' neighborhood."

It's a frightening and horrifying existence, this life style of a young man who became addicted at 13. But more terrible than the sordid pattern that Jones' life has taken are Willwerth's insights into the environment in which yet another generation of ghetto children is now growing up. Jones contributes to the terror in which he somehow survives by luck, shrewdness and raw violence. But little Richie is the total victim, cast into a cauldrom of degradation that was not of his making.

"What will happen to this kid, I'm wondering," writes Willwerth. "What is secure in his life? He is beaten every time he moves. Then he is loved — and beaten again. And who, after all, is his father? He doesn't know; and soon he'll have a brother or sister, and who will be their father? What can his world possibly be except a confused, constantly changing, frightening place? And how — most of all — can he be expected to be any different from his worth?"

And then one remembers that much of what Willwerth is saying now about little Richie could once have been said about Jones, the junkie mugger who lives with the child's unwed mother, Carol.

What did Willwerth, a Time magazine correspondent whose earlier book was a journal of his wartime experiences reporting from Saigon, learn from his hazardous adventure that somehow, against all odds, developed into a friendship?

"As for me, I've stopped looking for simple answers," says the young author. "I know that Jones is shaped by his environment; everyone is. And I know that good and evil can live together in the same person. And lastly I know that each of us must continue to look at each other without ever turning away."

Jones the mugger is "a man crawling and reaching, one hand straight out. He is screaming and begging silently for help. And mob advances — his victims?"

And Willwerth knows, too, that even if help is offered, Jones, something of a fatalist, is certain to reject, ignore or ultimately abandon it. He is a man beyond rationality. And it is just this kind of irrationality that has made our city streets the avenues of fear and conflict that they are today.

How Japan Filled Its Spiritual Void

THE EAGLE AND THE RISING SUN: Americans and the New Religions of Japan, by Robert S. Ellwood Jr.; Westminster, 224 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer.

The histories of Japan and the United States have been intimately intertwined since 1941 as war, occupation and peace have intermingled Japanese and American people and their ideas.

"The Eagle and the Rising Sun" attempts to document "the impact in America of five groups numbered among the 'New Religions' of Japan."

When Imperial Japan collapsed in 1945 the traditional Buddhist and Shinto religious structures sank with the political forms with which they had been linked. This left a spiritual vacuum at a time when the Japanese people urgently needed spiritual balm. By the late 1950s, over 171 New Religions striving to fill that void had been identified.

Robert S. Ellwood Jr., associate professor of religion at the University of Southern California, has chosen five of those New Religions to describe their origins and their tenets and to attempt to show their impact in America.

Unfortunately, there is not much evidence that these religions have developed a significant American following. All of them depend primarily on Americans of Japanese origin for most of their membership, with lesser followings from other American ethnic communities. Statistics of church groups are notoriously unreliable, but even taking at face value the most ambitious claims of U.S. members of the New Religions, they would number no more than 200,000 to 300,000 concentrated in the Japanese-American communities of California and Hawaii.

If "The Eagle and the Rising Sun" doesn't make a convincing case that Japan's New Religions are a significant factor on the American scene, it does synthesize the common elements of the New Religions. And that is useful at a time when domestic, economic and political upheaval may become an increasing part of American life.

Here are those common characteristics:

1. The founders of the New Religions have been strong, charismatic figures.
2. The New Religions stress monotheism.
3. The New Religions have borrowed heavily from the ideas of East and West for their theology.
4. They are intensely optimistic about the human future which includes paradise on earth.
5. They have magnificent earthly headquarters that try to anticipate the earthly paradise.
6. Pilgrimage to the earthly headquarters is a part of worship.
7. The New Religions have all-encompassing organizational structures that channel the members' social and economic life as well as their spiritual life. They provide a "caring" framework in an impersonal, disjointed world.
8. The New Religions stress that the individual controls his own destiny through "positive thinking."
9. Physical healing has been emphasized.
10. The New Religions recruit with enthusiasm rather than with argument.
11. The New Religions are not intellectual; "each one has one simple process for releasing the innter power and thereby dispelling the guilt, finitude and frustrations of a cramped life in which joyous mind does not reign supreme over circumstances."

These 11 characteristics of the New Religions of Japan may provide useful guidelines for viewing American religion as it is shaped by the pressures of the tumultuous years we are entering. We are indebted to "The Eagle and the Rising Sun" for this conceptual framework even if we are not convinced by its thesis that the New Religions of Japan have been a substantial religious influence in America.

Love, Death, Women's Lib In Ancient Greece

GLORY AND THE LIGHTNING by Taylor Caldwell; Doubleday, 468 pages, $10. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

There's nothing new under the sun. Love, death and women's lib have been with us, says Taylor Caldwell in this historical novel, since ancient Greece — and probably before.

This is a fictionalized biography of Aspasia, the courtesan blessed with beauty and intellect who was, for many years, mistress of Pericles of Athens. Aspasia had a "salon," a school for young women, and also fought some early battles — according to authoress Caldwell for the equality of women.

This is a long book, a "women's novel," packed with details about Greece and Persia (where Aspasia lived pre-Pericles). Here are descriptions of clothing, food, houses, market places, entertainments, social practices, plus some discoursing on politics and governmental theory.

Taylor Caldwell's prose is touched with purple and, in this case, with a bit of preaching. But she has millions of faithful readers who may, in spite of themselves, learn about the "Glory and the Lightning" that touched life, and Aspasia, in ancient Greece.

Roger Staubach Proves Just How Square He Is

STAUBACH: FIRST DOWN, LIFETIME TO GO by Roger Staubach with Sam Blair and Bob St. John, Word Books, 304 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Ron Lent.

Would you like to know how to save $8.95? Don't buy "Staubach: First Down, Lifetime To go." A more apt title would be "Second Down, Thrown For A Loss."

Not being in the title-writing business, I will stick to the subject of reviewing sports books. Staubach does not make it.

A championship quarterback with the Dallas Cowboys, Staubach is less than that as an author. Granted, the book is mildly interesting. Provocative anecdotes on his football exploits with the Naval Academy and the Cowboys are to be credited. Specifically, local readers might be interested in his account of the Cowboys' 1972 playoff victory over the San Francisco 49ers.

However, the book's shape is analagous to the character of Staubach — square. No. 12 readily admits "I'm square," but who wants to read 304 pages of proof? At least Staubach utilized the competent writing talents of Sam Blair and Bob St.John as collaborators. Yet, the question remains: Who wants to read about a square?

The work is laced with homely accounts of his background, family life, and, above all, religion. Staubach spends the entire closing chapter outlining his devotion to Christ and Christianity.

The book also interjects quotes from football peers, coaches, religious leaders and friends. At best, the comments add flavor to an otherwise drab meal of words. At worst, the insertions break up the story's continuity by adding maudlin and banal sentiment.

On the positive side, Staubach's image (as an honest, skillful, modest and devoted man) shows through. Illustrations and statistics also enhance the presentation.

Overall, however, No. 12 comes out a zero.

NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

Not surprisingly, "Writer's Market" continues to grow with each new annual edition.

The 1975 edition totals 957 pages and lists 5,202 markets in 195 categories, ranging from book manuscripts to greeting card verse and play scripts.

The publisher, Writer's Digest of Cincinnati, manages to hold the price of its thick product down to a reasonable $10.95. And for the freelance writer, full-time or part-time, it's a wise — almost an essential — investment.

Special articles this year cover subjects such as writing and marketing a short story, preparing the manuscript, copyright laws, picture sources, the query letter, a sample model's release, etc. But the real meat of the book is the listing of those markets and the description of their requirements. Jane Koestler and Rose Adkins ar the editors.

"QUAINT CUTS in the Chap Book Style" is a $2.50 softcover collection by Joseph Crawhall, for Dover Publications, of woodcuts executed by Joseph Crawhall in the late 18th century.

BELLY DANCING has been enjoying a considerable vogue now for some time among American women as an art, as a form of exercise and as a means of weight and figure control. Celestial Arts, the Millbrae publisher, has issued a $3.95 softcover guide, "The New Art of Belly Dancing." Its authors are belly dancing instructor Adela Vergara, belly dancer and costume designer Sula and belly dancing teacher Roman Balladine. Along with a complete text on the sensual dance, there are a large number of photographs of dancers demonstrating the movements and techniques.

C.P. Snow Profiles A Society In Transition In New Novel

IN THEIR WIDOM by C.P. Snow; Scribners, 345 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

C.P. Snow is the distinguished British scientist who combines his laboratory endeavors with the publication of some very good novels, like the "Strangers and Brothers" series, and important social studies such as "The Two Cultures".

His latest book, "In Their Widsom," is no exception to this high level of achievement.

Urbanely plotted, with a lean, precise prose style, "In Their Wisdom" is a novel concerning complex litigation over a disputed will. The London scene ranges from the streets to the House of Lords, and into the courtroom, where the intelligence and dignity of the British judicial process contrasts unwittingly with the circus performances one reads of daily.

Snow uses the convolutions of the law to profile a society in transition, the decay of power and eroding of class certainties.

A comparison with "Bleak House", Charles Dickens' best novel, is inevitable due to the similarities of the pervasive legal themes. But Snow has too much worldly wisdom to allow himself a Dickensian wallow of sentimentality and self-indulgence. Snow is a trained observer, a scientist in the best sense of the word, and his professional background grafted upon the skill of a good story-teller enables him to externalize, prod and examine without losing the writer's (or voyeur's) vital distance between himself and his material.

As a novel of social change, the message of "In Their Widsom," like that of today's news bulletins, is that old England is in a bad way. Yet, at least in the opinion of an Anglophile reviewer, that is exactly the same sentiment expressed when the Viking long ships were sighted off the ancient headlands.

So considering that British civilization has touched mankind even more profoundly than that of Tomre, and that the Commonwealth encompasses one-fourth of the world's population, rumors about the death of the island race seem premature.

Buchwald In Tradition Of Will Rogers

I AM NOT A CROOK by Art Buchwald; Putnam, 250 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

There have been a flood of books about Watergate but Art Buchwald in a series of columns tells the story better than most pundits.

Buchwald, an apt satirist, puts into perspective the Watergate episode, which itself was beyond the imagination of any political satirist.

With the news stories incredible on their own, Buchwald makes his observations with his usual wit in an era when farce is reality.

The unifying theme of Watergate makes "I Am Not A Crook" more than a collection of 125 funny columns. It is humorous comment in the tradition of Will Rogers, where truth comes through with a smile.

Aside from Watergate, Buchwald also tells of David Eisenhower as an investigative reporter for the Washington Post, driving with a defective seat belt and how the Harvard Business School is the villain in the fuel crisis.

A Book That Stirs Memories Of Marin Political Battles

THE BRIDGE AND THE BUILDING by Dr. Evelyn Morris Radford; Carlton Press, 156 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Wat Takeshita.

This detailed account of how Marin County's controversial Civic Center was conceived, nearly aborted, and finally completed as Frank Lloyd Wright's last masterpiece stirs memories both good and bad among Marinites who lived through the turbulent 1950s and '60s.

Even relative newcomers to the Marin County scene will feel personal involvement in the tug-of-war that developed between those favoring the Civic Center, county administrator form of government, and modern assessment methods on the one hand, and the opponents who wanted to fire Frank Lloyd Wright and the county administrator and turn the half-completed Civic Center into a county hospital.

The reader will thrill or despair with each turn in the fortunes of Vera Schultz, Walter Castro, William Gnoss, Mary Summers, Harold Stockstad, Peter Behr and countless others who fought for the Frank Lloyd Wright designed Civic Center and of the equally tenacious William D. Fusselman, George S. Jones, and their supporters who opposed the structure as an uneconomical "Taj Mahal."

Heroes and villains abound as Dr. Radford traces the exploits of these and other personalities who figured in the growth of Marin from cracker-barrel politics to computerized administration.

Through it all, the book shows how the voices of conservation, sparked by the Kents and the Livermores, have withstood the forces of development which came pouring over the Golden Gate Bridge since 1937.

Computer efficiency, which calls for a straight line between two points, has been tempered by a yearning for the esthetic, not only in the spire and semi-circles at the Civic Center but in the roads and homes that tend to blend rather than obliterate the landscape.

"The old cry against the rape of the land mingles with the sound of hammers busily building where they will," says the author. "The battle goes on between conservationists and developers."

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

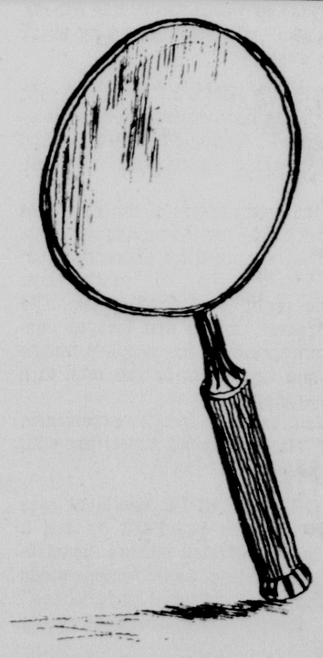

ENTER THE CORPSE by Sara Woods; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 181 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

Uncle Hubert not only has the same, lovable houseguest traits as the "Man Who Came to Dinner," he has as well a prison record and some pretty unsavory friends. When he gets out of jail, after a several years' sentence for a deal involving quite a few gold ingots, the fact that he is about 80 years old has not mellowed him a bit.

For his godson, Roger Farrell, and Roger's wife, Meg, who have kindly agreed to take him in until he finds a place of his own, the first clue that Uncle Hubert's visit is not going to be very pleasant is a corpse in the front hall.

The body arrives before Uncle H., but there seems no doubt there is some connection. Worst of all, the police seem to believe that Roger would only take his godfather in if he is tied up either in the murder or a nefarious deal with Uncle Hubert — or both.

The tale is set in modern London — Meg is an actress there — and eventually Roger's friend, Antony Maitland, the well known barrister, makes everything all right.

Sar Woods has written another good yarn in the best tradition of the English mystery — the kind of book that goes well with a blazing fire and perhaps a glass of port.

HERE'S ANOTHER of creative Steve Ellingson's ideas for dramatizing the Christmas spirit in your yard, or on the grounds of your school, church or other public building. The carolers have been a part of the holiday celebration for generations, and this family group unfailingly brings to mind the era of Charles Dickens with its roast goose, yule logs and the like. The characters measure a life-size 76 inches by 52 inches. Send $4.50 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Carolers Decoration 510. All you have to do is glue the full-color poster onto plywood, then saw out the image along the dotted lines. Prop up the display with a wooden stake. If you like, you can highlight it with a small spotlight. And you'll have the cheeriest house on the block.

INSULATION IS THE KEY TO SAVING ENERGY

By ANDY LANG

There's a great big plus when you conserve energy around the house. You save money!

Even when a suggested course of action entails an initial expenditure, the ensuing savings will offset the costover a period of time and continue to pay dividends indefinitely.

Insulation retards the passage of heat. When the house is warm, it keeps the heat on the inside. When the house is cool, it keeps the outside heat from coming in.

Insulation, therefore, is essential to the successful operation of both your heating and air conditioning equipment. It enables the furance and the air conditioner to work less to produce the desired results, which cuts down on the use of energy.

The mathematical formula for determining how much you save on heating and cooling costs is extremely complicated, taking into consideration the construction of the house, the efficiency of the heating and cooling equipment, the average climate in your area, the amount and kind of insulation and many other factors.

Undeniably, though, insulation is probably the most important individual element preventing the loss of heat through the walls, floors and ceilings of your house. It can range from a heat-loss prevention of 75 per cent to one of 35 per cent.

Your house is already insulated. How well it is insulated depends on the practice of the builder as well as the federal and local requirements at the time the house was built. These standards change frequently, with the tendency in recent years to require more and more insulation regardless of the type of heating, but especially where there is an electric heating system and-or an air conditioning unit.

There are four basic types of insulation: flexible, loose fill, reflective and rigid boards.

The flexible comes in batts and blankets. Batts are short lengths of insulated material precut to fit between studs and rafters. Blankets are similar except that they are available in bags and bales and are poured into place.

Rigid boards come in various widths and lengths. They are installed as walls or to existing walls much like wood paneling is. Reflective insulation has foil surfaces that reflect heat.

It is not easy to determine how well your house is insulated unless you had it built to order or bought it new and inquired about its construction before the purchase, the latter an unlikely possibility with most house buyers. But if you have had the house for a few years, you have probably already discovered whether it is well insulated, either through the very act of living in it or from a neighbor or someone who knows what went into it.

The older your house is, the less likely it is that it has sufficient insulation by modern standards.

HERE'S THE ANSWER TO YOUR QUESTION

By ANDY LANG

Q. — There is a brick wall along one side of our driveway. It has begun to develop white spots on some of the bricks. A visitor said it is efflorescence and is frequently seen on brick walls. My dictionary says it is a white, powdery deposit, but doesn't say what causes it. Can you tell me?

A. — The white stains are caused by salts that come to the surface along with water. They can be removed with a chemical purchased at a lumber yard or a building supply dealer. But the stains will come back unless you can prevent water from entering the wall. Look especially for loose mortar between the bricks.

Q. — I see some lumber advertised at a certain price per running foot and some at a certain price per board foot. What's the difference?

A. — A running foot refers to every 12 inches in the length of the lumber. A board foot is 12 inches wide, one inch thick and one foot long. When you select a piece of lumber, the dealer will compute the board feet in it. If you want to check, multiply the length of the wood in feet by the nominal thickness and width in inches and divide by 12. Example: A piece of wood is two inches thick, eight inches wide and eight feet long. Multiply eight by two by eight, which is 128. Divide by 12. The wood has eight and two-thirds board feet in it.

Q. — About three years ago we had a brass doorknob put on our front door. I put two coats of lacquer on it, and I was told that it would keep the brass from tarnishing. The knob hasn't tarnished, but the lacquer on it is wearing off in two places. I'd like to put on a couple of more coats, but don't know if it should go on right over the knob the way it is now or should I sand off the old lacquer first?

A. — For a good job, the old lacquer will have to be removed, but use lacquer thinner, not sandpaper. After it is off, recoat the knob, using at least three coats of lacquer diluted with about 40 per cent of lacquer thinner.

Q. — Settle an argument, please. When using a file on metal, should the pressure be applied on the forward or backward stroke or both?

A. — On the forward stroke only.

Growing With Lights— The Fad That Lasted

By BILL MEACHEM

It was about 20 years or so ago when we began using more fluorescent lights in homes, offices and factories. And, just about that time, a few gardeners discovered that it was possible to grow plants under these lights with no assistance from natural daylight.

Some people looked at it as a fad. But that wasn't the case because it is now an accepted garden practice and each year more and more people are getting into "light growing."

The reason fluorescent lights can be used for growing plants is that they give off a good quantity of light with a minimum of heat. Ordinary incandescent lights give off much less light in comparison to the amount of heat, consequently plants can "burn up" under them.

IT'S POSSIBLE TO purchase a light set-up for growing plants at a nominal cost — just an adjustable light fixture you place on a table. Or, you can get elaborate fixtures all enclosed with a multitude of controls. I would suggest you start small and work your way up.

However, my "small" doesn't mean the size of the light fixture. I would not recommend starting with anything smaller than a 40-watt fixture which is 48 inches long.

First, this will give you enough light to grow plants. Some of the 20-watt set-ups do not give sufficient light. Also, with a 40-watt fixture you can grow more plants — figure that the fixture will give you a growing area of four feet by two feet.

This, incidentally, is all that I have and I grow a lot of things under it.

WE MUST FIRST understand that any light fixture is a very poor substitute for "Old So." The amount of light is what you can expect from natural sunlight in a greenhouse. But even with less light, plants will grow because you make up the quantity in the number of hours the plants receive the light each day.

To grow plants under light you should count on keeping the lights lit for 14 to 16 hours every day. This may seem like a long time, but remember you are "accumulating" light over a long period, as opposed to the shorter time but much brighter sunlight.

I have a time clock switch on mine which turns the lights on at 7 in the morning and off at 11 at night. (When the switch broke I turned them on when I got up, and off at bedtime.)

NATURALLY THE light is stronger closer to the bulb. This is also important when growing plants. Plants should be about six to 12 inches from the bulb or light source for best growth — no farther away.

If you are growing plants of all the same size you can adjust the fixture as they get taller. I have seen some lights on pulleys so they can be raised and lowered with ease.

I grow a mixture of plants. To compensate and get all plants the right distance from the bulb. I set some plants on flower pots, boxes, or anything handy to bring them closer to the light. My table looks like a skyscraper skyline with its ups and downs.

THE NEXT QUESTION is what plants can you grow under lights?

Not everything. You can grow plants that do not require a lot of light. African violets do marvelously under lights — blooming all year. I started out with these, but now grow many things. Coleus and wax begonias do well for me. Small geraniums that I bring in from outside will even flower. I had a poinsettia that produced the red leaves — late in winter, though. Foliage plants do well, too.

I find that watering isn't much of a problem, neither are insects. But I do water the trays I have the pots on to keep the humidity high which was a problem at one time. As for the bugs, I spray to get any plant bugs that may be around and also any indoor pests that like the environment around the plants.

I start my seedlings under lights. And, I don't think you can beat the lights for cuttings, like begonias, geraniums and coleus.

This is one gardening venture I would highly recommend you try.

Accent Trees Make Lawn A Lovely Sight

The usual mental picture of a lawn is a sea of green carpeted turf dotted with elegant specimen trees.

A lawn alone is a lovely sight. But, when highlighted with a few accent trees, the area becomes an outstanding living picture.

Nothing can top lawn trees. They add that extra rustle to seasonal winds and breezes, contribute invaluable shade in summer, and the deciduous types provide bold autumn color.

For fall color, the American Sweet Gum, a popular choice, displays dramatic hues. Its deeply lobed, star shaped leaves turn shades of yellow and red, to an almost deep wine color — a truely magnificent show to accent your lawn.

FOR A DELICATE but distinctive touch, the White Birch is just right. Its grayish white bark sets off pendulous branches of rich green, diamond shaped leaves. When planted in groupings, the Eurasian Stars will be the perfect touch for your blanket of green grass.

The White Alder is another excellent lawn tree choice — especially in moist areas. A deciduous California native, it is a fast grower and the answer for poor soils. The spreading branches of the White Alder, are pendulous at the ends which makes it a very graceful, but dramatic accent.

For flowering trees, can anything surpass Magnolias? (What a blissful experience it is to take a summer snooze under those towers of beauty.)

HUGE WHITE SUMMER and fall flowers of the evergreen Southern Magnolia are set off by large dark green leaves — a bold and cooling sight on summer days.

The deciduous Saucer Magnolia is a smaller type which has six inch, almost tulip shaped, white and pink to lavender flowers appearing on branches in the spring. After flowering, large coarse green leaves appear — making it too, a stately sight.

One thing is for sure ... bold or delicate, the right tree will provide just the right highlight for any lawn.

THE WEEKLY CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔You can get a head start on the seasonal rush and have a top selection by shopping for living Christmas trees this month.

✔Plant Daphne Odora for fragrant bloom during the winter months. Give it good drainage in a partially shaded area.

✔For a portable display, try planting Daffodils in pots.

✔Looking for a hanging basket plant to adorn the porch or patio during the winter months? Shopping at your local nursery will reveal several types of handsome Ivy plants in ready-to-hand containers. The foliage texture and color will provide continual enjoyment.

✔Now is the time to start preparing beds for the bareroot roses and other plantings you will be putting into the ground this winter. For roses, keep in mind the importance of good drainage.

✔Look to your evergreens for your indoor holiday decorations this year.

Marin Homeowner's Notebook

CHECK FOR DRAINAGE PROBLEMS NOW.

Every homeowner in Marin should get in touch with his walls immediately. Your walls can warn you about hidden water leaks or drainage problems.

Some water problems are obvious. Puddles around the house or in the garage can be easily seen (and should be corrected). But water trapped under your house, seepage under your concrete-slab floor, or hidden plumbing leaks might not be noticed. Unless your walls warn you.

Inspect the base of your inside walls on the lowest level of the house. Look for darkened circles in the paint or wallpaper. Feel along for wet or slimy areas. Sniff for musty odors in all the rooms. Be sure to move large pieces of furniture and look for mildew on the wall behind. Also look behind boxes in the closets.

These are signs that water is standing under your house instead of draining away. The water is soaking upward, spreading dampness through the walls and floors.

In time, the dampness will warp floors and damage wall and floor coverings. But far more dangerous, the dampness makes your home's understructure vulnerable to all of Marin's most destructive pests — termites, boring beetles, and dry rot. All are attracted by dampness.

So if you read the writing on the wall, call Hinkley & Gordon. We're a licensed structural pest control company. We're licensed general contractors. And with two generations of experience in Marin, we're experts at correcting drainage problems.

THE BROWN PELICAN is one of the birds to which naturalist Elizabeth Terwilliger draws your attention as she conducts you on a nature hike along Marin's coastline. You'll see the brown pelican now in his winter plumage, denoted by the snow-white neck that in summer is a rich dark brown.

SIGHTS AND SOUNDS OF THE SEASON

A Time For Looking At Trees, Birds, Nature's Grand Plan

By ELIZABETH TERWILLIGER

It's time to look up, around, and down.

Each day, new colors of every hue appear to delight our eyes, and awaken our senses, and reveal to us the changes that are part of a plan. Movements, sounds, fragrances are all there to add to the joy of life, and the beauty of the out-of-doors.

ABOVE THE COASTAL range, watch for white pelicans floating in lazy circles, moving slowly southward on their migration flight. Black tipped wings give dramatic outline to the full graceful curve of the six foot wing span. And, as the updraft of air from the ocean seems to dispel itself, one pelican takes the lead, and then all follow in single file. And, as children play "follow the leader," so the leader sets the pattern.

A wedge pattern next is seen, and then into another circle again they go, passing, and doubling, and shifting, depending on the force of updraft each is able to catch. Against the clear blue sky, and as the pelicans attain various heights, so that sometimes they seem to almost disappear, and then reappear, as if by magic, one stands in utter rapture and awe at this unsurpassed spectacle of graceful, silent, constant, flowing motion. It is the almost sparkle of their white wings that first catches your eye.

Don't miss this annual fall event.

Hike or bike along your coastal park areas from Tomales Bay to the Golden Gate Bridge. Take your whole family or a friend, and go!

MARIN MAGAZINE

AND WHILE YOU are close to the shore, watch for the brown pelican. He, too, flies in "follow the leader" pattern. His utter skill and grace, along and over the curve of a wave, gives one a feeling of superb endeavor, and practice, and innate ability that makes one catch his breath in sheer admiration and wonder.

As you watch the soft dark grey wings extend and fold, heavily flap, and then glide with seemingly effortless ability, observe the long white neck, think of snow, and you can then be aware that this is the pelican's winter plumage. In summer, his neck — especially from the top of his head down to his shoulders — is a rich dark brown, and if you ever get a chance to feel these brown feathers they are like a soft fur. A young pelican's entire head and neck are a soft brown, and his body whitish.

Watch a pelican suddenly fold his wings and dive with a great splash into the water for a fish, and then watch him maneuver it into position for swallowing.

TO BEGIN TO learn the trees is like finding a new friend. No matter where one goes, it is always a joy to see a familiar leaf or a tree outline, whether in full foliage or denuded, or even as a woodpecker's storehouse or just a storm battered remnant on a mountain side or shore.

Mill Valley named many of her streets after trees and planted them along each side so dwellers and passers-by could see and touch and be aware of their characteristics.

Elm, catalpa, walnut, sycamore, and locust — all familiar sounds and sights from parents, stories and poems — are a few of these. All bear out the meaning of the word, deciduous, becoming golden and sending leaves to fall at one's feet each year, whether it be the small serrated leaf of the elm or the huge fan-shaped leaf of the catalpa. On losing its leaves this tree reveals clusters of seven inch long, first green, then brown, slender curved, grooved seed pods.

DID YOU EVER pause long enough to open one? Try it sometime. The seeds resemble miniature flattened hot dogs wrapped in rice paper with the ends twisted and left with a frayed, but silky appearance. The miniature hot dogs lie stacked along a center rod like aphids on a rose bush.

Feel the bark and run your fingers along the row on row of tiny holes ringing the trunk of the tree. No acorn would fit these holes! No other tree that I know of is so riddled.

There must be something special for the Yellowbellied Sapsucker here. He is the same size as the Acorn Woodpecker, but his whole face and chest are a deep red, and his name tells you where the yellow is seen — if you happen to have him in your hand. When he is in your hand, then you understand the meaning of the expression "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush!"

Very few ever sit long enough in the bush for you to see every detail of identification.

LOCUST TREES, whose blossoms in spring may be pink or white, and whose many tiny oval leaves cling to each long stem like a teacher lining children up two-by-two for a walk, has a bark so deeply grooved that one pauses to wonder why. One finds this tree in many places throughout the West. Hardy, tough, able to withstand drought, wind, cold, neglect, yet seemingly able to adjust anywhere. One has to admire and respect such adaptability. A touch of green by a desert, the ground covered with petals, a sign of life and hope despite adversity.

Maybe the deep groves and diamond-shaped lines are like the years of care and love on a parent's face.

"To begin to learn the trees is like finding a new friend. No matter where one goes, it is always a joy to see a familiar leaf or a tree outline, whether in full foliage or denuded"

(Naturalist Elizabeth Terwilliger's "Sights and Sounds" essays appear twice monthly in the Independent-Journal's Marin Magazine section.)

THE CATALPA TREE is a familiar and friendly sight to the Marin nature-lover. It bears huge fan-shaped leaves. But when these leaves are dropped, clusters of long, green turning brown grooved seed pods are revealed. Naturalist Elizabeth Terwilliger likens them to "miniature, flattened hot dogs. wrapped in rice paper with the ends twisted."

YELLOW-BELLIED SAPSUCKER
His name tells you where . . .

THE LOCUST IS another of the trees that command the attention of the observant hiker during a late November stroll. In spring it produced one of Marin's most spectacular shows of bloom. Now Elizabeth Terwilliger suggests you study its remarkedly deeply grooved bark. And admire its tough durability — its ability to withstand cold, wind and neglect.

U.N.—Impressive Use Of TV Coverage

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Do delegates ever ask United Nations television crews for special treatment? "No. No. They know us better," says Josef C. Nichols, head of the U.N.'s carefully operated radio and television division.)

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Staffers from a congressional committee this year journeyed to the United Nations, not to see and hear debate, but rather to study how the U.N. helps broadcasters air international oratory.

Their finding: The U.N. way is "Perhaps the most impressive example" anywhere of a radio and television system created to help broadcasters provide live and taped coverage of a deliberative body.

The study was for the Joint Committee on Congressional Operations, which in October urged the Congress to think about creating some system to help provide live radio-TV coverage of regular House and Senate floor sessions, starting on a trial basis in early 1975.

Live coverage of such sessions has been allowed only once — back in 1947, when TV cameras were permitted in the House chamber to broadcast the opening session of the Congress.

But the U.N.'s broadcast system has fed live coverage of regular open UN sessions — both the General Assembly and the Security Council — to radio broadcasters since 1946 and to television outlets since 1962.

The TV feed — direct via satellite if desired — is provided to any broadcaster asking for it and willing to pay the fees which help defray the cost of the service. The U.N. says the radio feed is free.

The man running this electronic chow hall is Polish-born Josef C. Nichols, a short, witty man of 54 who's been with the UN-operated broadcast office since its inception in 1946.

Compared to a network, his operation is small, even though its reach is global. It employs about 135 persons, 90 in production and management, the remainder in engineering.

There are five radio and two TV studios, six color TV cameras, and tape and editing machines to serve outside broadcasters as well as the 80 accredited broadcast correspondents who reguarly report on UN doings for between 35 and 45 countries.

When the General Assembly is in session, usually from Sept. 15 through December, the UN's TV system cranks up at 9:30 a.m. It shuts down at 5:45 p.m., unless a major debate is raging or a broadcaster asks — and pays — for overtime service, Nichols says.

While the networks and other subscribers are consulted, a UN-employed director calls all the video shots fed to the outside world.

His only rule, Nichols says, is "keep it dignified and professional."

If a face-to-face shouting match or even a fistfight — as happened once — occurs, that will be televised, but not at such length it totally distracts from the importance of the main event, Nichols says.

All three American networks maintain permanent booths overlooking the General Assembly, and they're each allowed one TV camera in the booth.

The catch is that neither they nor foreign broadcasters are allowed to use those cameras for their own video coverage of floor proceedings. They only can focus on persons inside the booth.

This is to avoid charges of sensationalized or flippant video coverage and maintain the dignity of the proceedings, Nichols says.

The day Nichols took a newsman on a tour of his operation, an Algerian correspondent was in a studio readying his live and film report of a meeting between the U.N.'s president — Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika — and several visiting dignitaries.

It was to be sent — entirely in Arabic — via satellite to Paris and then to Algeria. Alas, a strike in Paris possibly had left that city's satellite relay station unmanned.

The Parisian phone system also had been crippled by the strike, and no one was answering the call of the U.N. technician in New York, who was sweating out the fast-approaching moment of transmission.

"We'll have to make an agonizing decision whether to transmit blind to Paris," Nichols said half-jokingly, sitting at a console with an American director, a British producer and the Ukranian technician.

"Is Paris burning?" Nichols sighed when no reply still was forthcoming from that fair city. Finally, be beamed. "It's okay. We've gotten through to the ground station at Brussels."

Within minutes, Algeria's TV man at the U.N. was having his say, his film was rolling and three minutes and 31 seconds of news was sent whisking to Algeria. He did it twice, just in case.

The next day, Nichols would be processing 17 advance orders for satellite time from foreign newsmen getting ready to report the controversial appearance of the Palestinian Liberation Organization at the UN.

"It used to take days to set things up," he said. "But times have changed. We've done it as quickly as 15 minutes on one occasion."

The three U.S. networks each pay a basic fee of $1,650 per week to plug into the U.N. television system.

Stay-At-Home TV Bachelor Is Swinging Single Off Stage

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Clifton Davis, the stay-at-home bachelor of "That's My Mama," is a swinging single man off-screen, a globe-trotter with an airline stewardess girl friend and closet full of expensive threads.

Cliff is the second son of a family of 15 brothers and sisters, once married, who lives alone in a Hollywood pad near the action.

His small penthouse apartment was leased furnished but he has covered the walls with paintings and his collection of old magazine covers which he has had decoratively framed.

He is particularly proud of an old Life magazine cover, circa, 1911, depicting a little black girl with a big pink ribbon in her hair.

A frustrated painter himself, Clifton has Leroy Neiman prints and Maxfield Parrish works most of them involving black people.

His five-room apartment includes a music room (converted from a bedroom) complete with electronic musical equipment and an electric piano on which he does his composing. There is a baby grand piano in the living room which he brought west from New York two years ago.

An accomplished musician, Davis is the composer of several successful songs: "Here Comes the Sunrise," "Searchin' for a Dream" and "Looking Through the Window." He won a gold record for "Never Can Say Goodbye" which was recorded by the Jackson 5.

Clifton, who looks a half-dozen years younger than his age 30, is no stranger to the kitchen. He sticks to the basics, chicken, steak and salads.

When he wants to impress guests the busy actor whips out an eye-popping Thanksgiving turkey dinner.

His steady date lives in San Francisco and flies all over the world with Pan American. She spends two weeks of every month in California, meeting Clifton in Los Angeles when he doesn't fly north to see her.

She also shares his fondness for skiing, a newly acquired skill. She doesn't, however, go along with his enthusiasm for sail-planing. Clifton rents gliders in the wine country north of San Francisco and spends hours on weekends riding the thermals.

But Clifton's real avocation is travel. Whenever he can arrange a week off he boards a jet for distant shores.

In recent years he has flown to Hawaii, Europe, Australia, South America, Tahiti and Bora Bora.

Another of Davis' weaknesses is fashionable, high-styled clothes for which he pays a fortune. Most of them he buys abroad, favoring expensive Italian jackets, trousers and silk shirts.

"I'm living a life of fulfilling my fantasies," Davis says, "and I can't see anything wrong in that."

But fantasy doesn't include long hours of hard work during the week for his ABC-TV series. He reports to the network's Vine Street rehearsal hall four days a week at 9 a.m.

On the fifth day he drives to the main Hollywood studios of ABC where the situation comedy is taped with a live audience.

Clifton has little in common with his television characterization except a zestful sense of humor. His real-life mother and father live in the south. He keeps in touch with most of his brothers and sisters who are scattered around various sections of the country.

Displaced New Yorker Isn't About To Change His Ways

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dan Frazer, chief of detectives on the "Kojak" series, is a misplaced New Yorker in Hollywood and unlikely to change his ways.

An apartment dweller all his life, Frazer lives in an unfashionable apartment in Hollywood with his wife of 31 years, Lee. The place was rented furnished about a year ago and there are few mementoes or keepsakes around to remind the Frazers of home.

Frazer takes pride in the fact he is the only native New Yorker on the CBS-TV series, despite the fact the cast is supposed to be made up of Manhattanites.

He was born in a three-room coldwater walkup in the Hell's Kitchen area of Manhattan island. He still lives in the same neighborhood, 10 blocks from the site of his birth where nine brothers and sisters also were born.

In New York, Frazer doesn't have the luxury of a swimming pool and a terrace. But he seldom uses these features of his Hollywood dwelling.

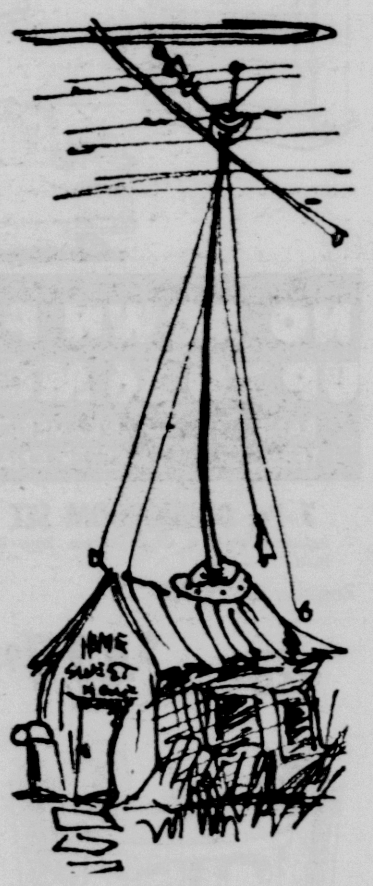

His eastern apartment has four large rooms, an excellent piano, and expensive stereo system. It is furnished, Dan says, in early Salvation Army.

Neither Dan nor Lee has overcome the compulsive New Yorker habit of walking. Unlike Californians, they seldom use their automobile, a 1964 relic given him by his friend Actor, Jack Warden.

He drives the car daily to Universal Studios, a 15-minute trip through the Hollywood hills to the San Fernando valley. Well, almost daily because Frazer's supporting role requires he report to work only three or four days a week.

He rises before 7 a.m., fixes a large breakfast of bacon and eggs and away he goes. Generally Frazer is home by 7 in the evening. On days when he isn't too tired he takes Lee out to dinner, another habit he says he brought west from New York, although he finds restaurants in Los Angeles expensive and inferior to his native haunts.

The Frazers' daughter, Susan, 23, is a member of the Ballet Theatre at Kennedy Center, a fact which brings superlatives to Dan's pride of parenthood.

The actor keeps a typewriter in his apartment where he pecks away at story ideas featuring his role in the "Kojak" series. Unfortunately, his brainstorms thus far already have been anticipated by the series' story department. But he keeps plugging away.

Because he has more free time on his hands than most regulars in a series, Frazer finds himself hanging out at the local public library. He makes occasional forays to the beach and visits many of his cronies who have moved from New York to Hollywood seeking acting employment.

His Manhattan accent is undiminished as is his skepticism of the outdoor life in California.

Frazer hasn't acquired a tan despite his trips to the beach and frequent attendance at race tracks where he is a cautious and fairly successful handicapper.

He has refused to learn the fine art of barbecuing, leaving all the cooking up to Lee who makes mouth-watering curry dishes and an outstanding linguini and clam dish.

He is happiest contemplating a five-week stay in New York later this year where he will attend the opera, symphony and ballet.

"I love New York," he concludes.

ACTOR-COMEDIAN Bill Cosby brings his familiar Fat Albert character into visual form as an animated cartoon personality in "Fat Albert and the Cosby Kids," a highly entertaining series which also conveys a learning experience for children, seen Saturdays at 12:30 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

Sweetness Alive, Thriving On U.S. Soft-Edge Shows

By ARTHUR UNGER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — "Sweetness-and-light" is alive and well on American TV.

Despite a few setbacks this season, television's cycle of soft-edge family shows is far from finished and the creator of "The Waltons" and "Apple's Way" wants you to know that he sees no end in sight.

Says Earl Hamner, the creator and narrator of "The Waltons": "I have just done a projection of what will happen to the family for the next three years. The Waltons could easily become a chronicle of family growth, lasting just as long as the actors stay interested in their roles and the audience wants to see them.

"This kind of series is not merely a temporary cycle that will die. It is now a permanent part of the television scene. There will be more, not fewer of them. I hope the networks will never forget that there are millions of people who watch only these shows, who find unbearable the rest of television entertainment programming."

The audience certainly wants to see more of "The Waltons," since it continues to garner top or near-top ratings. But "Apple's Way" is another story with its up-and-down ratings causing CBS concern as it consistently trails "The World of Disney" in audience share.

On ABC, another soft-edge family show, "The New Land," has just been canceled, although "The Little House on the Prairie" on NBC is a notable success with TV audiences.

Talking about "Apple's Way," from the California headquarters of Lorimar Productions, Hamner speaks with a gentle Virginian accent, but his words reflect newly acquired Hollywood knowhow. "Maybe it's too difficult for people today to believe in goodness in their own time. It seems as though it has to be in a different period to be acceptable. . ."

"I think also that 'Apple' is splitting the same basic audience with the Disney Show. It's awfully hard to buck the appeal of series that can present the fascinating and often basically violent aspects of the laws of nature. You can't compete with a wild creature killing an alligator for food.

"In its first year, George Apple was trying to help people in every direction. Now we are striving to tell stories that address themselves more to the problems that parents and young people face today."

Hamner doesn't have time to write either show — although he does narrate "The Waltons." However, he works with the writers and rewrites a great deal on both shows. Still, "The Waltons" is much more his personal baby and he estimates that he spends 75 per cent of his time with it.

EARL HAMNER

"The Waltons were my family in the 1930's. And in the beginning I modeled George Apple after me when I was 30. I really feel very close to both shows. Apple is still pretty much me — I'm what my wife calls a country slicker."

What does the future hold for the Walton family?

"Well, John-Boy's career as a writer will be continued. You know, everytime I think of my own childhood, I now see Richard Thomas instead of myself. Things that I write for Richard have to be much better than I would have written them because I suspect John-Boy is going to turn out to be a better writer than I am. But John-Boy will be published by the end of this season, go on to New York, have an 'adult' relationship with a lady.

"Jason will graduate from high school and become a member of a country band. The father, John, will open a somewhat larger milling operation. Mary Ellen will graduate from high school next year and eventually become a nurse, as my sister did. And at the end of that three-year projection I envision Olivia and John becoming grandparents.

"The potential for longevity is built into 'The Waltons' in that we can simply follow the growth of the children, since most of the actors are approximately the age of the characters they portray. The youngest boy, Jim-Bob, had his voice change completely during our last hiatus, but it didn't make any difference that he now has an adolescent squeak because that's what he plays."

Hamner said he "is saddened at the thought that 'The New Land' has now been canceled, because I think it is a superb show. Of course, it would never have gotten on in the first place had 'The Waltons' not paved the way. The reason it is not making it is purely because it aired opposite 'All in the Family.' In another time slot I am sure it would draw a huge audience."

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR ANN MARGRET

Is your hobby collecting motorcycles?—F. G., San Mateo, Calif.

● No, it's riding them. A friend gave me one in 1962, because he had no further use for it, little realizing what he'd started. I became hooked on motorcycling. As of now, I have nine bikes. When I did "The Cincinnati Kid" with Steve McQueen, the studio chiefs had daily heart attacks when they saw me screech and whizz onto the lot on my cycle. They wanted me to stop till the film was over—in view of their financial responsibility—when I could do as I wished. They said I made them nervous. But I said bike-riding made me relaxed, and if I was relaxed, I'd do a better job. The faster I go, the better I like it. I've even gone 100 mph!

FOR CHARLTON HESTON, starring in "Airport 1975"

Were you disappointed at not being in the TV series "Planet of the Apes"?—T. F., Los Angeles, Calif.

● I was pleased—but not satisfied—with the first "Planet" movie. An actor must never be satisfied. But I had no desire to repeat my "Planet" role. I agreed to do a cameo part in "Beneath the Planet of the Apes" only as a favor to 20th Century-Fox, to make a bridge between the first and second films. I don't want to be in any series because I've no wish to be tied down to any role or media.

FOR PEGGY FLEMING

Do you find that the thrill of success wears off?—Vanessa Petersen, Anchorage, Alaska

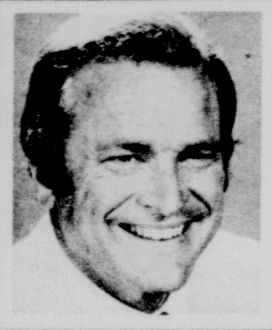

● I'm afraid so. The thrill of being successful at something does wear off—because you must always be looking forward to new things and to surpass your past achievements. But there's something else that never wears off—and that's the thrill of winning a competition.

FOR DINA MERRILL, actress and honorary member of the Board of the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation

What should you do if you discover your child is a diabetic? —A. D., Mansfield, Ohio

● Keep calm. And call your local J.D.F. chapter or an American Diabetes Association affiliate for the name of a specialist. As soon as possible, have your child take care of himself and make him understand he's not an invalid, that control and diet are his passports to a good and normal life.

FOR JIM SIMPSON, sportscaster

I have always been amazed at the way sportscasters are able to handle hockey and basketball action. Do most men in your field find these the toughest games for a play-by-play announcer?—Tom Jackson, Canton, Ohio

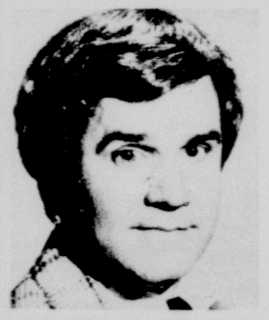

● No, I think most play-by-play men agree that hockey and basketball are among the easiest because the action is almost continuous and the announcer doesn't have to "fill" during blank periods. I find golf the most difficult sport to do. There are long periods to fill, and you can't follow the ball as easily as you can in other sports.

FOR ISAAC ASIMOV

Who's your favorite non-science fiction writer? How has your style of writing changed over the years?—Dick Mack, San Leandro, Calif.

● P. G. Wodehouse and Agatha Christie tie for the favorite slot because I can, and do, read their books over and over, enjoying them each time as much as I did the time before. I started writing short stories in 1938 and completed my first full-length novel in 1949. Now, 155 books later, I still write the same way now I did then. I sit down at the typewriter and hit the keys. Is there any other way?

FOR RICH LITTLE, impressionist

Have you ever found that using another voice helped you in everyday life?—J. Pole, Monsey, N.Y.

● I was in a hotel once that had poor room service because of a convention. After a couple of unsuccessful attempts to get service as Rich Little, I became Cary Grant. The room service improved right away.

FOR CHARITA BAUER, star of "The Guiding Light"

You've been on "The Guiding Light" for such a long time. Do you find it's dull doing the same thing over and over again?—J. Rickey, Ft. Worth, Texas

● Every job has tedious moments. I've been on the show for 24 years, and sometimes I experience boredom—but it's a fleeting emotion. I cure myself by telling myself how lucky I am to have the same job for so long. Show business is particularly insecure, and there's nothing monotonous about getting paid regularly!

FOR JULIA CHILD

I heard that Russia makes the best ice cream. Which country do you think makes the best—and why?—Laurie C. Weinstein, Indianapolis, Ind.

● I haven't been all over the world, but I do know that France makes poor ice cream. And it's even hard to find really good ice cream in the U.S. these days, though I hear there are some new brands popping up in some communities that are really delicious. Homemade ice cream seems best to me. The problem is it's so fattening. I've always got the Battle of the Bulge to contend with.

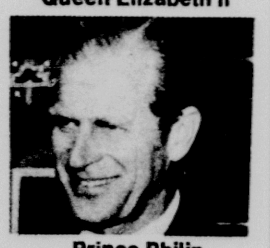

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Does the British Royal Family ever make faux-pas in public, like ordinary people?—P. I., Long Branch, N.J.

● John Lavelle of New York's Rainbow Room once asked Princess Margaret whether she'd like her eggs sunnyside up or scrambled. She replied: "Is there any difference between them?". . . When the Queen's official Wine Taster was asked to name Her Majesty's favorite, he confided: "She has none. She'll drink anything that's put in front of her." And Prince Philip once met a group of international reporters and said to one: "What paper do you represent?" When the Prince was told "The Rising Sun," he pointed to the man's flashy orange-and-red tie, and said: "I should have guessed. You're wearing it."

"What I Have to Be Thankful For"

Some famous people remind us what Thanksgiving is all about—even when fate has been less than kind

Compiled by Alan Ebert and Frances Spatz Leighton

This has been a year of political upheaval and turmoil; a time of economic instability and uncertainty. For many, 1974 challenged long-held principles and values. It also challenged the people in its persistent crises, shortages and environmental disasters.

FAMILY WEEKLY asked the following people, all of whom experienced turmoil, upheavals and crises in their own lives in '74, those things for which they are grateful on this Thanksgiving Day.

SONNY BONO

. . . who, in one brief year, lost not only a wife but a top-rated TV show.

"No one escapes. There are always problems in life. But you can't let them defeat you. One of the ways to win is to take stock of what you have and be grateful for it. Simple things that we take for granted—like being alive, sunny days, spring flowers, laughter—these are what life is all about. Sharing with another person, giving to someone in distress—that I can both give and receive—that's what makes me thankful.

"I am also thankful that our country has a future—and thankful that most people finally realize that to insure that future takes each person's work. Finally, I am thankful for the happiness I have gained through my work and the friendships that have given meaning to it and my life."

SALLY QUINN

. . . who, after being billed as CBS's answer to Barbara Walters, was abruptly fired and now has returned to the relative obscurity of a newspaper job.

"I am thankful I didn't lose my mind or jump out the nearest window, both of which were possibilities after the CBS Morning News disaster. My time at CBS was traumatic, to say the least, but it taught me something for which I will be ever thankful. I discovered there is more bounce-to-the-ounce within this lady than she knew. I have courage I didn't know I had. I refuse to take defeat by crawling away from the line of fire in disgrace. I just finished my first book about my CBS experiences. It's titled, 'We're Going to Make You a Star!' They didn't, but even for that I'm thankful, because it made me return to journalism and that is my true love.

"I guess I'm an optimist; the kind who sees a pony wherever there is a pile of manure. And I sure saw an awful lot of ponies at CBS. I guess what I'm trying to say is, personal courage and optimism and a sense of humor make life worth living. I'm thankful I seem to have all three."

KAYE BALLARD

. . . "Just Molly and me and baby makes three"—and that was the near sum total of people who came to see Miss Ballard flop on Broadway in "Molly" and in Chicago in "Sheba."

"A bad year? Who, me? Just because I'm opening an orange juice stand and selling the pits on the side as a do-it-yourself necklace is no reason to think I've had a bad year.

"It was not a bad year. It was a horrible year! The worst! But I have my dreams. Around that big corner in the sky waits a TV series where each week I run in, yell 'Dinner is served!', grab the paycheck and run for my home in Palm Springs.

"But seriously folks, despite the little aggravations of the past year—like starvation—there are many things for which I'm thankful. Take my health. Other than having a terrible cold, a hacking cough, hives and a hangnail, I feel terrific. And I feel thankful to be living in this country. Where else can you wake up in the middle of the night feeling depressed and suicidal and turn on the TV and see Joan Crawford, even more depressed and suicidal? The way that woman has suffered, who am I to complain?

"And I'm thankful that people laugh—when they see me wearing my 'Nixon '76' sweatshirt. Laughter is what I'm most thankful for. It's my survival kit."

STEVIE WONDER

. . . the blind recording star who almost died last year in a car crash, but who has miraculously and fully recovered.

"After the auto accident, doctors told me I might never perform again. I am thankful to God that He spared my life and gave me the courage not to accept the doctors' diagnoses. Music is my 'thing'—my way of saying hello, of bringing together people of all races and cultures. I am thankful God gave me the gift. I am thankful that I do see a 'coming together' all over the world.

"I am thankful for my faith, for without it there is loneliness. And I am thankful for the people who make Stevie Wonder want to sing. Without them, there is no kick. Singing for oneself just ain't where it's at.

"Lastly, and most important, I'm just so thankful to be alive in this great big beautiful world that we all take too much for granted."

BETTY FORD

. . . She did not want her way of life disrupted. She did not want her husband to be Vice President. She did not want her husband to be President. And she certainly did not want to undergo a radical mastectomy.

But as Thanksgiving approaches, Betty Ford realizes that the shock of all these events have made her stronger and have awakened her to a new feeling of thanksgiving. She has made her peace with fate and fortune. And Betty Ford gave us these thoughts:

"This year more than ever I have so much to be thankful for—the loving care I received during my recent illness, the thoughtful messages and prayers from all over the country.

"And now I have received the most meaningful Thanksgiving gift of all—the privilege of being able to share this special Thursday with my family.

"One cannot see ahead. I never dreamed I would be spending a Thanksgiving in the White House. I never dreamed I would be at the hospital undergoing an operation. This year, I have learned to concentrate on all the things that I have, all the things that are there, and not what may be missing.

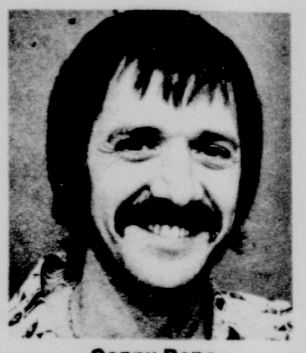

"Each night I read from the Bible. There are so many passages that speak of thanksgiving. They give me courage, as they do so many other Americans."

TOM SEAVER

. . . whose 11-11 pitching record for the New York Mets last summer did not live up to his $170,000 salary.

"I am thankful for second chances. For third and fourth ones, too. The expression,

Now, rediscover your country's exciting history with this beautiful new collection of authentic state pennies. These are real Lincoln head copper pennies and started as 100% legal tender but we doubt whether you'll ever spend them.

A special private stamping has imprinted opposite President Lincoln's profile, the name and geographic shape of each state, on 50 beautiful copper pennies. Each has been polished to a mint shine and the complete set of fifty is an exciting acquisition for all collectors.

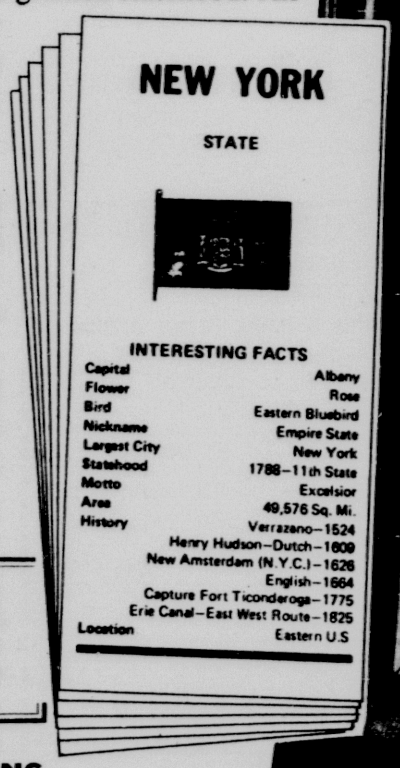

A Collector's Treasury to Display on Wall or Desk

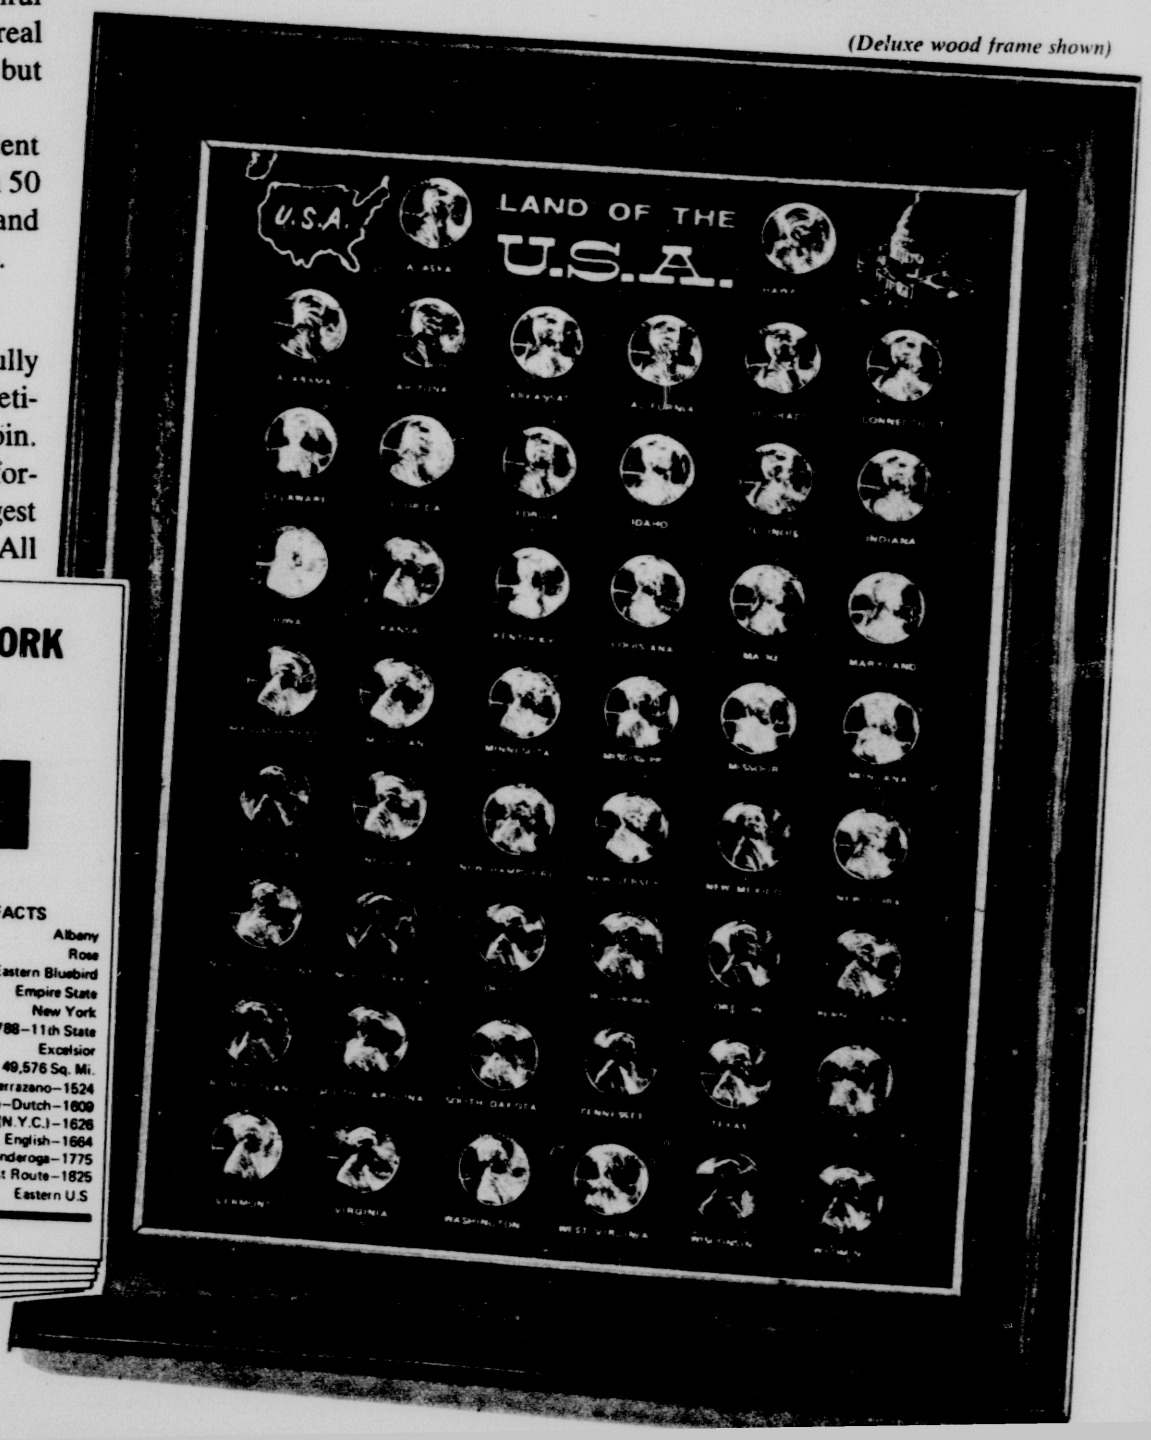

These distinctive coins come with sturdy holder that both beautifully displays and protects your set. The State Pennies mount in alphabetical order with each name appearing below the appropriate coin. Included, and a boon to students of history and geography, is information on each state's: capital, flag, flower, bird, nickname, largest city, area, location, motto and when state was granted statehood. All in all, a very impressive addition to your home or a very wonderful gift. A Deluxe wooden frame is also available at only $4.99.

Copper Pennies Becoming Scarce!

With the price of copper soaring, and world supplies dwindling, the American copper penny is rapidly going out of circulation. Reports are that the U.S. Treasury may even soon issue paper script instead of pennies. We urge you to order today while there is still a supply of pennies and while we can still get pennies for the same price. This collection could someday be a museum piece.

Deluxe Version: Gold Electroplated on Copper. This Collection is made even more exquisite and more valuable with 50 copper pennies covered with real gold. This heirloom version costs only $16.99.

AT HOME

By Rosalyn Abrevaya
Women's Feature Editor

Family Weekly's annual idea bank for Christmas (we managed to keep the $100-maximum figure despite inflation) offers suggested gifts for every room in the house. They're practical, as well as decorative, and some you can even make yourself!

Gifts to Give Your Home for $100 or Under

Give Your Den a Unique Rya Rug (about $100)

Even when handsomely adorned with a mineral collection, this dark wall might create a somber room. The red-orange rug (4′7″ x 6′7″) provides a vivid pick-up and adds character to the room with its sculptured high-low pile—the motif resembling a butterfly spreading its wings. From Egetaepper collection rugs, its made of Acrilan to withstand heavy traffic. This rug comes in four other color combinations and is available in a full range of sizes.

A Gift Underfoot for Your Child's Room (about $100 for 8-x-10 room)

The bright, cheerful colors in this Raggedy Ann 'n Andy print carpeting make decorating a child's room simple. Use it as the focal point to pick up the hues for paint and accessories. There's also a practical note: fashioned of Enkalure II soil-hiding nylon, it will look clean longer despite spills and tramping feet. The carpeting is available in 15-foot width, at approximately $10.95 a yard. From Jorges Carpet Mills, Inc. Room designed by Virginia Frankel.

Old-fashioned Raggedy Ann 'n Andy carpet makes a fun children's room.

George Small

Easy to hang, this inexpensive mural adds a splash of color to any area.

Instant Wall Graphic (under $100)

If you have a room that needs a total lift, let this striking geometric mural do the job. It's easy to hang, since it's pretrimmed and prepasted—easy to care for too, because it's washable vinyl.

For a look of dazzling elegance, it is teamed here with sleek chrome and glass furniture on a luxurious soil-hiding white carpet. The mural is also available in warm earth tones, taupe on silver, and a bright combination of oranges on yellow. From Imperial's E-Z Du scenic murals collection, it is available across the country. Furniture by Cosco Contemporaries. Carpeting by Collins & Aikman.

Every Stone Guaranteed Pure, Translucent...Free From Flaws!

Each man's and lady's ring is truly stunning in rich 18 Karat Heavy Gold Electroplate. Each man-made stone has 58 gleaming facets—same as natural diamonds! Each one perfect—free from specks, bubbles, cracks! Compare with $1500 Diamonds! Place a ZOLATRON next to a costly $1500 diamond. You'll hardly believe your eyes! You'll marvel at the pure, dazzling color...the perfect 58 diamond-cut facets that sparkle with thousands of shimmering lights...the heavy, golden mountings. Note how the super-hard, extra brilliant stones resemble a precious diamond. So great is the similarity, it takes a real diamond expert to tell them apart!

Thousands Wear Man-Made Diamonds!

Movie and TV stars and millionaires too wear man-made stones to protect themselves against burglary. Now you too can afford a fine ZOLATRON for just $10—even less for 2 or more! All you have to do is clip the Trading Stamps with your favorite designs. But rush them now for guaranteed Christmas delivery! This great offer won't be repeated again this year. Orders received too late will be returned promptly to senders. These jewels make lifetime gifts. Grab this golden opportunity!

Give a Gift of Time (about $60)

Genuine stained glass, in ever-changing tones of red burgundy, blue and ivory, is hand-crafted by Bulova into a stylish timepiece. The arched niche design is enhanced by a functional pendulum, while its hour-and-minute hands and raised numerals are in ebony color. A transistorized movement keeps this beautiful wall ornament operating for over a year on a single battery. It measures 7⅞" wide by 13½" in height.

Darwin Davidson

Add a touch of tradition to a wall with this transistorized clock.

Dual-purpose hutch fits traditional atmosphere of dining room while hiding most valuable kitchen helper.

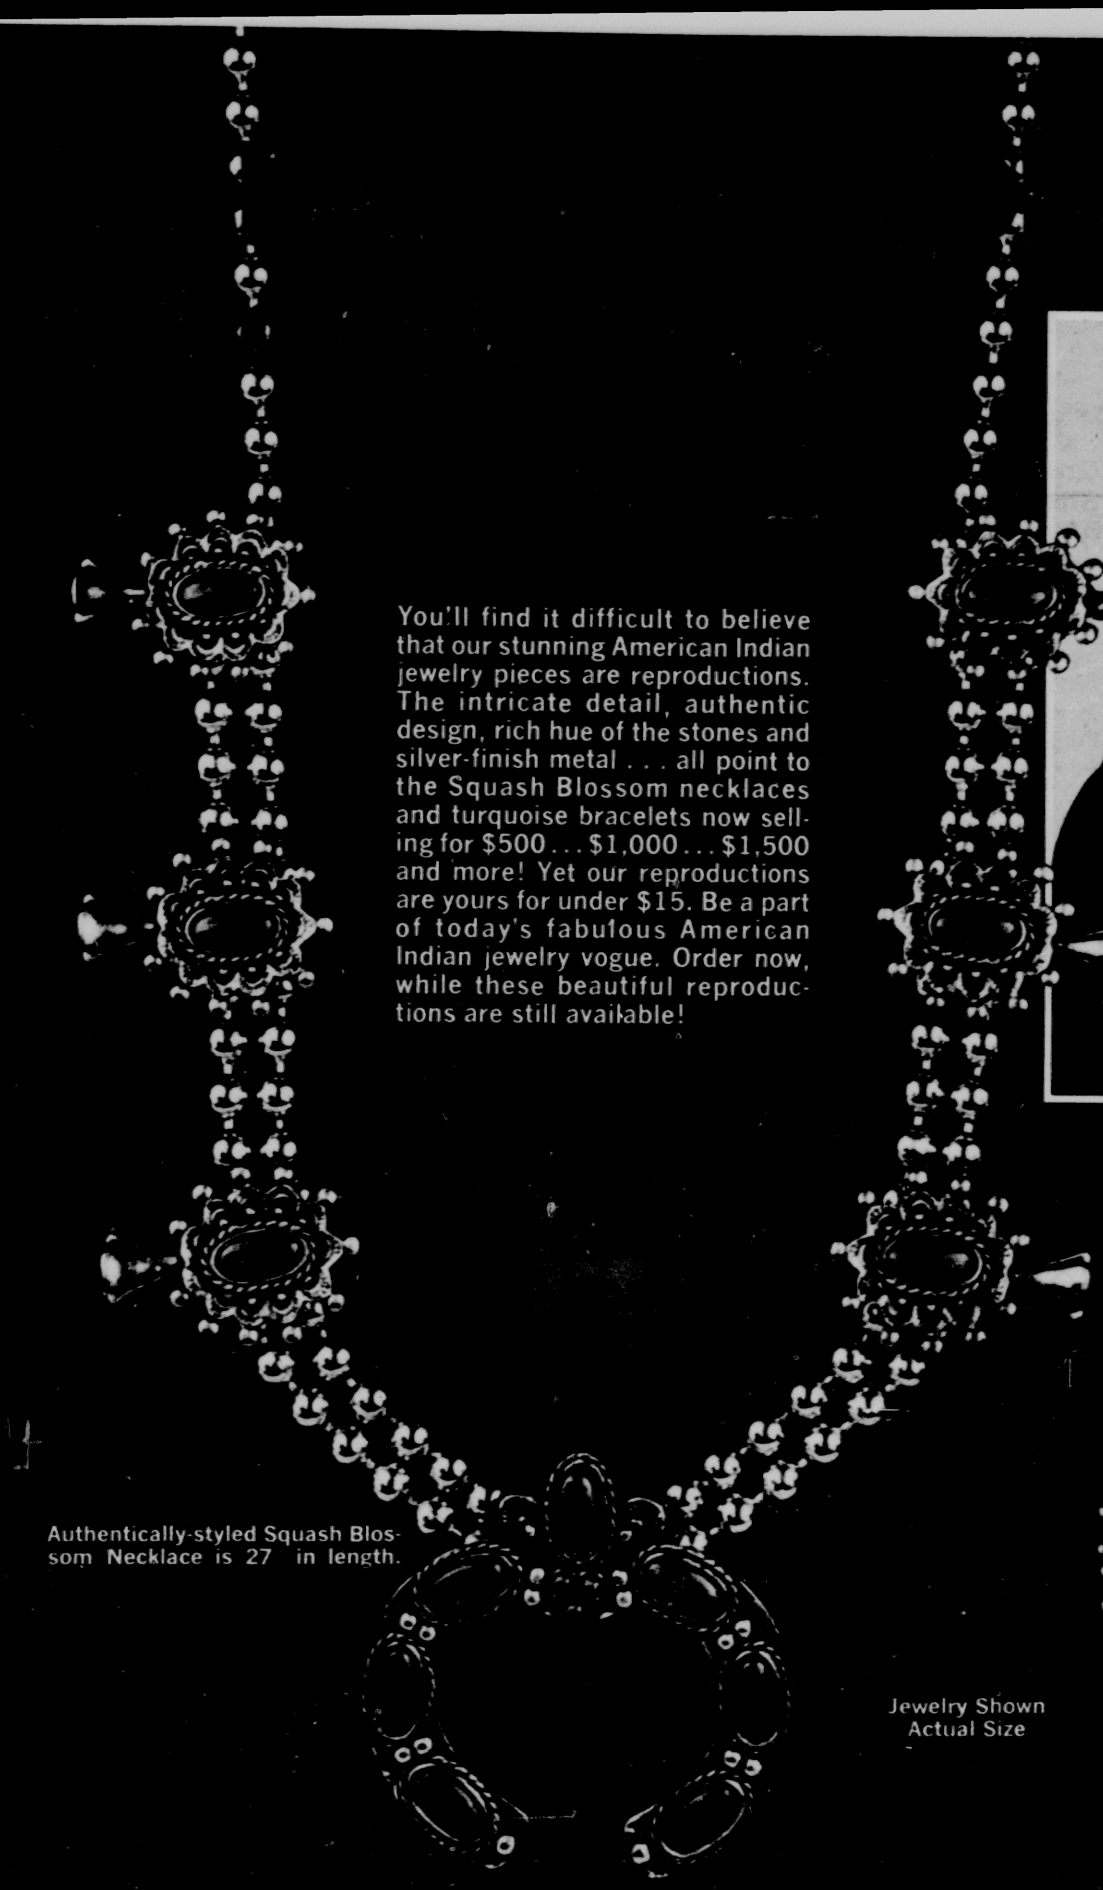

Build a "Hideaway" Hutch (under $70)

There's no reason to be without the convenience of a dishwasher. Even if your kitchen is too small for stowing a convertible model, a hutch offers "garage space" in the dining room. This antiqued hutch, built with ¾-inch plywood, houses the dishwasher while providing shelf space for serving pieces. Simply roll the dishwasher to the table for loading, then into the kitchen for operation. Construction plans for the hutch are available from Consumer Information Center, Dept. FW, The Maytag Company, Newton, Iowa 50208.

Magic With A Roll of Tape!

Electric Knife and Carving Board (about $28)

A practical accessory for your kitchen is this deluxe electric knife which includes its own generous 11″ x 17″ carving board. Elegant enough to use at a dining table, the winning combination makes you a carver instead of a cut up and can help you do the right job in half the time. It's also a great help in slicing vegetables and fruits evenly. From Hamilton Beach-Scovill, it's available in sunny gold.

If there's anything about it you don't like, you can take it back.

Now, that's a guarantee.

We're not kidding. When you buy any one of these Black & Decker portable power tools, you get a guarantee so good that if there's anything about it you don't like—you can return it to a participating retailer or Black & Decker Service Center. It'll be exchanged for a replacement tool, no questions asked. This guarantee is good for one whole year. Kind of makes sense, doesn't it? That Black & Decker would offer a guarantee every bit as good as its products (Proof of purchase and return of original standard equipment required. Guarantee does not include tools used commercially or in rental service.)

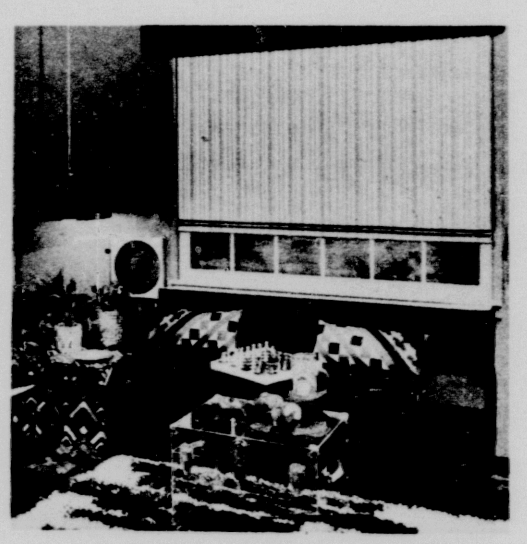

A tool you can work with at a price you can work with. Black & Decker.

Do-It-Yourself Decorator Accents (under $5)

All it takes to bring the holiday spirit into your home is imagination and some colorful tape. Use decorator tape to adorn your favorite picture frame, lampshade or candle holder—turn gift packages into glistening jewels with bows, geometric cutouts, and stars. The look is expensive, but the distinctive touch is achieved here by using ten rolls of Scotch sparkling metallic tape for a cost of less than $5.

Surprise Your Window with a "Stock" Shade (about $28.50)

Although it looks custom-made, this 73″ wide, 6-foot long random-stripe shade is readily "in stock" at your favorite store. Called Colony Stripe, it's constructed of vinyl-coated fiber glass, is colorfast, fire-resistant. Ann Heller, the room's designer, trimmed it with two rows of press-on tape for added charm. The shade's cost comes down with narrower widths. In the popular 37¼″ width, it retails for about $9.50. From Joanna Western Mills Co.

What I Have to Be Thankful For"

'Wait till next year!' has never seemed more appropriate. Sure, it was a lousy year for me professionally, but I'm thankful that I'm not carrying it with me into next year. I don't believe in brooding over the past, but in looking at your mistakes and moving on.

"I don't feel defeated. Off-years happen to people, not just to pitchers. I'm thankful that I look forward to the future, that my attitude about life is optimistic rather than pessimistic. I always feel the best is yet to come.

"Finally, I have a really terrific wife, Nancy, who stands shoulder-to-shoulder with me. For that I am very thankful."

Rosemary Clooney

Patti Page

ROSEMARY CLOONEY

. . . who recently recovered from a long and severe illness.

"The sun is shining again after many, many years of bad health and professional and financial difficulties. This year was the end of a period of six long and lousy years. But I'm thankful for them in retrospect. They gave me an appreciation of life. (You have to be 'out of it' to appreciate the true meaning of being 'in it.') And it is not about money or hit records, it's about togetherness, your own and that which you share with loved ones.

"I'm thankful for five wonderful children. I'm thankful for the people in my life who care. I'm thankful that because I see life as a joyous gift that I am singing better than I ever have. I'm not older, folks, just better—the youngest 46-year-old you'll ever meet. Like this country, I've been through a lot of changes in recent years. It has made me a better person, and I suspect we will emerge as a better nation for our trials and tribulations.

"Listen, now that things are cooking again, you wanna come on-a my house?"

. . . whose recent divorce proved that 13 was not her lucky number.

"After 13 years of marriage, I was divorced. After 13 years of living in the same house with my husband and my two children, I discovered a house is not a home when the vibrations say otherwise. 1974 was a year of changes and upheaval, but it was also a year of realizations: We get help by helping ourselves. You can't sit still, can't let life rule you. We grow through experimentation and often through our failures as well.

"I am thankful I now live on a wide-and-wonderful ranch in California. I am thankful I had that courage to make such a drastic change. I am thankful that I am Patti Page, a woman whose work has given her great comfort the past two years. I am thankful that the public still accepts Patti Page and that allows her financial independence.

"I will be 25 years old in show business next year, and for that I am thankful.

"Lastly, I am thankful for the gift of Kathleen and Danny, to whom I am that other person—Mama."

Alan Ebert, who helped to compile this story, has a few things to be thankful for himself, having spent four months of the past year in bed with hepatitis. "I guess what I'm most thankful for are chocolate chip cookies, reruns of 'The Lucy Show,' and just being alive" says Ebert, "—not necessarily in that order."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

WHEN BLANK MIND MEETS BLANK WALL

There is a certain wall of mine
That's made of strips of knotty pine.
It is my study. I admit
I all too often study it.
The knots resemble beasts and birds
And things for which I have no words.
One seems a sweet roll, one a face,
One seems to move from place to place.
The builder said that knotty pine
Was warm and cozy, really fine,
But frankly, friends, no ifs or buts,
Those knots will someday drive me nuts.

One desperate father says he secured a better education for his teenagers just by pulling a few wires—the TV, the stereo and the telephone.

—Anna Herbert

Watchdog owner to veterinarian: "Every time I shout 'Sic' he goes to sleep." Vet: "Ah, yes—sicking sleepness."

—Robert Brault

Social worker: "The last time I visited you, you made me very happy because you were sober." Old Soak: "True, honey, but today it's my turn to be happy."

Our daughter, five, was due to take her cough syrup, which had a safety cap. She attempted several times unsuccessfully to open the bottle. I took it, telling her only Mom and Dad could open medicine—and opened it on the first try. She looked puzzled. "How does the bottle know you're the mother?" she asked.

What in the World!

AUTHOR RYAN AND SAILOR VAN HEEZIK
The changes thirty years can bring

How long is 30 years? At the left, author Cornelius Ryan—30 years ago a 23-year-old war correspondent, the youngest writer covering World War II in Europe. At right, Arie Van Heezik—born 30 years ago during the Nazi-imposed "Hunger Winter" in Holland, and now first officer of the Rhine cruise ship Holland Emerald. The two men met recently as Van Heezik's ship took Ryan and a boatload of British, American and Polish generals to the scenes of the disastrous Allied Military Operation Market Garden in Arnhem and Nijmegen—an operation that took place those 30 years ago. When it failed, the Germans cut off heat, electricity and food in Amsterdam as a reprisal, and 35,000 Amsterdammers starved to death while others survived by boiling tulip bulbs and eating them. During that tragic winter, Van Heezik was born. Ryan recently completed his book about Operation Market Garden, "A Bridge Too Far" (Simon and Schuster, $12.50), fighting a body-engulfing cancer until the last page was done, directing his doctors on how to keep him alive, declining pain-killers so his mind would remain clear enough to allow him to finish his book—now a critical success.

Pictorial Parade

CHARLOTTE OLDFIELD
Before . . . and after

Rapunzel? No, it's Charlotte Oldfield who recently had her hair cut for the first time in her life. Before she submitted to the cutting shears, she was several pounds heavier and had more than three feet of brown-red hair hanging down her back. After two and a half hours in the hairdresser's chair, the thick wavy blanket was gone, and Charlotte emerged with this trendy, short cut.

How can people pay their bills with ballooning inflation? Answer: Many can't—and don't. "Latest figures show 2.7 percent of installment loans that people have taken out for autos, appliances and so forth are delinquent. That's up from 1.9 a year ago—the highest in more than 20 years. Home mortgages are behind, too, with 4.7 percent of home buyers delinquent at the end of 1973. That's also the greatest delinquency rate in 20 years. Business is hard hit by delinquency too. Bad debts written off by commercial banks in 1973 are estimated at more than $800 million, up from $767 million the year before. Liabilities involved in business failures in 1973 amounted to a record $2.3 billion. That's 15 percent more than in 1972." This from T. Frank Hardesty, author, lecturer and business consultant.

HOW THE CLUB OPERATES

Simply mail the application, together with check or money order for $1.69 as payment for your first 13 selections.

Every four weeks (13 times a year) you'll receive the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest...plus hundreds of alternates from every field of music. In addition, up to six times a year you may receive offers of Special Selections, usually at a discount off regular Club prices.

If you wish to receive the Selection of the Month or the Special Selection, you need do nothing—it will be shipped automatically. If you prefer an alternate selection, or none at all, simply fill in the response card always provided and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make your decision. If you ever receive any Selection without having had at least 10 days in which to decide, you may return it at our expense, for full credit.

Your own charge account will be opened...the selections you order will be mailed and billed at regular Club prices: cartridges and cassettes, $6.98 or $7.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $5.98 or $6.98—plus processing and postage. (Multiple unit sets and Double Selections may be somewhat higher.)

After completing your enrollment agreement (by buying 10 selections within 3 years), you may cancel membership at any time. If you decide to continue, you'll be eligible for our generous money-saving bonus plan.
